Spring Tournament.

Those who intend to enter the Spring Tournament must spend the little time now left in active training for the events they intend to compete in. With such a varied programme as is offered, the entries should be large, and embrace all classes in the school. But very little work, however, has been done so far in preparation for it. The runs taken by the men under the direction of Mr. Pettee have been directly for the purpose of stimulating the interest in it, and have been participated in by a number of men; but unless more work is done than at present the tournament will not be carried on with the enthusiasm and keen spirit of rivalry which is necessary to make it a success. Many of the fellows are apt to remain inactive simply from fear that they will be beaten; but such men never know what they can do, and now is the time for them to rouse up and take part in those things where they stand a fair show of success.

Philo.

Owing to Mrs. Downs's lecture, the regular Friday evening meeting of Philo was postponed until Monday; and, as is usual in postponed meetings, the attendance was small. The President was absent, and Vice-President Addis occupied the chair. The meeting was opened with prayer by Mr. Cameron. After the roll was called, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read, came the critique by Massonneau. This was followed by an address by Mr. Snowden, who gave a very interesting account of the condition of athletic affairs at Harvard. The next exercise should have been an extempore by Weeks, which was cut. This gentleman is to some degree excusable, on account of illness. Mr. W. B. Parker, as substitute for Hooker, then declaimed "A Psalm of Life."

A motion to adjourn, made at this point, was lost. The debate was on the question: "Resolved, that the Surplus should be appropriated for a Navy." The leaders were: Affirmative, Benner; negative, Cameron. The Chair appointed from the house, on the affirmative; Henning, Fuller and Adams; on the negative, Duley, Ogilvie and Gove. When the debate was thrown open to the house, O. H. Bronson spoke on the negative and Allen, Fuller and Frissell on the affirmative. The leaders then closed their respective sides. The debate throughout was very good. The leaders showed careful preparation, and almost every speaker advanced proofs for his arguments. The vote of the house, after the debate, was in favor of the negative. The Chair also thought that the weight of argument lay with that side, as it had advanced more original proofs than the affirmative had. After a question had been chosen for the tenth regular meeting, the society adjourned, on motion of Bronson.

Mrs. Downs's Lecture.

Those whose privilege it was to hear Mrs. Annie Sawyer Downs, on Friday night of last week, give an "informal talk," as she called it, were very much entertained and instructed. The lady is a very pleasant speaker, and so skillfully expresses her thought that with scarcely an effort of the imagination the picture she wishes to present is clearly before the mind. The subject matter of her talk was, a few reminiscences of her experience during her travels in the South the past winter.

Washington, the first object of her consideration, presented a very pleasing aspect, with its general objects of interest. After visiting the Congressional Library, she went into the Supreme Court room, where Clay, Webster and Calhoun used to speak; the present Senate, where Senator Dawes occupies a desk formerly Sumner's; the Vice-President's room, which contains a picture of Washington different from those ordinarily seen, and a gilt-framed mirror for which John Quincy Adams gave the extravagant sum of fifteen dollars; the old Hall of Representatives, now used as a hall of statues, and in war-times as a hospital, were all of great interest.

From Washington about four miles down the river is Arlington, commanding a beautiful view, finer even than that from Mt. Vernon. At Arlington were many objects which we have not space to enumerate.

Seventeen miles below Arlington is Mt. Vernon, visited in the Jubilee Year by forty thousand people. Washington's house is reached through a wood planted by himself, consisting of a tree from every state which he visited. Near the house is the tomb of Washington, from which the view over the surrounding country is broad and delightful. As this tomb was not strong, a second one was built, and after receiving the remains of Gen. Washington was locked, and the key thrown into the river. Since then it has not been opened.

Washington's house is now in the charge of ladies from various states of the Union. Its furniture consists of both antique and imitation of antique, making discrimination difficult; but downstairs it is all homogeneous, and many articles are there which were collected by Washington — among them Gen. Braddock's sword. The south extension was Washington's library, seemingly like any other room, but with high wainscoting. On further examination, this wainscoting is seen to conceal sets of shelves, cubby-holes, etc., contrived by the Father of his Country. In a music-room opposite is a harpsichord which he gave to Nellie Park Custis.

The north extension was built for a banqueting hall, and before its completion Mrs. Washington desired to give a banquet in honor of Lafayette and several French officers. She was very anxious that the room should be finished, as it lacked only papering. Seeing no way of having it done, she told Lafayette that she had intended to give a banquet and the reason why she could not do so. Lafayette replied: "Madame, here are five stalwart men; we will paper the room"; and they did so.

After leaving Mt. Vernon, Mrs. Downs visited Richmond and the scene of the battle of the Wilderness, which appears much the same as it did in the war. Fortress Monroe and the Hampton Normal Institute for colored people were also described in an interesting manner.

In Hampton and Louisville she learned many facts in regard to the colored people of the South. There is still so strong a feeling among the whites of antipathy to them, that if they desire schools and churches they have to build and maintain them at their own expense. They are anxious to learn, however; and in closing her talk Mrs. Downs expressed great hope for them.

