PHILLIPS ACADEMY, ANDOVER, MASS., MARCH 26, 1890

NO. 45

Communications.

The following letter was received last week from a person whom we presume to be a resident of Andover: Editors of Phillipian:

Will you please inform me through the PHILLIPIAN why twenty-five cents is charged to witness the base-ball and foot-ball games here at Andover, when at Exeter no admission fee is charged.

x.
It would be more in accordance with the nature of things if our correspondent would write to Exeter and ask why people are admitted to their games free of charge when at Andover an admission fee of twenty-five cents is charged.—Eds.

The Means Prize.

The following are the men chosen to speak for the Means prizes:

H. O. Spaulding, P.A. '90.
A. F. Crosby, P.A. '91.
D. C. Adams, P.A. '91.
A. G. Cummings, P.A. '90.
J. O. Moré, P.A. '92.
G. R. Noyes, P.A. '90.
G. N. Henning, P.A. '90.
F. W. Hodgdon, P.A. '91.
J. I. Chamberlain, P.A. '90.
C. G. Abbott, P.S. '91.

Draper Elections.

The election of candidates for the Draper prize competition in declamation, as far as the elections have taken place, has resulted as follows. From '90, J. I. Chamberlain, Bard, J. P. Chamberlain, Gilbert, McDuffee, and Crosby. From '91, Hodgden, F. Thompson, G. King, H. B. Lowe. From '92, Morris, Warren.

The Mirror.

The Mirror, which has been looked forward to with some expectation this term, made its appearance on Monday afternoon; being more prompt in doing so than is often the case. As a whole the present number of the magazine certainly surpasses any preceding one which has appeared within our remembrance. The cover is at once handsome and tasty, while the numerous cuts and the three photographs add immensely to the attractiveness of the inside pages. The quality of the verse and prose of the number can hardly be said to excel the average standard of former volumes, though in places they are of good merit. The second prize poem is certainly most excellent in quality of these, and betrays a skillful hand, to say the least. In our opinion its merit should easily insure it the first prize. The grinds are good as a whole, though weak in places, and the pot-pourri is tastily arranged. The number, as a whole, reflects much credit on the editors, and shows conscientious diligence and work.

Philo.

The last regular meeting of Philo which was held on Friday proved to be one of the most interesting meetings of the term, as the attendance was large and the question for debate an interesting one. Prayer by McLaren was followed by the roll call and Secretary's report, and then came miscellaneous business. Two new names were proposed for membership, and were accepted. The Treasurer then read his report for the term, which showed that the society had been freed from debt, and that there was a balance of several dollars in the treasury, besides some uncollected fines. The report was accepted by the society, and Robinson then moved that the price of the Mirror be raised fifteen cents, and stated that the standard of the book would also be raised. Several men who had formerly been on the Mirror board also spoke, all favoring an advance in the price, and the motion was unanimously carried. C. G. Smith, as substitute for Eaton, then read a good criticism of the previous meeting, which was followed by an extempore by Foss on the advisability of having the running track on the upper campus. He was in favor of this plan, and in a very good speech pointed out its advantages. The Mirror by third editor Noyes on the Moors in Spain was very interesting indeed, but rather long. After a declamation by E. W. Ames which was well rendered, the vice-President took the chair, and the President delivered his address, the subject being Our Need of a Literary Monthly. The address was received with much enthusiasm by the society, and interest in this subject seems to have been aroused. The next in order was the debate on the question, Resolved:

that capital punishment should be abolished; led on the affirmative by T. B. Williams and on the negative by Morris. Messrs. Moré, Rogers, and Lamprey assisted the affirmative, and Messrs. Powell, Abbott, and A. Ames the negative. From the house, the affirmative was supported by Messrs. Noyes, and Perkins, and the negative by Bumstead. The debate was very interesting, and all the speakers did very well indeed. The vote of the house was found to be, before debate, affirmative 24, negative 24; and after debate affirmative 11, negative 29; but the chair decided with the affirmative, and the meeting was then adjourned with three cheers for the officers. The work of the term has been very successful and very gratifying to those who have the welfare of the society at heart. The list of members has been greatly increased, and the attendance has been large at almost every meeting, which can be attributed to the energy and vigilance of the officers.

