Communications.

Editors of The Phillipian:

Every year more or less complaint is heard about the way in which the school reading room is managed, and there is generally good reason for complaining. This year, however, the committee has made great improvements and less fault can be found than ever before. But there is one serious cause of complaint, and one which ought to be corrected. The binders that are provided for the periodicals, lose their usefulness for keeping the papers in good condition for the fellows who bought them, when the papers are not fastened in them, as is very often the case. If this were remedied, the reading room would be as good a one as it is possible to have one in the present quarters.

Editors of The Phillipian:

Organization assures the success of undertakings. Games between the house and street teams have been undertaken; to assure a successful series of games, now organization is needed. Therefore it is the desire of the undersigned that a meeting of the managers of the various teams be held and a schedule of games be arranged, to be played for the school championship.

"FOOT-BALL PROMOTERS."

The Lecture.

The first lecture of the People's Course was given in the Town Hall on Monday evening by the Rev. Francis Bellamy, on the subject, "How many Angels can live on the point of a Needle?" We found on looking about us that there was a large number out to hear what was to be said on this strange subject. The lecture proved to be on the general subject of social economy. He began by giving a description of the factory girls of thirty years ago, showing that they were from the houses of the American farmer, mechanic and minister. He also told of the interest then taken in the moral and intellectual culture of the girls, and of a magazine published by them of so great merit as to call forth the praise of Charles Dickens. The now famous Lucy Larcom was none other than one of the girls that contributed to their magazine. The factory was then an avenue to a fuller and broader life to the young women of New England. Then followed the condition of her sister of the present day in contrast with the past. The difference proved to be greater than we are wont to think. Now she forms a class with but little hope of emerging from it. The special current is against her and she is reduced to the level of the machinery with which she works.

The speaker then for the first time referred to the words of his subject, when he said that conventions and sermons rarely face the great issues of the day, but like the churchmen of the middle ages, while discussing how many angels can live on the point of a needle, thousands are being trodden under foot by the competitive system of this age. He gave accounts of visits made to the tenement districts of Boston, describing the condition of the occupants, telling how, through the sweepers and middle-men, these people are made to labor unceasingly for a mere pittance. The speaker was eloquent in his praise of the moral heroism exhibited by many of the women in such circumstances. He claimed that the industrial systems must be so changed as to do away with competition where only the fittest survive, for Christianity means a lift for the unfittest. He did not think that individual efforts alone would avail much but that the entire competitive system must be attacked and abolished. In speaking of the great sums spent in entertaining by the wealthier class, he said, "it becomes a moral question how a man spends his money while other men are perishing." He gave the law of love as a remedy for the present evils, believing that the time is coming when men will live as brothers if we believe God's promises.

Foot Ball at Yale.

Yale's prospects for the championship are much brighter this fall than at the same time last year. Her scores against the smaller colleges are much larger, and her general play is much better. Although somewhat weak at centre, she has two guards that can be relied upon, and there are promising candidates for the other positions in the rush-line. The backs are all that could be desired. The following men were sent to the training table Thursday: McClung, '92; L. T. Bliss, '93 S. and Dyer, '95, half-backs; Noyes, '92 and Norton, L. S. full-backs; Barbour, '92 S. and McCormick, '93 S. quarter-backs; Hartwell, M. S., and Crosby, '92, ends; Wallis, '93, Winter, '93 S. and Mills, '93, tackles; Heflinger, P. G., left guard; Stillman, '94 S. Paine, '94, and Sanford, '94 S. centres. S. Morrison will return to college later and probably play guard as he did last year. Jenkins, '94, is playing right guard, but has not been taken to the training table.

The Second Eleven.

A meeting of candidates for the second eleven, together with the Capt. and managers of the first eleven, was held in Society Hall at noon on Saturday last. The object of the meeting was to re-organize and get together as strong a scrub team as possible. Capt. Hopkins after dwelling at some length upon the advantages received by the first eleven in practising with a strong team every night, appointed Johnstone P.A. '92, to organize and captain such a team. The management also stated, that each member of the eleven is to be given, either a sweater of the best quality or a pair of shoes, provided we win the Exeter game and there is money enough in the treasury. The team will also be taken to see a Yale-Harvard or Princeton-Harvard football game.

Re-Endowment of Phillips Academy.

Last Sunday morning at the Chapel Prot. Taylor preached a sermon of unusual interest to the members of the Academy and its friends. His topic was "The claims of the Christian Academy upon the Church," and in opening he showed that the claim of the Academy is based upon work accomplished and service done.

