ANDOVER DEFEATS HUNTINGTON 5-2

Wight Strikes Out Eleven Men

TEAM PLAYS WELL IN FIRST FULL GAME

Last Saturday afternoon Andover, playing a good brand of baseball, defeated Huntington by a score of 5 to 2. This was really the first time that the school had a chance to see what the team could do, and the results were very satisfactory. Wight's pitching was the feature of the game: during the first three innings he struck out eight men. The other men who played well for Andover were Dann, Durant, and Eddy. Young pitched a good game for Huntington, striking out nine men. McVey, R. Muir, and W. Muir backed him up well. The play by innings:—

FIRST INNING

Wight struck out Jenkins. Breen singled and stole second. McVey and Whittier both struck out. Walker was up for Andover and was put out at first. Clough was walked and then forced out at second by Eddy. On the next play Eddy went to third and Smith's single brought him home. Cummings hit to short and was thrown out at first.

SECOND INNING

Wight pitched beautifully and struck out Beckwith, R. Muir, and Tyler in rapid succession. Young replaced Robinson as pitcher for Huntington. He struck out Durant and Scott, the first two men up. Dann walked and then went to second on Wight's single. Walker fled to center for the third out. Score: Andover 1, Huntington 0.

THIRD INNING

W. Muir received a pass and went to second on Young's sacrifice hit. Jenkins and Breen fanned. Bowlby of Huntington went in at second instead of Tyler. Clough struck out. Eddy was out, catcher to first base. Bowlby threw Smith out at first. Score: Andover 1, Huntington 0.

FOURTH INNING

With McVey out. Whittier was out on a long fly to Eddy. Beckwith singled, but a pretty throw, Dann to Walker, got him at second. Cummings struck out. Durant singled and took second on Scott's single. Dann walked, Durant took third, and Scott second. Wight made a pretty hit and brought in Durant and Scott. Dann went to third, but Wight was put out at second, center field to pitcher to short. Dann came home and Walker got to first on Beckwith's error. Clough was out, Muir to McVey. Score: Andover 4, Huntington 0.

FIFTH INNING

R. Muir was out at first, Walker to Durant. Bowlby, on the next play, went out by the same route. W. Muir singled; Young rolled one to Wight, who threw him out at first. Eddy made first when Young missed a high fly and landed at second on Smith's sacrifice. Cummings slammed one down the first base line, but was out, first base to pitcher. Durant's nice two-bagger

Time Trials for Track Men To-day

Coach Shepard has announced that there will be an inter-squad meet on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. This meet will be a test for all fellows on the squad, and will give Mr. Shepard a chance to determine just what men he can retain. This will probably be only one among many meets that will be held during the season so as to keep every member doing the best he can.

He then was assigned as counsel to the Board of Contract Adjustments of the Purchase, Storage and Traffic Division of the General Staff. On April 14, 1919, he was assigned to work with the U. S. Liquidation Commission in Paris, France.

BASEBALL TO-DAY WITH M. I. T

Game Scheduled at 2.15 p.m.

At 2.15 this afternoon the baseball team will play M. I. T. on Brothers Field. The team has been working steadily the past few days and from all indications the game ought to be well worth watching. Wight will, in all probability, start the game for us and if he pitches as well as he did last Saturday the chances of a victory are almost certain. The rest of the team is doing very well and will back him up in good form. In spite of the ability of the team, we are much more likely to win if every man is out in the stands cheering the team, instead of going to the movies.

The lineup:—

Walker, s.s.
Clough, 2b.
Eddy, l.f.
Smith, Cummings, c.f.
Durant, 1b.
Scott, 3b.
Dann, c.
Wight, Hale, Bemis, p.

School and College Notes

ST. MARK'S

St. Mark's baseball nine defeated the Roxbury Latin school, 15 to 2, in their first game of the season, last Saturday.

ALLEN MILITARY SCHOOL

Last Saturday, the Thayer Academy nine was defeated by the Allen Military School, 6 to 4. The visitors rallied strongly, in the sixth, but the excellent fielding of the Allen school team, prevented a defeat.

HARVARD

The Harvard varsity and freshman crews beat the Princeton crews by two and a half lengths, and one length, respectively, last Saturday. The big feature of the race was the plucky spirit made by the Princeton oarsmen, during the last third of a mile. They reduced Harvard's lead from three lengths to one. At the same time, her crew was beaten by twelve lengths by Annapolis.

Harvard met her second defeat in baseball Saturday, at the hands of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. team, by a score of 7 to 1. Poor fielding was largely the cause of her defeat.