Deutsches Liebhabertheater

On Friday evening, the 21 inst., a dramatic entertainment was given by the pupils of the German department of Abbot Academy. Invitations had been sent to the friends of the Academy, including the advanced German class of Phillips Academy, and as a result, every foot of Academy Hall was occupied when at 7.45 the entertainment began with a piano solo by Miss Perry. The piece was rendered very finely, and by a few of the audience understood fully as well as the excellent German which "Fr. Schmidt" used afterwards. Miss Winegarner as "Maria Stuart," and Miss Bull as "Kennedy" delighted the audience. The scene represented takes place in a park near Fotheringhay. Maria has been permitted to exchange for a while "des finstern Gefängnisses traurige Gruft" for the beautiful park. This little favor inspires her with the hope and delight which she expresses to Kennedy, who suspects the true reason of the "favor." Maria caused many to wish that the fashions of her period might be revived, so beautiful did she appear in her costume. When the curtain opened the second time, Miss Wheaton as Johanna, and Miss Hinkley as Agnes Sorel proved by their faultless playing that they had studied and interpreted their parts with great care. The scene is a difficult one, but both the young ladies were adequate to the occasion. A little change in the program brought before the audience at this time Miss Crocker, who played a Menuett by Hans Huber with much skill. The last and greatest event, greatest because it gave to so many an opportunity to show honest work and careful training, was a comedy in two acts, "Die Erbin der Tante." The play represents Fr. Schmidt, a widow, and her seven daughters awaiting a visit of a very wealthy aunt from Calcutta, who is about to make one of these seven her heiress. The girls are making plans as to how to dispose of their money when once they have obtained it. The rich aunt, Fr. von Courcy, arrives, and is treated as rich aunts usually are. When she has retired to dress for a ball given in her honor, a poor aunt, Fr. Braun, arrives, applying for the hospitality of Fr. Schmidt until she may be able to find a situation. She is received and treated as poor aunts often are by all but Mathilde, the oldest daughter, the "Aschenbrödel" of the family. When both Fr. von Courcy and Fr. Braun have learned how rich and how poor relatives are treated, they exchange roles, and Fr. Braun comes forward as the rich aunt, which she really is. An explanation and the customary apologies followed, and all ends happily. Mathilde becomes the heiress. Miss Terry as Fr. Schmidt had the longest and most difficult part to perform, and it could not have been performed better. Miss Bancroft fitted exactly into the role of Fr. von Courcy, both her language and acting were excellent. Miss Hinkley as Mine, the servant girl, proved that she could adapt herself to this station as well as to that of a king's love (as Agnes Sorel). Miss Kuhnlen, with gray hair and blue glasses, represented the poor aunt to perfection. We have not the space to do justice to the daughters of Fr. Schmidt: suffice it to say that every one in the audience was glad, very glad that the Schmidt family lives in Andover. Fr. Schiefferdecker, the teacher of the German department, may be proud of her success, for those who have followed the entertainments of this character given in past years at the Abbot Academy are all satisfied that never was a more pleasing entertainment provided for an Andover audience than this one.

The Phillipian will be issued every Wednesday and Saturday during the school year except in vacation.

All communications must be accompanied by the writer's full name and address, not necessarily for publication unless so desired.

Communications may be addressed to the Phillipian, Andover, Mass., or dropped in the Phillipian box placed in the main hall of the Academy building.

THE ANDOVER PRESS, PRINTERS.

With this issue of the PHILLIPIAN Mr. Holmes withdraws from his position as managing editor, which position will be filled for the ensuing term by Mr. Robinson. Mr. Taylor, '91, will take charge of the paper with the opening of the next academic year. Of the present board, Messrs. Stearns, Sawyer, Mayers, Holmes, and Duley have resigned; Mr. Duley through the pressure of other duties. At least one editor will in all probability be elected, and is to be hoped that there will be sharp competition during the early part of the term.

As the warm weather draws so near to us, and the time for base-ball games approaches, one is naturally inclined to ask whether the team is to be compelled to play, or even whether it will be possible for them to play, on such a field as the present campus now offers. Last year the field was so rough and uneven as to make the players to a great extent timid in getting in front of ground balls, and in the out-field a man who ran with his eyes on the ball was in imminent danger of stepping in a hole or running off the edge of a gutter. Owing to this the entire team were greatly impeded in their playing, and it was impossible for a man to do himself justice. Now it is evident that with but very little work the condition of the field can be greatly improved, and as the frost is almost entirely out of the ground there seems to be no reason why it should not be done soon. As games have been arranged from the beginning of next term on, it is to be hoped that the proper authorities will take the matter in hand during the vacation, so that when school re-opens the work of the nine will not be impeded from want of suitable grounds to play on.

