Communications.

Editors of Phillipian:

The Reading Room Committee takes pleasure in thanking the school for the generous spirit which it showed at the recent sale of papers. Thanks are also due the auctioneer, Mr. Murphy, for his kindness in undertaking the task and for his seeing the sale through so successfully. Formerly the committees have been sadly cramped for lack of the necessary funds; but this year hopes are entertained that everything may run smoothly. Our Reading Room is not so spacious as it might be, but as many seats as possible will be furnished, and if a little patience be exercised, all unpleasantness may be avoided.

READING ROOM COMMITTEE.

Natural History Society.

The twentieth regular meeting of Natural History Society was held on Saturday evening. President Robinson called the meeting to order and, after roll-call and the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by the Secretary, the miscellaneous business was taken up, which consisted in a committee of three being appointed to revise the Constitution and By-laws; another one to arrange a program, and an executive committee appointed by the President, on motion of Woodman.

Woodman then read a short paper on the Agassiz Association. Flagg spoke on "The growth of the Horse-chestnut." Robinson gave a very interesting paper on "The Creek Indians," illustrating it by relics. S. E. Greene then closed the meeting with an essay on "Turkey," taken from his personal knowledge of the country. The meeting was then adjourned.

A larger number than usual were present at this meeting, which looks promising. The next meeting will be held on the third of October. Any new fellows wishing to join should hand their names to one of the members of the Executive committee, which consists of Messrs. Flagg, Skinner, Porter and Whitfield.

The New Desk.

The long-looked-for and eagerly expected desk which P. A. '93 voted to place in Mr. Eaton's classroom last spring has at last arrived and was placed in No. 4 last Friday. It is a very handsome and serviceable article and will no doubt give a great deal of pleasure to its users. It is constructed of oak throughout, there being no other wood or any veneering used. The desk surface, which is very highly polished, is 5 feet 8 inches by 3 feet, and the desk stands 2 feet 8 inches from the platform. The front and sides are panelled, and there are nine drawers in the back which lock simultaneously. Above the centre panel in front is "P. A. '93" in raised silver letters. The desk is one of the handsomest presents of its kind ever given to the school and is greatly admired.

Foot Ball Schedule.

The following schedule of games has been arranged by the Foot Ball Management. With the exception of Exeter all the games will be played on the home grounds. All will be allowed free admission to the game this afternoon. In the future, however, the old custom of fencing off the grounds and charging admission will be in force.

The Sargent Prize Ode.

HORACE, BOOK IV, ODE IX.

An annual prize of one hundred dollars is offered by Mr. John Osborne Sargent of New York, open to the students of Harvard University, for the best translation of a selected ode from Horace. The prize for the academic year of 1891 was won with the translation printed below by Mr. G. R. Philbrook of Fitchburg, Massachusetts, a member of the class of 1894, who was class poet in 1888 at Phillips Academy, Andover.

Think not the verse of mine is doomed to die,
Born where some far-sounding streams of Anfield start,

I set the words to song with lyric art
Not yet essayed 'neath any Roman sky,

What though great Homer keep the monarch's throne?
Stesichorus, with muse of stately grace,

Alcaeus, hurling threats in tyrant's face,
The Cean bard and Pindar, all are known,

Time quenches not Anacreon's playful fire,
The tuneful sweetness of our day remains,
Aye breathes the love, aye live the glowing strains
Eolian Sappho whispered to her lyre,

Not Helen, fair Laconian queen, alone,
Has felt the passion for a lawless love,
Whose gold-wrought robes and gleaming locks
above

And princely train with luring splendor shone.

Not Teucer first did bend the Cretan bow;
Idomenus and Sthenelus display
Not the sole prowess worth a poet's lay;
An Ilium more than once has been brought low.

Impetuous Hector, eager for the strife,
And fierce Deiphobus were not the first
To suffer grievous wounds, and care the worst
For the sweet sake of babes and modest wife.

Many were brave ere Agamemnon's days,
But all are shrouded in eternal night;
We cannot weep for them or know their might
Because they lacked a bard to sing their praise.

