

The Phillipian.

Vol. XV.

Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., Oct. 22, 1892.

No. 10.

Communication.

Editors of the Phillipian:

Since the states west of the Alleghenies are so well represented in school this year, why would it not be a good plan to form a "Western Club," such as the ones which have been so popular at the eastern colleges? Exeter has had a successful one for several years, and Yale and Harvard have them, but under different names. Its purpose could either be literary or merely social, as its members decide, and it would certainly tend to join the men from the west more closely than they are at present.

WESTERNER.

Phillips St. vs. Morton St.

Tuesday-afternoon Phillips Street played her first game of the season, defeating Salem Street, on the Salem Street campus, to the tune of 8 to 2. Phillips Street made both her touchdowns by long rushes around the ends, which were Salem Street's weak points. Hickman and Belknap played well for Phillips Street, while Smyth, Huiskamp, and Hibbard put up good games for Salem Street.

P. A. 4; Brown University 6.

The contest on Wednesday between the Academy eleven and Brown University was certainly the most interesting and hardest fought match of the season. On account of Capt. Hopkins' absence Jennings captained the team, infusing much life into the men, making many fine tackles himself, and after receiving some small injuries was finally carried off the field just as time was called. Holt did his best work of the season, anticipating a little, however, and wasting energy which might have been saved. The guards and tackles were almost evenly matched in playing, although there seemed to be more holes for Brown men than for Andover. The half-backs acquitted themselves with credit, the most brilliant work being performed by Millard, yet Manning's playing was very fine.

Brown played mostly a centre game while most of Andover's gain was made by end work, the criss-cross entering into the efficiency of such work. Probably the good work of our ends compelled Brown to depend on centre work. The great slowness of lining-up and the continual talking of Brown men outside of the captain were irritating factors which might have been remedied.

The greater part of the game was taken up in exchanging the ball on four downs and on fumbles and all the playing was between the 25-yard lines. The features were the long runs of Bliss, Manning, and Millard, the tackling of Jennings and Chadwell, and the work of Brown's half-backs.

The teams lined up as follows:

BROWN.		PHILLIPS
Casey,	} Rushers	Hinkey,	} Jennings.
Tobin,		Rodgers,
Hastings,		Sturgis,
Lancey,		Holt,
Smith,		Murray,
Chamberlain,	} Quarter-backs	Uffenheimer,	} Greenway.
Drawbridge,		Chadwell,
Matterson,	} Half-backs	Manning	} Bliss, Millard.
Marvel,		Bliss, Millard.
McCarthy,
Gilbert,	} Full-backs
Straight,

Score 6 to 4. Touchdowns; Tobin 1, Manning 1. Goals from touchdowns; Drawbridge 1. Umpire, McCandless. Referee, Howland.

The New Dormitories.

The Taylor Cottage, which is now in use, was the first of the four new dormitories intended to be built. It serves somewhat as a model for the rest.

The Draper Cottage, now being built on the site of the old second house, English Commons, will be exactly like the one mentioned above and will be ready for occupancy in January. It is the gift of Mr. W. F. Draper of Andover, who has remembered the school in other ways, also.

The Andover Cottage will be ready for use by Christmas. This is the largest of the four and has a much more pleasing exterior than they. There will be but little difference in the interior. One difference is that there will be two single rooms and the second floor as well as the one fitted for the teacher who will room there. One of the small rooms will be for the janitor. On the third floor there will be a hall-bedroom for a single occupant, with the other two rooms according to the usual plan. The hot water system of heating will be used.

The Bancroft Cottage stands to the east of the Andover Cottage, which is situated upon the street proposed to connect the upper and lower campus, passing in the rear of Prof. Tucker's lot. It will be when finished of the old Colonial style, with a one-story gambrel roof. The entrance will be from a large square porch, with high seats on each side, into a large hall.

The rooms on the first floor will be after the pattern of those in the Taylor Cottage. On the second floor the teacher's suite will be the room on the north-east, together with the hall bed-room. Back of the professor's study will be two rooms, a study and a bed-room, for a single boy. On the third floor the hall and bed-room will be given to the janitor. The crowning feature of these rooms is that the window looking towards the east will have a deep window seat, with a bookcase and cupboard on either side. This building will be completed in the early winter.

Harvard '95 50; P. A. 0.

All hope engendered by Wednesday's game received a damper in the match with Harvard '95 Friday. After the favorable showing made by our men against Brown, much was expected in this game, but all expectations quickly fell. True, the presence of Wrenn at quarter was missed to a great degree, but the immense falling off can be attributed to nothing but poor playing. Harvard's playing was certainly of the finest possible kind, both science and strength running up the largest score of the season upon the home team. Their backs worked as a unit and the brilliant runs around the end by Jackson and Adams aided by the best of interference was as clever ball playing as has been seen on the campus this year. Wrenn did some fine tackling, as did also Richardson. Andover's backs did absolutely no team work, every man striving for himself, and the numerous tackles made behind her line were sufficient testimony to the weakness of her men in the line. J. Bliss excelled in tackling, but a general confusion of the signals took the lustre from the playing of the Andover backs. Rodgers captained the men in the absence of Capt. Hopkins.

