VOL. XIV.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY, ANDOVER, MASS., JUNE 28, 1892

NO. 71.

Philo Exhibition.

The exhibition held last evening by the Philomathean Society adds another to their long list of annual entertainments. The character and worth of the literary work presented does not, perhaps, suffer in comparison with that of former years, but in many cases insufficient preparation was plainly visible, costing heavily in the estimation of the audience. By request of Pres. Geo. H. Nettleton Rev. Dr. Tucker, P.A. '29, offered prayer.

F. C. Hoffman and L. T. Hildreth were the contestants in declamation. Hoffman spoke creditably the poem "Virginia" by Macaulay. Hildreth rendered "War and Its Reminiscences" in his familiar manner. Geo. E. Merriam chose "Every Day Aesthetics" as his subject and showed careful research and deep study. Geo. H. McClellan was the other orator chosen by the society and spoke upon the suggestive topic, "Owest Thou ought." A. E. Branch, S. C. Hoffman, G. H. McClellan followed with extemporaneous addresses. Each spoke well and at length on the subjects assigned. The President's address was a finely prepared paper and admirably rendered. The topic was, "The Advantages of Good Reading."

The best of the evening was found in the debate where each speaker earned hearty applause. Messrs. W. T. B. Williams, A. E. Branch supported the affirmative, and Messrs. C. P. Kitchel, W. P. Duffy the negative of the question. Resolved: "That Capital Punishment be abolished." At the close of the debate the committee of award, Profs. Pettec, Stone and Mr. Robinson, announced the following as their decision: first, declamation, L. T. Hildreth; oration, G. H. McClellan; extemporaneous speaking, first G. H. McClellan (this prize should have been given to Hoffman as McClellan won it last year); second, L. C. Hoffman. Debate, first, G. P. Kitchel; second, A. E. Branch. The Andover Orchestra furnished music.

Baccalaureate Sermon.

Prof. Moore of the Theological Seminary preached the baccalaureate sermon to '92 on Sunday afternoon, taking for his text the words of Paul, "Desire earnestly the Greatest Gifts." The gifts of nature and of grace are not all alike or equal. We can have the best only by seeking it. It is a great art to know how to proportion one's efforts to the end in view. In education many miss the greatest gifts. First of all the advantage of education is discipline. Its highest end is to gain the highest efficiency of all one's mental powers. The next end to be sought is knowledge, and knowledge means, not an acquaintance with the greatest possible number of facts, but the power to learn, to combine and to use facts. But education implies more than discipline, more than knowledge, it implies culture. Culture is not a mere veneer of accomplishments. Its end is complete symmetry of mind and life. Culture in its purity does not exist without goodness. Paul says the way of love is the way of true culture. Jesus Christ is still the model of culture for the world. "The World's First Gentleman."

To the class he said you have come to a landmark of your course to which you have long looked forward and you are rightly glad in it. You look forward now to a new part of life. I congratulate you on your progress. I congratulate you on your opportunity. You are now to enter upon a freer, larger life; upon greater responsibilities. You are going to make men of yourselves. That is something which no one can do for you. Go then and may you have large success. And take with you these words of Paul, as brave and cultivated a gentleman as ever lived, "Stand, therefore; be men! be strong!"

English Commons.

The deciding game in the championship series of the different streets and commons was played Saturday between E. C. and Morton St. English Commons won by a score of 4-1 in five innings. The game was well played, E. C. coming off without any errors. The batteries were Pardee, Smith and Lang for Morton St.; Hazen and Sleeper for E. C. The series stand, E. C. first, Phillips St. second and Morton St. third. None of the remaining teams have had any victories.

Ivy Song.

Parting Ode.

By Archer Tyler Robinson, Pomfret, Conn.

AIR.—"Flemming."

Old Phillips, guide of all our youth,
Wear thou thy brightest smile to-day;
Speed those whom thou hast reared in truth
Forth on their glad some way.

Dear Phillips, oft thy praise is sung
By lips more worthy, more inspired;
But from our deepest love have sprung
Songs by thy grandeur fired.

Come, then, and bless us ere we part,
Leaving thy freedom, friendship, peace;
May hope now strong in every heart
All through the years increase.

Light of our lives, farewell, farewell!
Constant our faith in joy or care;
Deep in these loving hearts shall dwell
Truths thou has nurtured there.

Ivy Song.

Hail, long expected, final day,
Reward of toil and strife!
Thy parting pang must ebb away
In joys of new-sprung life,
To keep thy memory ever bright,
We plant our ivy here,
Dear scenes that helped us grow aright,
Our tender love-vine rear.

O ivy, still thou lov'st to twine
O'er ancient walls and hoar;
So love shall cling, a tender vine,
To tho'ts and haunts of yore.
O ivy pale, thou lov'st to climb
Toward heavenly light and air;
So hope is buoyed on wings sublime,
And fancied days gleam fair.

While summer lingers, and our hearts
Can still beat full and free,
Each tho't of love or power that starts
Shall find its springs in thee.
When autumn's glories crown thine end,
We'll know, tho' hope has fled,
The soul that bitters sorrows rend
Its brightest beams may shed.

Naples and Vesuvius.

Professor Comstock closed his series of illustrated lectures, Thursday night, with an intensely interesting one upon Naples and its vicinity. The whole lecture touched upon points with which most students are familiar, and the views were remarkable for novelty and beauty. The beautiful Bay of Naples was first shown in several views, accompanied with a map and description of the surrounding places, Capua, Caprea and Vesuvius. Journeying northwards, the points of interest about Capua were shown, especially the Amphitheatre of Spartacus. Following were more Neapolitan views, including the reputed tomb of Virgil. Vesuvius was next the subject of a number of views, those of the eruption of 1872 being especially interesting. An account of the ascent and descent of the mountain and the accompanying dangers was given.