THE ANDOVER PRESS. PRINTERS.

There is still a large sum of money owing to the base-ball management by those who have not paid up their subscriptions; and it is hoped that every one will attend to this matter at once, and so relieve the managers from a great deal of anxiety. Notice was given in the early part of the term that these subscriptions were due, and there can be no excuse for the unreasonable delay in paying; but some do not seem to appreciate the work they are causing by their want of promptness. Let every man who has not yet paid up his subscription do so immediately, and not wait for the managers to look him up and ask for it.

Action has already been taken by the Seniors on the subject of giving a class dance, as suggested by a correspondent in our columns Wednesday, and a committee has been appointed to consider and report on it as they think best. The idea is a very alluring one at first sight, and will meet with approval from a certain class of students, who would be able to enter into such a thing and take an active part in it. An additional point in its favor, also, would be the fact that we are almost entirely cut off from intercourse with any one except our school-fellows during the time we spend here, and such an event would form a pleasant variation in the rather monotonous life we now lead. But, before establishing a custom which other classes would feel it incumbent upon themselves to keep up, due caution must be exercised, and arguments both for and against be taken into consideration.

Some men have different ideas of success from others, and no doubt they would differ as widely on this as on any other subject; but if financial matters are to be taken into consideration it can be relied upon that a large expense will have to be borne by some one. As a social success, it is very doubtful whether a class dance would prove entirely satisfactory. There are but few scholars in the school who dance, compared with those who do not; and this alone would not only cripple its support, but ultimately give rise to a division of the men into cliques and sets that would be very injurious in destroying the unity of purpose and effort which is so necessary to support our more important interests.

But the most serious obstacle which would arise would be the difficulty of securing a suitable company. If the relations between Phillips and Abbot Academies were not of such a rigid nature, this could undoubtedly be met in a most satisfactory manner. Under the circumstances, however, it is very probable that the dance would fail from inability to overcome this obstruction.

It is sometimes said that other large schools and colleges give dances, and why should not we? This ought not to influence any one at all. We have our own affairs to look after and manage them in our own way. Because others do certain things, it is no reason that we should copy them, unless it is best for us to change. At present, however, all our energies ought to be devoted to looking after our more pressing wants, and until they are in a safer condition we can well afford to let such social pleasures go until we reach college, where greater facilities are presented for giving them, and where they do not constitute such a drain on other things as they would here.

Reunion of Class '86 P.A.

The class of '86 P.A. held their reunion at Young's Hotel, Boston, last Friday evening. There were only fifteen members of the class present. Upon arriving at the hotel these were disappointed by receiving a dispatch from the Yale division of the class to the effect that they would not be present, as they wished to witness the Yale-Harvard base-ball game, which was to occur at New Haven the following day. Nothing daunted by the decrease in number, the fifteen sat down at six o'clock to discuss the menu, which was quite elaborate. The dinner was appointed originally at nine o'clock; but the list of absentees was so large that probably those present felt that they had a greater task before them, and consequently began early. However that may be, it proved a very enjoyable affair; the toasts being given and received as pleasantly as could be expected under the circumstances, and the friendships formed at Phillips again renewed.

Green Street Champions.

Several weeks ago a nine was organized on Green Street, which from the first has taken the lead in the race for the championship. They have won more games than any nine in town, having defeated English Commons by a score of 7-4, Cheever House 5-4, Blunt House 11-1 and Berry House 14-8. The manager will be glad to arrange a game with any nine in town.

Inquiry.

The subject of the meeting Wednesday evening will be: "Things to get rid of." Heb. xii. 2; 1 Peter ii. 1; Eph. iv. 22-32. Leader, A. E. Addis. All are invited.

Tournament at Exeter.

In the tournament at Exeter to-day, Spaulding will play the singles, and Farwell and Anderson the doubles.

Poole, P.A. '87, has been elected permanent captain of the Yale Freshman nine.

Phillips vs. Mathews.

Andover met the Mathews of Lowell on Saturday afternoon, and won a game that was replete with good batting, base running, excellent coaching and general team work. In a word, it was the best exhibition we have seen the entire team give this season. Several changes were made in placing the men—White going from 3d to 2d, Mowry from left field to 3d and Preston from 2d to left field. The changes, we think, are good. Stearns and Gorman were the battery, and they worked together grandly. Stearns pitched a winning game from the start, striking out sixteen. Gorman's back-stop work was brilliant, having eighteen put-outs and two assists. Preston and Upton led at the bat. Toohey and Flynn did good battery work for the Matthews, while Fitzgerald and W. Thornton led at the bat.

The game commenced with Andover at the bat. Dickerman made a base hit, stole 2d, out attempting to steal 3d. White bunted the ball and got 1st, and was advanced to 2d on Riley's error, and scored on passed ball. Stearns got 1st on C. Thornton's error, and scored on error by Flynn. Brainard went around to 3d on errors of W. Thornton and Flynn, and scored on Merrill's base hit. Merrill stole 2d, and scored on Upton's base hit. Upton stole 2d, sent to 3d on wild pitch and scored on Flynn's wild throw to put him out at 3d. Gorman base on balls, stole 2d, but allowed Toohey to catch him napping. For the Matthews, Flynn got to 2d on wild pitch of third strike, took 3d for the same cause, and scored on a passed ball. Then Stearns struck out in succession W. Thornton, O'Brien and Toohey.

