Sonnet to a Clam.

Dum tacent clamant.

Inglorious friend! most confident I am
Thy life is one of very little ease.
Albeit men mock thee with their smiles,
And prate of being 'happy as a clam'!
What though thy shell protects thy fragile head

From the sharp bailiffs of the briny sea?
Thy valves are, sure, no safety-valves to thee.
While rakes are free to desecrate thy bed,
And bear thee off—as foemen take their spoils—

Far from thy friends and family to roam;
Forced, like the Hessian, from thy native home,
To meet destruction in a foreign broil!
Though thou art tender, yet thy humble bard
Declares, O clam! thy case is shocking hard!

—Saxe.

Phillips, 6; Lawrence, 5.

Although the students of Phillips have become somewhat inured to surprises this term, nevertheless, we must admit that the game of last Wednesday was a surprise surpassing all previous ones. Our nine, as well as the school at large, thought only of defeat, hoping, possibly, to gain a few pointers, which might help us in the near future; but we are now inclined to think that Luce could have given our opponents a pointer or two in the art of ball playing. Never before in the annals of the Academy has such a surprise awaited its members; never before has a game been won with such excellent playing against such infinite odds. Members of the Lawrence team were heard to remark, the day before the game, that they expected to score fifteen runs to a cipher on our side. Their expectations, however, were doomed to disappointment.

The game was called promptly at 2.45 p. m., by Mr. Conway, the regular Lawrence pitcher, and Luce took his place at the bat, resolved to do his best for the school, but only succeeded in pounding the air in a very effective manner, and was caught out on three strikes. Aldrich and Johnson followed, making short hits to the in-field, and were easily put out. We had had a taste of what our opponents could accomplish in field work, and now waited with breathless interest to see what they would do with our battery. Although Knowlton met with an accident during the game of May 15th, and was not in a fit condition to catch, yet, with his customary pluck, he took his place behind the bat, and kept it throughout the afternoon. O'Connell led off with a slow grounder to Aldrich, who threw to first, but Brainard muffed it, and the man obtained his base, from which he stole second, and reached home on a passed ball. Burns, Kiley and Beecher went out by the fine playing of our in-fielders, and the first inning closed with a total of one run to nothing in favor of Lawrence. Our nine showed to better advantage the second time at the bat. Knowlton made an excellent base-hit, stole second, reached third, and succeeded in scoring a run on a passed ball, amid the cheers of the fellows. McNeil, Grimes and Fleming were put out, the latter being caught on third base while Brainard was striking. The last part of this inning was especially noticeable, from the fact that, although there were men left on second and third bases, yet by superior playing the next two men were put out in succession, thereby preventing an increase in the score of our opponents. Neither side scored during the third inning, and we had some hopes of winning the game, or at least in making it a tie. In the fourth inning Knowlton again made a run, but no one seemed inclined to follow his example, while the Lawrence team scored twice, thus placing them one run ahead. In the fifth inning our opponents scored again, but in the sixth we were fortunate enough to add three to our number of runs, while Lawrence added a little zero. Each team was successful in making a run in the seventh, but the eighth brought with it no return for either. We were approaching the ninth and last time at the bat. Would our men increase the score or not? Brainard took his position and sent a long fly to left field, who was successful in reaching it. Then Perry and Luce followed, but both failed to make first base, and our chances of raising the score were gone. Pettee led out with a fly to Grimes, right field, but the wind was blowing such a gale that it was difficult to judge the ball, and he failed to catch it. O'Connell succeeded Pettee, and put a hot liner to Luce, who clung to it, and put it to first while Pettee was running to second. This made the first double play of the season, and was loudly applauded by the spectators. Burns came next, and sent a short fly to Luce, who caught it, and the game ended in our favor.

Individual plays are very hard to mention, for each man played a very excellent game, though some of the errors made were inexcusable. Luce, Aldrich and Knowlton covered themselves with glory. The following is the official score:—

Although we do not take great praise to ourselves for the victory of May 15th, yet, from the fact that it formed a feature in the program of games to be played this season, we feel it our duty, as representing the interests of the Academy, to take this opportunity of mentioning it.

We confess we were somewhat surprised at the final outcome of this contest, but the playing on both sides deserved to be severely criticised as being far below the average, which will be seen from the score below. We were fortunate enough in getting Mr. Vinton, our former pitcher, to serve as umpire during the game, and we are sure that no murmurs of disapproval were raised on either side in opposition to his decisions.

During the first inning the nines seemed to be so evenly matched that there promised to be no little dispute as to which team would be successful in the end, but after that the game assumed a very one-sided appearance, and the interest which formerly attended it in a great degree subsided. With regard to individual playing, we feel justified in saying that, from our own point of view, we consider that McNeil played a very excellent game, picking up two hot grounders in a manner worthy of mention. Our battery did much better work in this game than in any previous one, and shows what a week's steady practice can do. When the last man was at the bat, Knowlton met with a mishap which might have cost us the game had it occurred earlier. By a foul tip, one of his fingers was split, but, with his indomitable will, he kept his place until the end.

