Communications.

[Members of the school are invited to contribute to this department, but the editors do not hold themselves responsible for the opinions here expressed.]

Editors of the Phillipian:

It was the custom for Andover to play Exeter for the tennis championship every spring. Now that we are competing with Lawrenceville in athletics, it would be advantageous to play tennis with Lawrenceville as we used to do with Exeter. Why could not their tennis champions meet our champions when their base-ball team comes here to play the championship game in June? This is a matter of school interest and I hope it will be given consideration.

A MEMBER OF THE SCHOOL.

Editors of the Phillipian:

Would it not be possible to form city clubs among the fellows in school? The city clubs at Yale are most successful in promoting friendships and social life among the members, which is kept up with great benefit in the respective cities, after graduating, during vacations, and while at college. There are enough fellows in school from the larger cities to form several of these clubs; and if the clubs were formed they would make the fellows better acquainted when they came to join clubs of the same cities at Yale.

F.

Exeter's Principal Resigns.

Charles E. Fish, the principal of Phillips Exeter Academy, submitted his resignation to Professor Dunbar president of the board of trustees, on March 30, and it was accepted. Mr. Fish has been at the head of the Academy for five years, and his resignation, which will take effect at the close of the school year, is wholly voluntary.

Intercollegiate Cricket.

Negotiations are under way for an international intercollegiate cricket match, between the colleges of the United States and Canada. It is proposed to pick an eleven from the cricketers at Harvard, Pennsylvania and Haverford to compete against a similarly composed Canadian team. The date and place of the match have not yet been definitely decided, but the game will probably be played at Manheim, Philadelphia, during the first week of July.

PRELIMINARY TRACK MEET.

To Take Place Next Wednesday on the Upper Campus.

There will be a preliminary meet for candidates for track honors, one of a series of preliminary meets that will be held every two or three weeks until the spring tournament, next Wednesday, May 1st. at 2 P.M. sharp.

The management urge the necessity of as many entries as possible as they are working hard to develop a winning team. The events are 100 and 220-yard dashes; 220-yard low hurdle; 120-yard high hurdle; 440-yard run; one-half mile run; mile run; 2 mile bicycle race; mile walk; putting the shot; throwing the hammer; pole vault; running high jump and running broad jump. All entries must be left in the Pot Pourri box in the lower hall before 4 P.M. Monday, April 29.

Means Prize Competition.

The twenty-eighth annual competition for the Means prizes for original compositions took place in the upper hall last evening. The contest was fully up to the past ones of this kind, both in literary and elocutionary merit. The hall was crowded with townspeople and friends of the speakers, and at eight o'clock there was hardly a seat left vacant in the hall. The winner of the first prize, Paul Shivell, had written his essay in verse, and delivered it in a very effective manner. The literary merit of it was excellent, and it took very well with the audience. Donald Gordon, the winner of the second prize, showed a thorough knowledge of his subject, and that coupled with a clear, well modulated voice, earned for him his prize. The judges were unanimous in awarding the third prize to Edward T. Noble, both on account of his pleasing delivery, and the literary excellence of his production. Harold P. Bale had an admirably written essay, a very strong voice, and made a very good showing. Laird Easton and Dwight H. Day were both clear, comprehensive speakers, and their compositions were very well arranged. Peter Auten had evidently looked up his subject with great care, and his literary style was very commendable, but his voice seemed to fail him at times. Arthur C. Mack seemed to lack life and animation in his speaking, and Philip G. Carleton's essay, from a literary standpoint, deserved to be ranked among the best. William G. Bale had a most admirably written essay, and had his voice been stronger would doubtless have ranked among the prize winners.

The judges were Rev. F. R. Shipman, B. A., Mr. Allen Latham, B. A., and Mr. William J. Long, B. A.

Andover 8; Haverhill 6.

The home team won the game Wednesday by superior playing. Sedgwick was in the box and acquitted himself with credit. Although the nine made many errors yet they did some good ball playing. Drew's catching, Barton's batting and Clayton's fielding were the especially brilliant parts of the game. The visitors scored three runs in the first inning, two of which came in on Sedgwick's throw over third base, two more in the fifth on a hit and two errors, Dayton making a bad judgment of a line drive, and another in the seventh on a hit and two errors.

The home team were scored as follows: two in the third by bunching three hits; two in the fifth on two hits and an error; one in the seventh on two steals, a hit and a base on balls; and three in the eighth on two hits, an error and a long drive to left field.

Dartmouth, 11; Andover, 5.

The Dartmouth base ball team fresh from the victories over Harvard and Brown defeated Andover only by a narrow margin on the campus, yesterday afternoon.

Greenway was in the box for Andover and pitched a heady game, keeping the hits well scattered except in the eighth when he was hit for five safe hits, including a home run. Drew caught in good shape and did well at the bat in addition to scoring three of the nine runs. Harker played a star game at second and made a circus catch of a foul fly. Barton again showed up in good form at first and his home run to deep right field was one of the features of the game. Sedgwick ran bases in good style and got in two timely singles.

For Dartmouth, McCormack played a brilliant game. Besides leading at the bat and making a home run with three men on bases, he fielded his position in good style and made a difficult catch of a high fly which looked good for two bases.

Andover began well by scoring five runs in the first two innings but was unable to do any further scoring until the seventh, when one run crossed the plate and in the ninth when a final brace was made and three runs came in.

The game was virtually won for Dartmouth in the eighth inning by McCormack's home run with three men on bases.

SATURDAY, APRIL 27, 1895.

The trials for places upon the Draper speaking contest should call out every man interested, for the Means and Draper speakings hold a unique place in Andover life. About them centres a lively interest which has always attracted a large number of contestants. No man should fail to appear on Monday or Wednesday evening because of timidity or lack of forethought.

If city clubs were formed as proposed in the communication published in this number, they would doubtless accomplish much for the social life of the school. There are men coming from the same cities who have no more than a nodding acquaintance and some who are unknown to each other altogether; yet men who have common interests at home are bound to meet, and congenial men easily become acquainted. But furthermore let the writer remember that he proposes to make the school life more complex. There is at present such a diversity of interests in the school that the formation of such clubs, if not a menace to the best progress, is at least a matter not to be undertaken hastily.

School Organizations.

Literary Societies.

The next meeting of Philo and Forum will be a joint debate upon the subject for the Worcester debate. The meeting will be held Tuesday evening in Society hall at seven o'clock.

The Yale Nine.

The Yale nine returned from the southern Easter trip badly crippled. Quimby, Redington, Carter, and Trudeau are suffering from strains and will be kept quiet till they recover. New pitchers will be developed for the games the next two weeks. The fact that the nine lost three out of the seven games played on the trip was largely due to the poor condition of the men.