Inglorious ease and virtue close concealed
Are much alike when buried in the ground;

I will not let thee, Lollus, stay uncrowned
With what of fame a poet's page can yield;
Nor shall oblivion, unopposed, drag down
To livid dusk thy many deeds again;

Thou art discreet and versed in ways of men,
Thy soul serene, let Fortune smile or frown
The scourge of fraudulent greed, thou dost defy
The subtle power of all-attractive gold;

Not consul for one year, but thou dost hold
A lofty mind's perpetual sovereignty.

Who art a just judge, innocent of wrong,
Who honor o'er expedience can uplift,
Spurning with haughty look the briber's gift,
Victorious 'gainst the foes that round thee throng.

Citizens not truly happy when possessed
Of ample store of wealth, who wisely know
How best to use the gifts that Heaven bestows
More worthy is to bear the name of blest;

Inured to feel stern poverty's rough hand,
Shunning as worse than death a shameful deed,
He fears not, if at last there come a need,
To die for cherished friends or Fatherland.

The People's Course.

The PHILLIPIAN has received an announcement of the People's Course of Lectures and Entertainments for this season, and the program of the course is printed below.

For several years this series of entertainments has been very popular and has been largely patronized by Academy students. The price of the tickets for the entire course is 75 cents, reserved seats $1; single entertainments 25 cents. Tickets will be sold in the Town Hall at 7 P.M. on Saturday, Sept. 26. The list of attractions this year is as follows:

Oct. 5. Concert. The Albions.
Lilian Carl Smith, Contralto; Martha D. Shepard, Pianist; Wolf Fries, Violincello; Chas. W. Kidder, Reader.

Oct. 12. Lecture. Francis Bellamy.
"How many Angels can live on the point of a needle."

Oct. 19. Lecture. Rev. T. J. B. House. "Switzerland." Illustrated by stereopticon.

Nov. 9. Lecture. Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, ex-President of Wellesley college. "Ideal in the Education of our Boys and Girls."

Nov. 16. Concert. The Apollo

The Phillipian will be issued every Wednesday and Saturday during the school year except in vacation.

All communications must be accompanied by the writer's full name and address, not necessarily for publication unless so desired.

Communications may be addressed to the Phillipian, Andover, Mass., or dropped in the Phillipian box placed in the main hall of the Academy building.

The editors do not hold themselves responsible for the opinions of any correspondent.

PHILLIPIAN Board meeting is held Wednesday and Saturday noons.

Entered as second-class matter at Andover Post Office.

THE ANDOVER PRESS, PRINTERS

As the places on the PHILLIPIAN board, made vacant by '91's men, have not been filled, we call the attention of the under-classmen, especially the new fellows, to the fact by saying that the competition for those places is now open to all who wish to try for a position on the board, particularly urging the classes not yet represented to put forth some effort.

We are often asked what kind of news is wanted, and in a general way say that anything pertaining to school life and the furthering of the interests of all phases of that life is welcome, and, as far as possible, made use of. We make the following suggestions which, we hope, will be carefully observed. Write distinctly and on only one side of the paper used, numbering every sheet. Be careful of spelling and punctuation. Every correspondent must sign his name to all of his contributions. This is not for publication but to be kept for possible future use. We hope that no further urging will be needed to make the competition close, sharp and interesting.

It is a well-known fact that college and school publications are dependent, to a large extent, upon the men who advertise in them for their support. The PHILLIPIAN is no exception to this rule, as the money received from subscriptions scarcely pays one-third of its expenses, and it has to depend on its advertisers for the remaining two-thirds. It is easily seen from this, how much the advertisers do for the paper, and by helping the paper they help the school, for the PHILLIPIAN is an organ of the school. Now if these men help us, we ought to remember the old saying that "One good turn deserves another," and deal as much as possible with them. In doing this we shall not only benefit the advertisers but also ourselves in that we are buying from the most reliable firms in Boston, Lawrence, and Andover. We urge the fellows to deal with the firms whose advertisements are found in these columns, for unless these stores receive the patronage which they deserve, they will withdraw their advertisements and thus end the career of the paper.