Stacking.

The following is the resolution sent to the faculty by those concerned in the stacking:

To the Faculty:

In behalf of the fellows who participated in the "stacking," and the Seniors who retaliated, we as a committee appointed by them, desire to express our sincere regret that the stacking has been carried to such an excess, and earnestly desire an equitable settlement of damages for both parties. Furthermore, as we recognize to what excess it is liable to be carried, we signify our intention to do all in our power to prevent its continuation.

Phillipiana.

Abbott, P.S. '91, returned to school on Thursday.

Bard who has been out of school for the past few days with the measles is back again.

The German play at the Fem. Sem. was the best that has been given for several years.

E. Sawyer expects to return next year, and enter P.A. '92.

Quite a number of students went to Boston on Thursday to hear Patti.

The Means competition men were read out in chapel Thursday morning.

The Mirrors came out Monday.

Prof. Coy had twenty-five make-ups on Wednesday afternoon.

The "Preps," for the first time in many years, have no representatives on the Means.

The gymnasium is no longer lighted up nights on account of the small number who make use of the building.

A reception was tendered to the Sophomore class at Wellesley last Monday night. During the evening Prof. Churchill rendered some select readings.

McBirney, P.A. '91, and Addis, '90, took first and second prizes in the compositions on a French play recently read by the advanced French class.

William Selden Hillard, who entered the Academy with the Junior Classical class in 1888, and who was obliged to leave school at the Thanksgiving recess following, on account of his health, died peacefully and painlessly of apoplexy Sunday, March 9, 1889. He was for a time engaged in business in Chicago.

P.S. '92 finished its trial speaking for the Draper competition on Friday.

Prof. Wells was unable to attend his classes on Thursday, Friday, and Monday.

P.S. '92 had a cut in history on Thursday morning.

Morris and Warren were elected from P.A. '92 to speak for the Draper prize.

A large number of persons attended the German play at the Fem. Sem.

The reading room has been kept in better order this term than usual.

The candidates for the nine practised outdoors last Monday.

John B. Wilson, P.A. '68, was in town Monday, looking around familiar places in commons.

The last meeting of Inquiry was the largest held this term, the attendance being 118. The interest also has steadily increased.

Although the orchestra did not play at the tournament it will play at the Draper speaking. All that is needed is the support of the fellows. The material is good, and as Mr. Harrington has consented to be leader (if the fellows tend up) there is no reason to doubt but that the result will be a first class orchestra. The practice is a great thing, and it is to be hoped that the interest will not lag.

P.A. '93 has adopted the following resolutions: "Whereas the actions of the men in 'stacking' the Senior's rooms went beyond the bounds of propriety; be it resolved that the class of '93 do not approve of said actions, and that we will do what we can to suppress such."

nominated, but Mr. Grant's name was withdrawn, and a ballot resulted in the election of Taylor. C. G. Smith and J. Taylor were nominated for vice-President. Smith was unanimously chosen, as Taylor declined. White and Cheney were named for the position of Secretary. Cheney declined, White, although elected, afterwards resigned, and Stillman was elected. Bumstead was unanimously chosen, and after the presentation of the Secretary's report, the meeting adjourned.

Philo Elections.

Philo held a special meeting in Society Hall on Wednesday for the purpose of electing officers for next term. When nominations for President were called for Messrs. Tyler, Beard, and J. P. Chamberlain were named but Mr. Chamberlain declined. A ballot was then taken which resulted in the election of Tyler, who received 46 votes to 21 for Beard. McLaren and Atha were nominated for vice-President, and the former was elected by acclamation as Atha withdrew. For Secretary Fouse and Nettleton were nominated and the latter elected by two votes. The names of A. Johnson and Conant were presented as candidates for Treasurer, and as Johnson withdrew Conant was elected by acclamation. For first Mirror editor White nominated Eaton, who was unanimously chosen, and for second editor C. G. Smith was elected over W. F. Williams. Grant, Beard, and Cummings, who were named for third editor, all declined, and J. C. Chamberlain and Morris were nominated. By the vote of the house Chamberlain was elected. For executive committee Messrs. Ziepprecht, Skinner, Vaill, and L. W. Smith were nominated, and unanimously chosen, after which the meeting was adjourned.