The greater part of the evening was spent in Pompeii, and the views of streets temples, courts and houses were made doubly interesting by the constant flow of historical anecdote concerning them. The speaker often alluded to the "Last Days of Pompeii," and showed several scenes around which the action of the book centres, the Egyptian temple of Isis, the houses of Diomed and Pansa and the Theatre. Pompeian houses were explained and views of interiors, wall paintings and finishings, taken from the ruins and from modern paintings, showed the elegance with which they were fitted up. The lecture was brought to a close by a selection from Bulwer.

The Forum.

The weekly meeting of the Forum was held in Room No. 3, Friday, at 7 o'clock, vice-president Wyer in the chair. The time was spent in listening to fellows that had applied for admission.

The evening programme opened with an interesting talk on "A Visit to a Woolen Mill" by William Leshner, after which Donald Gordon presented to the listeners "The government of Japan," comparing the old form with the new and pointing out the advantages that the present form has given to the people. The speech was written with care and showed that the speaker was well acquainted with the subject. Fitts then gave a description of "A Cane Rush," explaining the advantages and disadvantages that accompany such sport. W. D. Weed followed with an interesting talk on "Beauties of Nature." The last in order was "Literary Work of Phillips" by Glynn. He gave a careful review of the past year which was well received by the audience.

The meeting adjourned until the 27th inst.

THE ANDOVER PRESS, PRINTERS.

The school takes this opportunity to acknowledge its indebtedness to Mr. John N. Cole for the plans of the athletic building which he so kindly presented, and to return to him its sincere thanks.

The time is now at hand when it is the custom to take a look backward and to make a general summary of the school year. In the cases of many there are reasons for much satisfaction no doubt. Those who cannot feel thus we hope and believe are few. But whatever may be the individual records, that of the school as a whole at any rate brings pleasure to the hearts of all connected with Phillips.

This year has witnessed the largest enrollment ever made in the history of the Academy. The number of men leaving us for college this year will also exceed that of any previous year, and this means that Andover will have a larger representation in the Freshmen classes than any other preparatory school.

This year will also be marked by the added importance given to the study of English throughout the school as well as by the rapid steps taken in erecting new buildings for both academic and dormitory purposes. Our new science building justly calls forth much admiration and praise, while the new dormitories will fill a long-felt want. The school has also taken into its hands the publication of the Mirror after exchanging it from a termly to a monthly publication. The change in the literary character has met with a response which promises well and places the publication among the foremost of its class. A new literary society has also been formed and is doing excellent work in its line.

In athletics our career has been unparalleled. Our successes, though many, have not been altogether easy victories.

This latter thought must be remembered in preparing for future encounters if we would maintain our present record. That track athletics are gaining a stronger hold is proven by the added attention paid to that branch of athletics and especially in the erection of a house for the accommodation of the participants.

One loss, however, we must bear, in the departure of Professors Coy, Comstock and Gile. Although this will cause much regret, we need not despair as has already been well said elsewhere. Their successors will no doubt be competent men, so the loss will be less felt.

In this issue we say farewell to '92 and exhort '93 to equal, and if possible, excel them.

Prof. Coy's Successor,

The Trustees of Phillips Academy have elected Mr. Clifford Herschel Moore as Professor of Greek to succeed Professor Coy. Prof. Moore has been teaching the last three years in the Belmont School in California, of which ex-President Reid of the University of California is the Principal, and he made a distinguished record as a scholar and teacher there. His creditionals are of the highest character as regards his attainments, his aptness to teach, his devotion to his work, and the hold he has upon the confidence and regard of his pupils. He graduated at Harvard in 1889, having received honorable mention in Latin, second year honors in classics, final honors in classics, and the Latin salutatory at Commencement. He was an editor of the Harvard Monthly, and a member of the Everett Athenaeum, the Natural History Society, the Phi Beta Kappa, the Pierian Sodality, the Signet, and other college organizations.

Andover had a notable visit on Tuesday from an "old Phillips boy"—in fact one of the very oldest boys—Samuel Newman of Peabody. He entered the Academy in 1823, nearly 70 years ago. Although in his eighty-third year, he is hale and hearty, and climbed the stairs to Academy Hall, recognizing readily the portraits of teachers and students of that olden time, and enjoyed especially going to the old Academy—the "Gym"—where he studied with Ray Palmer, Oliver Wendell Holmes and other well known "boys," and where he pointed out "the masters' thrones" and the platform on which he spoke his first piece. He could not find the old farm-house on the site of Professor Tucker's residence where he boarded, but was glad to see "Squire Farrar's" house, though on a different site from that of his time.

Camera Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the Camera Club took place on Wednesday and Thursday of last week and was very well attended. The Physical Laboratory had been fitted up for the purpose with black screens extending the length of the room and served for the purpose very well. As a rule, the pictures were on exhibition for the first time and were very good. Some five hundred were shown of all sizes, ranging from small Kodak views to 8x10 groups. No one individual exhibit was better than another, although Mills and Hooker made fine showings, but all were excellent and deserve much praise.

Mack '94 and Johnson '93 of the committee deserve most credit for the success of the affair. Recently, Andover was represented by an exhibit at the New England Camera Club Exhi-

Fashions for Men.

The new styles in woollens are now opened on our counters, ready for early selections. Gentlemen who appreciate the advantage of a selection before the assortment is broken and the extra attention to be obtained by an early order, are invited to inspect our selections for spring.