The foot-ball season of '91 begins this afternoon. As it is the first game, and, judging by the record of the past season's work of the visitors, our team will meet a powerful eleven, too much hope ought not to be centred in the result. The school has reason to look for a creditable showing on the part of the men who will play, and to accomplish this every fellow has something to do toward bringing about such an outcome.

There is no doubt that a team is greatly encouraged by the feeling that it has enthusiastic supporters at hand. Therefore every student should be on the ground this afternoon, not only to witness the game, but also to contribute his support toward a hoped-for victory. To do this, he must come prepared to assist the police in keeping the marked-out field clear for the use of the teams alone, also to be prepared to cheer whenever the order is given by the leader of the cheering staff. Every foot-ball or base-ball player in school will testify to the inspiration that comes to him when he hears good, hearty, and simultaneous cheering.

It is of vital importance to every young man on the threshold of life that he should learn well the cardinal precept—economy. We urge the lesson of this important doctrine with great earnestness upon the students of the Academy, because experience has taught us that it invariably inspires faith and confidence in one's family and friends. With reference to this we are glad to say that members of the school will find in a majority of instances that the tradesmen of Andover are invariably courteous and reasonable with the students, and it is their studious endeavor to keep large and fresh supplies of precisely the kind of furnishings the boys need. Conspicuous among the dealers in Andover, we are happy to say, is Mr. P. J. Hannon, the tailor to the Academy. He is square and honest in every transaction; his great popularity with the students is sufficient evidence of this. We have it on good authority that last year alone he furnished twice the amount of clothes to members of the school than that of any other individual tailor.

He gives special attention to the cut and style of college men's clothes, and is consequently better equipped to satisfy the Phillips trade than any other local tailor. When you are downtown stop in and see him. He is always glad to welcome the students, and will give you better style, fit, and price than any tailor within a reasonable distance. He is agent for Troy Laundry, and keeps a clean and fresh line of gentlemen's furnishings.

P. J. HANNON.

Special to P. A. Students.

A word about "Economy" referred to Elsewhere.

This is not an editorial. I pay for the space occupied, as a matter of business, and have done so since the paper was started.

I do believe in Economy, and in that connection I believe the true way to encourage the same is to let each person take advantage of close competition, buy what he wants in the closest market. Hence the desire to put before the public my business in a business way, uninfluenced by any unauthorized "editorial" comment. I do not claim to be the only Tailor, nor to do all the Business. I do not advertise anything which is not so, nor will I be a party to any deceit for gain of any sort.

My store is open for Business during Business Hours, and whilst always pleased to see Visitors and use them well, I wish to put Business first and desire to serve primarily those who want Honest goods at honest prices, and who are willing to transact their Business in an expeditious manner.

A complete stock of everything pertaining to a first-class Tailoring and furnishing establishment will always be found on my counters. Prices and workmanship guaranteed.

Many Lawrence people took advantage of the electric cars and spent Sunday in Andover.

On account of the new building, the position of the foot-ball field has been changed.

Several promising men came out for the first time Monday afternoon to try for the team.

Campbell, F. A. '90, Williams '94, stopped in Andover for a few days before going to Williams, which begins to-morrow.

Lakeman, P.A. '88, is again captain of the Dartmouth foot-ball eleven, and Weston, P.A. '89, is playing again half-back.

W. A. Perrin, P.A. '87, Rochester University '91, one of the proprietors of the electric railway, was in town Monday.

Every new fellow should commit the cheers to memory and be able to use them this afternoon. It is of vital importance that we be able to out-cheer Exeter, and good cheering during the practice games always encourages the men.

The academic year at Yale University opens at New Haven on the 24th and the number of men attending will be very much augmented. The total number of students in all departments of the university will not, according to a member of the faculty, fall much below 1800. Last year the total was 1645. — Ex.