In the second inning Preston hit for three bases, and scored on wild pitch. Dickerman reached 1st on W. Thornton's error, and in an attempt to put him out at 1st the ball sailed about two feet above the 1st baseman's head, and Dickerman scored. White retired. Toohey to Fitzgerald. Stearns out. Toohey to to Fitzgerald. Brainard fouled to Flynn. Fitzgerald struck out. Kelley 1st on balls, stole 2d, while Flynn took 1st on balls. Both had to stay there, as Stearns struck out both C. Thornton and Higgins. Third inning. Merrill out. Toohey to Fitzgerald. Upton made a base hit, stole 2d, took 3d and scored. O'Brien's muff of Mowry's fly allowing Mowry to get to 2d, he took 3d and scored on O'Brien's error. Gorman by errors got 3d, and was out attempting home. Preston made base hit, got 2d on error, but got too far from his base, and Toohey put him out. Flynn struck out. W. Thornton retired. Stearns to Brainard. O'Brien struck out.

Fourth inning. White struck out. Stearns fouled to Flynn. Brainard made base hit, stole 2d, and reached 3d on Riley's error, which also allowed Merrill to get 1st and steal 2d; but they were left, as Upton fled to Kelly. Toohey then made a scratch hit, and secured 1st, stole 2d, out trying home plate. Gorman to Stearns. Fitzgerald fouled to Gorman. Kelly made a base hit, stole 2d, got 3d on passed ball, but could not score as Riley struck out.

Fifth inning. Mowry struck out. Gorman made a base hit, stole 2d, and was advanced to 3d on Preston's hit, and scored on passed ball. Preston stole 2d, and scored on Dickerman's base hit. Dickerman stole 2d and 3d bases, and scored on White's sacrifice to Toohey. Stearns fled to Riley. For the Matthews, C. Thornton reached 1st on balls, got 2d on Brainard's error, stole 3d. Higgins struck out. Flynn reached 1st, stole 2d. W. Thornton first on balls, making bases full. C. Thornton scored on an attempted out at home plate, and O'Brien took 1st, leaving bases still full. Flynn scored on attempted out at plate, allowing Toohey to get first. Fitzgerald put a fly to centre, which Merrill took care of after a long run, and then put the ball to Upton at 2d, retiring O'Brien, making a double play.

Sixth inning. Brainard made a hit to infield, and was clearly safe at 1st, but the umpire would not allow it. Merrill struck out. Upton made a base hit, and stole 2d, but was left there as Mowry was retired at 1st. Toohey to Fitzgerald.

Seventh inning. Gorman fouled out to Flynn. Preston out. Toohey to Fitzgerald. Dickerman sent out a fly that should have been taken by 2d base man Thornton. A collision took place between him and the short stop, and he was safe, stole 2d and 3d bases, but did not score as White went out. C. Thornton to Fitzgerald. Higgins first on balls, took 2d on Flynn's out at 1st, and scored on W. Thornton's two base hit. Thornton was left at 2d, as O'Brien struck out, and Toohey was retired at 1st. Merrill to Brainard.

Eighth inning. Stearns out at 1st. C. Thornton to Fitzgerald. Brainard struck out. Merrill reached 1st on W. Thornton's error, stole 2d. Upton reached 1st on Riley's fumble; then Mowry came to the plate, and sent the ball into the left for two bases, sending in both Merrill and Upton, but allowed himself to be caught napping at 2d. Fitzgerald made a two base hit, got 3d and scored on an attempt to put Kelly out, who reached 1st on fumble by Stearns. Riley then made a singer that was too hot for Upton, thus sending Fitzgerald and Kelly across the plate. C. Thornton fled to Dickerman. Higgins safe at 1st on Riley's out at 3d; left there as Flynn struck out.

Ninth inning. Gorman sent the ball down the line to Fitzgerald, who fielded him out. Preston fled to Higgins, and Dickerman to O'Brien. For the Matthews, W. Thornton fouled to Mowry. O'Brien reached 1st on error of Stearns, but put out trying for 2d by a neat throw by Gorman. Toohey retired his side by fouling to Gorman. The following is the official score:

COMFORT vs. CUSTOM.

FELT vs. BRISTLES.

No one who has for some time used the recently invented felt tooth-brush, as has the writer of this paragraph, will ever consent to return to the use of bristles. An impatient man, long habituated to the rasping sensation of the bristles, may on the first trial of the felt brush be inclined to discard it; but soon the comfort, and the sweetness and sensation of utter cleanliness which it brings are so pronounced that the very thought of returning to bristles awakens a sense of discomfort. The felt, with its soft, clinging filaments, takes hold of the teeth, and not only cleanses, but serves a secondary purpose as a polisher of the enamel. This [is] very important as a preventive of decay." etc.