YALE

Yale's baseball team defeated John Hopkins last Saturday, by a score of 9 to 5. Yale shows excellent prospects in that sport this year.

MR. GUY LOWELL SPEAKS AT PHILLIPS CLUB

Last Monday evening in the Stone Chapel, the third of the series of lectures, given by the Phillips Club, was held. Mr. Guy Lowell, architect and intimate friend of the school, was the speaker of the evening. He has been for the past fourteen months, in charge of the affairs of the Red Cross in Italy, and so was able to relate some very interesting anecdotes and first-hand information of life at the Italian front.

Mr. Lowell began by telling of the many Andover boys he had met in Italy, and telling of their splendid work over there. He said that they had helped the Italians in every way, and were considered by their help, to have stood out as true Americans. In fact, all the Americans working for the Red Cross in Italy, had shown the Italians just what the Americans could do, and wherever they went, they were greeted with cheers by the people.

Mr. Lowell then told a little about the history of Italy during the last century. Italy was once divided up into many little kingdoms, but as the bonds between each kingdom strengthened, they finally came together in entire unity. In former wars with Austria, however, a part of Italy was seized, that part which stretches down past Trieste. Although Italy had signed a treaty with Austria and Germany in 1882, when the war broke out in 1914, she immediately sent a note to Berlin, declaring the treaty null, and void, and subsequently she joined in with France and Britain. She finally declared war in the spring of 1915, after much political debate among the different parties in Rome.

At the outbreak of war, the Austrians and Germans began sending troops down into Italy, and here began some of the most difficult and hazardous fighting ever attempted in any war heretofore. Mr. Lowell put on the screen (Continued on Page 3)

REV. RALPH HARLOW SPEAKS AT INQUIRY

Gives Interesting Talk on the Conditions in Near East

SECOND LECTURE OF OUTLOOK SERIES

Last Sunday evening, the Reverend Ralph Harlow, of Smyrna, Turkey, spoke on "The New Era in the Near East" at the second of the series of World Outlook Meetings. Dr. Harlow is an extremely powerful speaker, and he talked of his missionary work in Asia Minor, with a devoted ardor that thrilled every person in the unusually large audience.

Dr. Harlow first told of conditions under the old regime before the war, under the horrible cruelty and ignorance of Turkish misrule. He said that the college at Smyrna had existed amid the most depressing difficulties and obstacles deliberately put in its path by the Government at Constantinople, only by the aid and continual assistance of the United States of America. At one time, a shipment of physics books was seized by the custom authorities and destroyed, because it was claimed, that there was propaganda against the sultan contained in the formulas. One night, in the middle of winter, one of the college buildings was set on fire and burned to the ground, under instructions from the Turkish government. Later the damages were partially paid for, indirectly, when the Turks bought two battleships from the United States for twenty-five thousand dollars more than they were worth, as they were prevented by their religion, from giving the money directly to the college. Boys only sixteen and eighteen years old were thrown into prison and tortured, for committing petty crimes. One student, in particular, was imprisoned for four years before he was even brought to trial, for singing a national song in Greek. Horrible massacres took place every few years. At one time, two hundred students were taken from the Christian college, and given their choice of becoming Moslems or being cut to pieces. Every one of the two hundred perished, rather than give up their faith. Doctors were dragged from hospitals and made to suffer indescribable tortures. Thousands of Armenians, women and children, were massacred in one locality, under the guns of a foreign fleet, whose commanders refused to interfere "unless some European was harmed." These atrocities are still being committed; Constantinople pretends to punish those responsible, but in reality, the so-called "criminals" are the men who, if they have not actually been friendly to the Christians, at least have refrained from violence against them. The governor of Smyrna, who never allowed massacres in his province, owing to bribery; it is true, but bribery in a just cause, is now in prison in Constantinople, awaiting execution for his "crimes."

Although some of the outrages still continue occasionally, still, the new era, the Era of the Future, is at hand. The cruelty is being removed, and new nations are rising

THE ANDOVER PRESS

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1919

Comment has recently been made in these columns about the present Liberty Loan, but we do not think it out of place to urge everyone to do his best to make this loan a success. Let us do as we have done previously in other campaigns, and maintain the reputation that Andover has made by her patriotism in every field of action. Give what you would have given for victory if we lost had the war.

The attendance at last Saturday's baseball game was a distinct improvement over the showing at the first game of the season, but there were not as many out as there should have been. If we do our share in the stands toward the winning of the game, we can count on the team doing their share on the diamond, so everyone must be out to-day to help the team continue the excellent record that they have made thus far this season.