CRAWFORD, PRINTER, 22 CUSTOM HOUSE STREET, BOSTON.

AN attempt is being made to revive the yachting interests at Yale, which seem to have died out, at least for the present.

When the Yacht Club was first organized in '81, it was in a most prosperous condition, being under the administration of Mr. J. J. Phelps, '83, as commodore. Successful regattas and enjoyable cruises were participated in by its members for a few years; then the interest in the sport began to abate, until now, to quote the News, "the club may be said to be on its last legs."

Although yachting is open to very few of the colleges on account of their unfavorable situations or the extreme expense attending it, yet it offers an amount of pleasure and healthful exercise not exceeded perhaps, by any other of the college sports, and therefore, wherever practicable, should be maintained.

While we rejoice as heartily as any one at the success with which our nine is meeting, we feel that it just at this time that a word of warning, or of caution, is most needed. The work done this spring under the direction of Capt. Knowlton has been excellent, as seen by the results of last Wednesday's game. But if we expect to continue to be successful, this danger must be guarded against—lest the fellows, depending upon the reputation which they have made during the season so far, give up their hard, earnest work and begin to practice in a slack or half-hearted manner. We do not know that this word of caution is necessary, but we do know that this very thing has happened in former years and therefore we merely wish to keep the danger in the minds of the fellows, so that any defeat arising from such circumstances may be avoided. The captain, certainly, has the entire confidence of the school.

Concert.

The concert given by the students, at Town Hall, last Tuesday evening, for the benefit of the boat crew, was a success in every particular. The weather was favorable, and the hall was quite well filled, there being about three hundred present.

An overture led off on the programme. This was rendered by the orchestra, and well applauded by the audience. Vocal selections by the Quartette followed. It was not generally known beforehand by the school who the members were, but all were satisfied with them after hearing the selections they presented. After they had responded to an encore, Mr. G. B. Vansantvoord, together with the accompanist, who had been procured from Boston, performed a solo upon the flute. That it was appreciated was shown by the applause. He was recalled, and his second selection, as well as his first, showed him to be a master of that instrument. A banjo duet was next performed by Eyere and E. P. Williams in a very acceptable manner, as was proven by the fact that they were twice recalled. The orchestra ended the first part of the program with an overture.

In part two, the first on the program was to be a violin and flute duet. The violinist, who was to come from Boston, failed to put in an appearance, so a flute duet by Frear and Sheldon was substituted. All seemed pleased with the change, for many had never heard Frear perform. None were disappointed by the way in which the duet was rendered. Selections by the Quartette followed, and they were all given in a praiseworthy manner. Mr. Evans' yodling was especially commendable. Flute solos by Mr. Vansantvoord followed. The manner in which they were performed was very fine. A selection was then rendered by the orchestra as a closing piece, and the performing could hardly be criticised.

All seemed satisfied with the entertainment—the audience with the selections throughout, the performers with the way in which the audience received their selections, and the crew with the pecuniary results of the affair. Great praise is due to Mr. Frear for the interest he has taken throughout to make the performance a success. It is seldom that a school orchestra reaches as high a standard of excellence as ours, and this is due, without a doubt, to the perseverance of Mr. Frear, combined with his musical talent. The Quartette was a decided success, and we would congratulate the crew on the success of the entertainment from beginning to end.

The '84 Reunion.

On the 11th of May nearly thirty members of the class of '84 held their reunion in Boston. About ten came from Yale, five from Amherst, and seven from Harvard. After a very enjoyable dinner, the following toasts were responded to:—

"The class of '84," Mr. Bacon; "Phillips Academy," Mr. Cooley; "The Fem. Sem.," Mr. Gould; "Harvard College," Mr. Lund; "The English Department," Mr. Wright; "Yale College," Mr. Ripley; "The Scholarship of '84," Mr. Merwin; "Amherst College," Mr. Brayton; "Athletics," Mr. Vinton; "Philo," Mr. Kutz; "The Veterans of the Class," Mr. Hudson; "Absent Friends," Mr. Poppleton; "The Future," Mr. Sempers; "The Committee," Mr. Manro.

A large number of the class spent Saturday and Sunday in Andover.

Book Notices.

In the report of the first dinner of the Alumni Association held at the Parker House, an attractive book comes to us. The work is published by the Executive Committee of the Association. It is neatly bound in Phillips blue, and contains the speeches, a copy of the menu, a list of those present, and various other matters of interest. As a frontispiece the publishers have given a lithograph of the proposed dining hall for the Academy. We earnestly hope that the day is not far distant when this much needed addition shall be made to our buildings.

We urge any boy, whose energies are flagging, to read the book, as he cannot fail to gain fresh inspiration from the speeches, which are full of wholesome common sense, and that spirit of loyalty to old Phillips which we so much like to see.

Among the speeches recorded are those of Dr. Bancroft, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Dr. William A. Mowry, Rev. E. G. Porter, Hon. R. R. Bishop, Hon. G. O. Shattuck, Prof. A. S. Hardy, Hon. W. W. Crapo, Hon. P. H. Sears, Hon. Nathaniel Miles, Hon. Geo. S. Hale, and Hon. Horace Fairbanks.

