Lawrenceville.

Lawrenceville, the largest preparatory school in the Middle States, and the largest one of its kind in the United States, is situated in the small town of Lawrenceville, N. J. This town is about six miles from Trenton, and, therefore, some fifty-six miles from New York. Princeton is five miles away, and through these two cities is the only exit from Lawrenceville to the outside world. Transportation is done by means of carriages and by two stages which run to Trenton twice a day. There is no regular communication between Lawrenceville and Princeton. An electric road from Trenton out is contemplated, which, if it is ever finished, will be a great addition to the school.

The town of Lawrenceville scarcely deserves the name. There are about six stores, all of them directly in front of the school property, and the houses which are very few are spread far and wide in the adjoining country. Back in Revolutionary War times we find that Washington stopped one night at Lawrenceville, and about the beginning of the nineteenth century we learn that a school was founded there for teaching boys business pursuits. This school kept up with changing fortunes under the name of the Hamill Commercial and Business School until 1883 when John C. Green gave a large sum of money for the founding of a great school at Lawrenceville, his old home. The Hamill School was stopped, and work was immediately begun on the new foundation. The first class was graduated in 1884, and the school has steadily increased since that time, and in 1888 there were one hundred and seventy-two students enrolled, last year the total enrollment being nearly three hundred.

There are two things about Lawrenceville which at once strike the prospective student, the house system, and the system of conducting athletics. Both are run in a manner peculiarly their own, and a few words in detail about them may be of interest to our readers.

Every fellow who goes to Lawrenceville from outside has to room in one of eleven houses. Of these, seven are on the school grounds and four are on the main street adjacent. Six of the seven houses on the grounds are built of brick and are very handsome buildings. The seventh is the old Hamill school-house which has been fitted up well and is a very desirable place. The four outside the grounds are not so good. Each one of these eleven houses has a master in it, and it is in this that Lawrenceville differs so much from the other large preparatory schools. These masters have full control over the boys in their respective houses. They give them their excuses, see that they are in their rooms at the specified times, conduct prayers every evening, and give money orders to the fellows on the Bursar. This Bursar has the control of the money of nearly all the fellows, and whenever anyone wants to get anything, he has to go to his house master and get an order on the Bursar for the money to pay for it. Each master is allowed so much money to support his house.

Last year a new dormitory, called the Upper House, was started for the sole use of the graduating class. In this house there are rooms for seventy-five boys, and a large dining-hall where they can eat together. There is no master living in it, who has direct supervision over the house, but the head master of the school performs this duty. The fellows in this house have much more freedom than in the others, consequently, it is the most desirable place in school.

Athletics at Lawrenceville are compulsory; that is, every fellow has to play some out-of-door sport, except in winter, and then everybody has to go into the gymnasium excepting the men trying for the base-ball team. There are seven foot-ball fields for those who wish to play foot-ball, five base-ball fields, and twenty-five or more tennis courts. So it can be seen that every one has a fine chance to play something. Fellows when they start playing foot-ball or base-ball are put on the field where the players are about their size, and as they grow larger and know more about the game they are promoted from one field to another, until they get on the second or first teams. The first teams sometimes are almost entirely chosen from the second team of the year before. Every fellow in school has to give five dollars for athletics, and by means of this money all the athletic expenses are defrayed.

Memorial Hall, where the recitations are held, is a large brownstone building, erected as a memorial to John C. Green, and is without doubt the handsomest school building in this country.

Tennis Association.

At a meeting of the Tennis Association Monday noon the following officers were elected to serve next year: President, Crawford, '96; vice-president, Day, '95; secretary, Field, '95; treasurer, Davis, '95; directors, Grosz, '95, Twitchell, '95, T. Kearny, '95.

Yale's Crew.

The candidates for the Yale Varsity crew of 1894 were notified to appear at the gymnasium Saturday, Jan. 13. Of last year's eight, three men, Ives, Gallaudet and Van Hynch, have graduated, and Goetchius will not row an account of extra studies. At present the outlook for a good crew is gloomy, and when the annual story, to the effect that "Bob" Cook will be unable to coach the crew is heard, Yale will be without hope.

However, it is as yet too early to foresee what material the freshman class will furnish and what oarsmen the class crews will produce. Two new shells have been ordered from Waters, the Troy boat-builder. An innovation in them is the substitution of aluminum, for wooden, braces.

Foot-Ball League.