The teams lined up as follows:

HARVARD.		ANDOVER.
Hartwell,	} Rushers	Hinkey	} A. H. Bliss.
Wadsworth,		Rodgers.
Pierce, Cooke		Sturgis,
Grant,		Holt,
Doucette,		Murray,
Murchie,		Uffenheimer,
Telle,		Jones.
Richardson,	} Quarter-backs,		} Millard, Manning.
Wrenn,		A. H. Bliss.
Adams,	} Half-backs		} J. Bliss.
Jackson,
Raymond,	} Full-backs,		} Manning,
		Greenway.

Score 50-0. Touchdowns; Adams (4), Jackson (4), Raymond. Goals; Adams (7). Referee, S. T. Eddy. Umpire, Wm. Odlin.

Address.

Mr. A. A. Freeman of the faculty, at the request of that body, addressed the school on the morning of Columbus Day. He began by reviewing the conditions of Europe at the period just preceding the discovery of America, and told of the invention of printing and the commercial importance of Venice and Genoa. Then followed short accounts of the superstitions of the time among seamen and the theory of the earth's sphericity as entertained by Columbus. The idea was not original with him, for it dates back to the times of Plato, Pythagoras, and of Cicero and Seneca. An Italian poet was cited as prophesying the world's now well-known shape. Columbus, himself, acknowledged his acquaintance with these ideas. Marco Polo's travels had much to do with inciting Columbus to his undertaking. The question of the Norse discoveries was next considered. Whatever they achieved, their labors were barren of results, and to Columbus must remain the honor of opening up the new world to civilization. He demonstrated the theorem proposed only by many others. The speaker destroyed the romance attached to the old tower at Newport by attributing its erection to the early English settlers.

That the students were well pleased with the address was shown by the hearty applause given Mr. Freeman at the close of his remarks. Three times three for Columbus was then given.

Princeton's Foot-Ball Schedule.

The Princeton foot-ball management has announced the following schedule of games for the remainder of the season:

Oct. 22, Crescents, at Brookline; Oct. 26, Manhattan Athletic Club, at Princeton; Oct. 29, Wesleyan (championship), at New York; Nov. 2, Chicago's Athletic Club, at Princeton; Nov. 5, University of Pennsylvania (championship), at Philadelphia; Nov. 9, Cornell, at New York; Nov. 24, Yale (championship), at New York.

Chicago University's Big Telescope.

The Chicago University has the promise of the most powerful, as well as the largest telescope in the world. Mr. Alvin G. Clark will cast the lens, which will be forty-five inches in diameter. This is eleven inches larger than that of the Lick telescope. The entire cost will be $500,000.

The Andover Press.

We had occasion to congratulate ourselves at the opening of the year upon the outlook for good men to fill the places upon the PHILLIPPIAN board. We are by no means discouraged for some of the men have done very well. The class which ought to be making the best showing, however, is being surpassed by the others. '94 has too small a representation already and unless she makes some greater effort to increase it, she will find herself entirely outmembered by the under-classes before the year has passed. This may not appeal to her very strongly now, but it will be entirely contrary to all precedent for a class not to have a controlling influence on the board by the end of the winter term of its middle year. The outlook for '94 is just this at present. We shall have an election within a few weeks. In the meantime we shall wait to hear what '94 has to say for herself.

We call the attention of the school to the reading by Mr. Cable, on Monday evening. All the fellows who remember hearing him in the Town Hall year before last will agree with us in considering this opportunity to hear him a rare treat. His works are in themselves of a high order, and having them interpreted by their author will lend an additional attraction. Mr. Cable is one of the foremost depicitors of that phase of character with which he mostly deals, and an opportunity to hear him ought not to be lost. Dr. Bancroft's advice about hearing famous men is very applicable in this case.

Among the auxiliaries to our school life none has exerted greater power in building the characters of the fellows here than Inquiry. It is thoroughly unsectarian, as broad as the life which supports it, and which it in turn represents. Inquiry has been, in the main, free from cant and hypocrisy; it has fostered a manly form of religious life; has been truly christian. Its influence has been largely due to the kindly tolerant spirit which has always existed in this society.

Now, then, to the new men Inquiry offers a cordial welcome, and adds an earnest request for their interest. The school expects you to be Phillips boys all round, as much in religious as in athletic interests.

Chicago University.

One hundred young men and women living in Chicago have taken the entrance examinations at Chicago University, the majority being pupils of the various high schools. In addition to the resident students, 500 others from all parts of the country who wish to take special courses have engaged rooms in private families. The apartments of the graduate and divinity dormitories, accommodating 200 men, are all taken. The Drexel, the undergraduate men's dormitory, with rooms for 70, is filled, and in the Hotel Beatrice, the women's dormitory, with accommodations for 100, nearly every room is engaged. The university commons, with accommodations for 400, have been opened, and are already liberally patronized. Most of the professors have arrived, and the system of instruction will soon be set in motion.—Ex.

Princeton's Field House.

The new athletic building now open to the students is a model of its kind, thoroughly furnished with all the conveniences that can aid the athlete. A broad porch faces the track. On either-side of the hallway are two large rooms provided with lockers and benches. The room on the right of the entrance is devoted to the base-ball men and contains 112 lockers. The room on the left is used by the football men and contains 99 lockers.
There is also a large bath room on this floor; the showers are lined with copper and furnish hot and cold spray or salt water baths. In the basement the track athletic men have a large room containing 54 lockers. Baths like those on the first floor are also at their disposal. On the second story are several rooms that may be used as occasion demands. The building is a handsome brick structure, and the interior finish is in Georgia pine with hard oak trimmings. This great addition to Princeton's athletic facilities will do doubt attract a larger number of candidates for the respective teams.