"Phillips Academy," he said, "is a dyke against impunity of mind, a nursery of fidelity, self-sacrifice and faith." In this secular age which seeks to drown out what is cultured, what is pure and what is true, Phillips Academy is doing a grand work. Then comparing the Academy with the college, he showed that it is the chief feeder and main reliance of the latter and said that the colleges were coming to see that in self-defense they must aid in equipping the academies.

"The chief danger of our churches to-day," he said, "is an illiterate ministry: two-fifth of our seminary graduates are not college graduates."

The Academy offers the chief remedy for this condition for in the Christian Academy the student gains the highest ideals of Christian life and thought. Phillips Academy is in a special sense the child of the church, nurtured in Christian thought, enriched with Christian traditions. "The church ought to give to Phillips Academy, as her child, half a million dollars. She can give it and I am convinced she will give it."

The Phillipian will be issued every Wednesday and Saturday during the school year except in vacation.

All communications must be accompanied by the writer's full name and address, not necessarily for publication unless so desired.

Communications may be addressed to the Phillipian, Andover, Mass., or dropped in the Phillipian box placed in the main hall of the Academy building.

The editors do not hold themselves responsible for the opinions of any correspondent.

Phillipian board meetings are held Wednesday and Saturday noons.

Entered as second-class matter at the Andover Post Office.

THE ANDOVER PRESS, PRINTERS.

The remarks of the leader of the cheering staff, made last Friday morning concerning cheering, seemed to have produced the desired effect, for there was a marked improvement in that respect at the game in the afternoon; in fact, in several instances, the cheering was nearly equal to that at the Andover-Exeter base-ball game last spring. This is encouraging, and all that is needed to surpass last spring's work in this line, is to be on hand and to cheer at every game between now and Nov. 14.

For the first time since the foot-ball season opened, it is necessary to criticise the behavior of the students toward the visiting team during the progress of the game. There is no doubt that the jeering and hissing had its origin in the manner in which the visitors acted during the game; but, because those who come as representatives of college life cease to act as gentlemen, that is no sufficient excuse for our departing from a truly gentlemanly conduct. Phillips has the reputation of being courteous to those who come to give us training in our athletic work, and we are sure that, if a little fore thought be taken in this matter, there will be no further occasion to refer to it again.

In Friday's game Amherst had the advantage of us in being able to line up much quicker than the home team; but, although her rush-line was much heavier, our line showed that at critical times it had the ability to hold Amherst's line, and prevent gain through the centre when near our goal. Now that the second team is formally organized, we shall look for a general improvement in all the nice points of the game, because of the opportunities of constant and steady practice during the remaining weeks.

The sermon of Prof. Taylor of which other mention is made in this issue is a timely expression of the needs and claims of the Academy. There are a great many new fellows in school who, doubtless, are ignorant of the movement inaugurated last Spring for Phillips re-endowment and but few of us realize the magnitude of the movement because we fail to perceive the importance, vastness, of the influence which Phillips Academy yields in the educational movements of the country. The movement for Phillips' re-endowment is no spasmodic and separate action, but at once a sign of, and in union with the great revival of interest in educational institutions now moving the country. The members of the school last year did nobly, raising by personal subscription $1600 as a nucleus for a new gym. fund. It remains for the new fellows to do equally well when the opportunity is offered.

In answer to the communication concerning the reading room, we would say that the recent copies of the magazines and papers were not fastened in the binders, because most of them were sent away to be reduced in size, so that they would not be so bulky and unhandy. We should like to suggest, however, that the one who has charge of the room, give a little more attention to keeping it somewhat warmer than has been given to it heretofore.

Foot Ball Notes.

Cumnock, of last year's Harvard eleven, who has spent the summer abroad, is expected back in a short time and will help to coach the Harvard eleven.

Gilbert of Technology is everywhere regarded as an admirable end rush.

P. J. Hannon's line of stylish, winter-weight woolens is superb.

Bowdoin has left the minor foot-ball league and Stevens Institute has been taken back again. They were dropped last year to make room for Bowdoin.

Call and see Hannon's samples of coats, trousers and waistcoats.

Harvard men regard Exeter as fairly strong and believe they will make a pretty formidable team.

The laundry done at Hannon's Tailoring store cannot be excelled. He not only promises to replace lost goods but actually does it.

Yale men predict a glorious future at "end" for Hinkey.

Yale men, Harvard men, Princeton men, and members of every other college in the country, who fitted at Andover are unanimous in the opinion that P. J. Hannon is making the most stylish and most durable of clothes and at a low price.