It is a lamentable but undeniable fact that in a large school like Andover there are always certain fellows who make a practice of criticising anything they see, and everything they see. They comment on the food; they remark adversely on the ability of the school teams; they declare loudly and at great length that they have never seen worse equipment. Even if the food is poor, even if the teams are not quite as good as usual (which they most certainly are; better in fact), why mention it? If it is true, everybody knows it quite as well as they do. They criticise very readily, but do they ever put forward any suggestions for possible improvements? Seldom. That is too difficult a task for their stupendous intellects.

Criticism such as this is not criticism; there is a plain, unadorned word for it—"knocking". If they must criticise, let it be constructively, not destructively. Anything but knocking!

William T. Thomas '14, was on the hill last week-end.

M. Grattick '18, has been elected vice-president of the Freshman class for the spring term.

Communications

A good deal of disturbance has gone on lately in the chapel, because of the lack of cushions in the pews. The fault has been mostly on the part of the choir, as they have taken cushions from the other pews, thus leaving vacancies and causing disturbances in the efforts of the fellows to obtain cushions somewhere else. To prevent these disturbances, some more cushions should be procured. It is only fair that the choir should have just as comfortable seats as the others, and they can hardly be blamed for taking every opportunity of obtaining cushions from the front row pews.

An aspiring author has feebly attempted to answer the communication of a week ago, which advocated changing the classes from 4.07 and 5.07 to 2.07 and 3.07. The statements which the original writer made are all undeniably true, and demand more than a passing reference. However, the author of the last communication has seen fit to stress the fact that we demand the warmer hours of the day in which to exercise on the track and baseball field. He has held up to us as an example "the many days, such as those last week"—now two weeks ago—"when we will be glad of all the heat we can get." But it never seemed to occur to him that that week was not a typical spring week, or that there was any chance of the weather becoming warmer in May and June. The stand which we have taken in this question is not the question referring principally to the present time, but primarily the time beginning May 1st.

He has also spoken of the fact that the time allowed is sufficient for "most fellows" to get dressed. But is it fair to the other percentage of the school,—and this percentage is principally made up of the men belonging to the varsity squads,—to make them hurry to their four o'clock classes before they have had enough time to get their breath after a long, hard run, or something of the like. Moreover, he has completely lost sight of the fact that the hours from 4 o'clock until 6 are exactly as long as those from 2 to 4, and that if one must have the time for studying, he can just as well take it out of this time.

I will grant, for the sake of the argument, "that very few fellows are asked to report before 2.15". The author then proceeds to say that there is an hour between dinner and athletics in which to digest our food, and almost in the same breath he whines because, if the classes are changed to 2.07, he will not get his "half-hour life-saver". Surely, if he takes the time that he has mentioned for the digestion of food, and combines it with his "necessary" study time, he will have attained two great advantages. First, he will not have wasted the time from 1.15 until 2 o'clock; and second, he will have succeeded in standing behind our teams better.

But the question of heat presents itself in the class-room as well as on the athletic field, and we must admit that we would feel the effect of the heat nearly as much there, but if we change the times of the recitations, we will have done away with the combined effect of the two. Inside of a building, the hottest part of the day is, by correct time, 2.30 o'clock, or by our present system, 3.30. From that time until dark one can hardly notice the downward change in temperature; for, during the morning, and especially at high noon, the material of the building becomes heated and remains so until the cooler evening removes the heat from it. This is something which we cannot change, no matter how hard we may try. If an athlete becomes heated on the field, and has to rush to his four o'clock class before he has had time to cool off and to catch his breath, he will feel the heat of the class-room much more than ordinarily. He will be restless, almost uncontrollably so, and he will be consequently disturbing to the teacher, as well as lifeless and disinterested in his attitude toward his studies. Should the time be changed, we feel positive that a great deal of this annoyance would be spared the faculty, and that the students would get much more out of their subjects.

For these reasons, then, we advocate that the times of the classes be changed.

Draper Prizes

On Friday evening, May 2, at 7.30 in the Archaeology Building, the preliminary contest for the Draper prizes will be held. These prizes of $25 and $15 are awarded each year for selected declamations. They were founded in 1866 by the late Warren F. Draper, and are open to all members of the school. At this preliminary contest each contestant must be able to declaim from memory a short selection of prose from one to three minutes in length. Six men and two alternates will be chosen for the final contest, which will take place some time near the end of the term. It will not, however, be held at Commencement, as it has been for several years in the past. Mr. Brown will be very glad to help anyone choose a subject for the competition. Those who are selected to speak in June will receive special help later on.