The triangular foot-ball league, consisting of Williams, Dartmouth and Amherst, has adopted new regulations regarding the teams and the general play. They provide that the students of the Dartmouth Medical College shall be excluded, and that no post-graduate, nor any graduate, unless he has attended recitations at least twelve hours a week for a year, shall play on any team in the championship games. Moreover, no student will be allowed to play more than four years.

To Practice Batters.

Captain Steere of Brown has a new invention which it is expected will greatly aid him in turning out strong batters for this year's team. It consists of a piece of rope, one end of which is tied around the batter's left leg and the other end is fastened to a peg in the ground. This is to break the men from the bad habit of stepping back when the ball is pitched up, and already is producing good effects.

Banjo Club.

M. T. Clark, '94, has resigned the leadership of the Banjo Club and has been elected president. V. M. Tyler, '94, succeeds him as leader.

Harvard-Yale Debate.

Preparations for the Harvard-Yale debate, to take place at Sanders' Theatre in Cambridge, Friday, have been going on for some time, and the chief details have been arranged. The question is: Resolved, "That independent action in politics is preferable to party allegiance." Yale has the affirmative and Harvard the negative, with the restrictions that parties shall be considered as necessary. Some officer of Harvard will probably preside. The three judges selected are Gen. Francis A. Walker, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mr. Carl Schurz of New York, and Prof. E. J. James of the University of Pennsylvania.

Pains will be taken to make the minor details of the debate better than usual. The debaters will be allowed but fifteen minutes each, and there will be an admission fee of 25 cents charged, which has been found necessary to meet the somewhat heavy expenses.

Intercollegiate Team Race.

The Boston Athletic Association has sent invitations to the athletic associations of Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania and Princeton, to send teams to compete in a relay race at the annual meeting of the association in Mechanics Hall, Feb. 10. Harvard and Pennsylvania have already accepted, and it is hoped that Yale will do likewise. Mr. Graham, the B. A. A. manager, has not yet heard from Princeton.

At the same meeting there will be team races between Amherst and Dartmouth; M. I. T. and Brown; Boston College and Holy Cross; and the B. A. A. and the N. Y. A. C., and in addition to these special attractions, the following open events:

Potato race (scratch); 40 yds. dash for novices (scratch); three standing jumps (1 ft. limit); 40 yds. dash (9 ft. limit); 1 mile run (80 yds. limit); 45 yds. high hurdle race (9 ft. limit); 600 yds. run (30 yds. limit); 1 mile walk (45 seconds limit).

Three prizes will be given in each event except the team races. The entries close on Jan. 31.

The Andover Press.

We regret to announce the resignation of S. L. Fuller, P. A. '94, from the PHILLIPIAN Board.

At the last meeting of the Forum a committee was appointed to consider the advisability of having another course of lectures by college presidents, such as was held last year. Forum's public spiritedness won considerable recognition, and all who attended the lectures enjoyed them extremely. It was very unfortunate that the attendance was not larger, as the benefit to students of hearing such prominent educators speak is incalculable. But new ventures are seldom very great successes here, and this was quite a new departure.

However, the interest shown in these lectures last year, although not as great as it should have been, warrants, we think, a repetition of the course, and we sincerely hope that the committee will decide to continue them and that they will become a regular part of our winter entertainments.

Yale's Base-Ball Nine.

Yale's prospects for a winning base-ball nine this year are excellent. The players will begin practice in the new cage next week, but will not do any out-of-door work until after the first of February. Of last year's nine, Murphy, Beall, Kodzie and Bliss have graduated. The pitcher, Carter, is still in college and is likely to have a back-stop who can hold him, as both Greenway, last year's substitute, and F. T. Murphy, who caught here last season, are candidates for the position.

The following men of last year's nine are in college and will play this year: Case, Carter, Rustin, Stephenson, Speer, Hedges, Arbutnot and Davis. All last season's substitutes are also in college and will be candidates again this year. The weak places will probably be second base and short stop, the positions filled respectively last year by Beall and Murphy. However, there is little doubt, barring accidents, that by the Easter recess Yale will have an excellent nine, as after Feb. 24 John Clarkson will have charge of the men, and under him great improvements are sure to be made.

Yale Crew Trophies.

Trophies have just been presented to last year's Yale Varsity crew. They are gold link cuff buttons; one of the links is in the form of a rudder head, and the other is oval in shape with an oar on each side; in the center is the inscription, "Yale vs. Harvard, New London, '93," and also each man's initials.