After reading the book it is impossible to doubt that the memory of Phillips is ever cherished by her children.

It gives us pleasure to mention the addition of a new literary monthly, published at Phillips Exeter, to our list of exchanges. The first number comes to us with a neat and tasty appearance. Its object, according to its prospectus, is to awaken an interest in literature and science among its readers. Judging from the high standard and quality of the first issue, we would predict for it a successful career which shall place it among the first magazines of its kind. We wish to extend our hearty congratulations to the Editors upon its first appearance, and our best wishes for its future success.

Yale's Next President.

We take the liberty of clipping the following from the Yale News of May 21, trusting it will be of interest to our readers:

Since the first intimation of Dr. Porter's intention of resigning the presidency of the college last fall, discussion as to his successor has been rife in the press throughout the country, but particularly among the patrons of Yale. While some diversity of opinion as to the best man for the position has existed, there has been from the first little doubt that Prof. Timothy Dwight, who was selected yesterday, would be of all the most capable and most efficient. It is safe to venture that though well-grounded in Yale theories his views will be liberal and fully abreast of the times. At a period when Yale seems almost at a crisis in her struggle with the new education, the election of Prof. Dwight will be regarded with universal satisfaction and must be hailed as a harbinger of the future prosperity of the college.

P. A. A., 18; Harvard '89, 3.

All work for the Mirror is to be handed in by Tuesday, the 25th.

There are estimated to be thirty or more tennis courts on Zions Hill at present.

The record for throwing the base ball is 379 ft. 6½ in., made at Cornell.—Princetonian.

Babbitt, P. A. '85, is teaching school at Bridge-water, and intends to enter Harvard next year.

The contest at Andover, for the Means Oratorical prize, was won by Hotaling, '86.—Yale News.

Jernegan, P. A. '86, Brown University '89, is reported as being a prominent candidate for the varsity crew.

President Porter, of Yale, will tender his formal resignation on the 29th of this month.—Princetonian.

The question of compulsory chapel at Harvard is to be decided by the College preachers, recently appointed.—Princetonian.

We go to press too early to receive the full returns from the tennis tournament, which is still in progress. Particulars will be given later.

We were visited by quite a number of the class of '84, a week ago last Saturday, who had held their reunion in Boston the night before.

INQUIRY. Sunday, May 30. Subj.: Except. Matt. v: 20; xviii: 3; John iii: 3; xv: 4.
Leader, Mr. Ellis.

Babbitt, P. A. '83, who is instructor of German for the Freshman class of Harvard, contemplates making a tour in Europe next year, to further his studies there.

The requirements for the entrance examinations at Harvard will hereafter admit of some scientific subject, as an equivalent for either Latin or Greek.—Princetonian.

Through an oversight on our part, Mr. Smith's poem, which was published in our last issue, went through the press with several bad mistakes, which were not in the original copy.

We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of The Grotonian, a monthly issued by the Groton School, Groton, Mass. It appears to be a bright little sheet, and we are glad to receive it among our exchanges.

President Porter, of Yale College, assisted by a large corps of eminent literary authorities, is revising Webster's Unabridged Dictionary. The words "dude" and "boycott" will appear in the new edition.—Brunonian.

At the Phillips Exeter Spring games Saturday, Wurttemberg, '86, beat by two inches the best amateur record in the standing broad jump without weights, covering 10 ft. 3½ in. Wurttemberg expects to enter Yale next year.—Yale News.

The Brunonian of this month contains an article which will doubtless interest many in the Academy. It is entitled "The Confessions of an American Gum Chewer." The paper is now on file in the reading room, unless someone has carried it off.

At a high school a short time ago, each member of a certain class was asked to hand in something suitable for a motto. One of the small boys handed in the following: "Nunquam dorsum ex!" He had to give the translation, which was "Never back out."

PHILO.:—Seventh regular meeting, May 28th. Critique, H. C. Stetson; Extempore, F. H. Brooks; Mirror, 3d Ed., G. H. Danforth; Select Reading, C. F. Sawyer; Debate, aff. A. L. Clark, neg. F. H. Hicks. On question, resolved: That Sunday newspapers and trains be prohibited.

R. D. Sears defeated Pettit, the champion of the world, at Boston, on Friday, in one of the most brilliant tennis matches ever played in this country. The first set was won by Pettit with a score of 6 to 4, and the following three by Sears, the scores being 6-3, 6-3 and 7-5.—Yale News.

The run to Salem last Wednesday, on account of fine roads and beautiful scenery, was the most enjoyable and fascinating of any of the runs taken this year. The entire distance, eighteen miles, was covered in one hour and forty minutes, including stops, reaching Salem at 3.30. After refreshing ourselves with such delicacies as are usually indulged in by a "cad," we boarded the train for Andover, reaching here at 7.15, all feeling that to spend a day more pleasantly would be impossible.