The John Aiken German Prize

The competition for the John Aiken Prize in German, will, this year, be based upon the following special topics in addition to the usual sight translation from German into English.

1. Geography and physical features of Germany, including location of states, chief cities, rivers and mountains.
2. The life of Martin Luther.
3. General conditions in Germany in 1740, and the essential facts about the character and reign of Frederick the Great.

Those interested in the competition, will find the necessary references in the library.

some pictures of the precipitous mountain sides and passes up which the Italians had to climb, in order to reach the Austrian strongholds. The blizzards on these mountains were so severe, that it was estimated 250,000 Italians died from exposure or were buried under avalanches.

Mr. Lowell had a very interesting set of pictures of different phases of Red Cross Work, showing Red Cross secretaries in their canteens, doling out a few comforts to the soldiers, far up in the mountains, places of the utmost difficulty to work in. Some of his pictures also showed the American forces which had recently arrived in Italy, receiving food and drinks from the Red Cross canteens on their arrival. Mr. Lowell said that although there were many enough American troops in Italy to appreciably help the Italian army in fighting, their arrival raised the morale of the Italian army a great deal, as it showed that America was standing behind them. Mr. Lowell last pictures showed the Austrian prisoners, coming back over the mountains, to Italy. He pointed out the sullenness and general slovenly bearing of these men, having to recross as prisoners, the very mountains over which they had come as conquerors a year or so before.

from the ruins of Turkish oppression, led by men educated in the American Missionary Schools in Asia Minor. Greece has offered to build a college in Athens, to provide for the instruction of the Armenian young men, the future citizens of the autonomous republic, which is being created on the shores of Aegean Sea. Before the war, there were thirteen hundred missionary schools, fifty-three high schools, and twelve colleges in Asia Minor, the greater part of these have been destroyed in the war, but now, all the American teachers, doctors, and engineers, who were forced to leave during the war, are going back to help build up the new Era of Prosperity. When Mr. Morgenthau, former American ambassador to Turkey, was lecturing in New York, a sneering reference was made by some person in the audience, to the work of the American missionaries. Mr. Morgenthau bowed his head for a moment, and then replied in a voice full of feeling, "There are no finer men or women in the world than the American missionaries in Armenia!"

Two hundred tractor ploughs have been shipped to Asia Minor, and all the modern inventions are being introduced—the telegraph, telephone, sewing machines, and many others. Agricultural schools have been opened, which mean better food for the children, and a better living for the farmers. Good hospitals will be opened soon; in the last two months, fifteen complete outfits, and fifteen X-ray machines have been sent across. There is a great demand for clothes and supplies, but by far the most pressing and urgent need is for men; men of all trades, doctors, teachers, ministers, farmers, printers, and men to take charge of athletics. Dr. Harlow said that one of the first things that had to be done, was to teach the people how to play; they have been under the iron heel of Turkish oppression for so long, that they have forgotten how to take part in games and sports. At the college in Smyrna, an athletic director is needed to take charge of the work carried on in the new Gymnasium and on the playing fields.

As he concluded his address, Dr. Harlow said that he knew that there were hundreds of stars on our military service flag; he wondered how many stars there would be on our service flag of the future. It is a great moral obligation to humanity which must be filled. We must not fail.

Exeter Notes

Exeter won its first baseball game of the season last Saturday afternoon by a score of 5 to 1. The game was played at Exeter, with the Lynn High School. Moshier, Exeter's pitcher, was the star of the game, striking out fourteen men, and giving only two hits. Eli Cutler starred for Exeter with the bat, getting two hits out of three times at bat. Lynn got its one run in the ninth inning, on two misplays by the Exeter infield.

Exeter's relay runners will leave to-morrow night for Philadelphia, where they will compete in the national one-mile preparatory school championship of America at the Pennsylvania relay carnival.

The Exeter baseball team meets Haverford High and Lowell Textile this week.

The following extract is from a letter recently received, about the performance of the Andover orchestra in the combined musical clubs' concert last term:

Notes

Mr. Warren K. Moorehead of the faculty, and a member of the Indian Commission, has been trying to determine the status of the Iroquois Indians in the state of New York. The numbers and organization of this tribe have caused some exceedingly difficult situations between the state and the national government.

W. Bolton, A. P. Davis, and R. King, Andover 1917, have been elected members of the Cottage Club at Princeton.

Captain N. C. Reed, '09, is expected to return from service abroad some time in July, and will receive his discharge at that time. Captain Reed has been taking the government course at Sorbonne, Paris.
