DR. STEVENSON TALKS AT INQUIRY

President of Princeton Seminary Leads Meeting

The speaker at the meeting of the Society of Inquiry last Sunday night, was Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, president of the Princeton Theological Seminary. Dr. Stevenson spoke about service to the cause of Christ, and also about leading the sort of life that will be a good influence in the community.

He first told us some things about his father's life and touched upon some of the landmarks of that man's career.

He said that when his father was about eighteen years of age, he left Ireland for America. On the way over, typhus fever broke out aboard the ship, and he contracted the disease. Upon landing at New York he was sent to a hospital where he stayed for several weeks.

A few days after being discharged from the hospital, still weak and penniless, he was sitting on a curb stone wondering what was to become of him. A kind-hearted gentleman approached him and invited him to his home. Young Stevenson gladly accepted this kindness and the two soon became close friends. Some days later the gentleman suggested to Stevenson the idea of entering the ministry. The boy, having planned to go into business in Tennessee had never thought of this possibility, but the idea appealed to him. He finally decided to go to college and fit himself for that calling.

He received his education in Pennsylvania and upon the completion of his studies, secured a parish in an Ohio town, where he preached for a long time.

Many years afterwards President Stevenson dedicated a church in this same town in Ohio. Upon learning that he was the son of their former minister, many people came to him to tell him how strong an influence his father had had upon their lives.

Dr. Stevenson told the story to illustrate the desirability of leading the sort of a life which will have a good influence upon all who come in contact with you.

The speaker went on to say that just as millions of men were willing to dedicate their lives to the service of their country in the war, so should men be even more ready to serve Jesus Christ.

Dr. Stevenson concluded by explaining that in order to serve Christ, it was not necessary to preach his word, but that it was necessary to lead an influential Christian life.

WIGHT'S KICKING A FEATURE

The Andover team defeated the New Hampshire State Freshmen by the score of 7 to 0 last Saturday.

The Blue team showed greatly improved form in every department of the game, but especially on the offensive. It seemed to be able to gain ground at any time, the whole team working together, opening holes and taking out the opposing players.

The game was marred by a few misplays and fumbles, but on the whole, it was a much better exhibition of football than either the Dean or the Cushing games.

The Freshmen displayed a well-drilled football machine, very aggressive and fast. Neville, who played end, and Hawkes in the backfield, starred for them.

The touchdown was made by Adams after a brilliant rush down to the goal posts from midfield. Smith kicked the goal.

The play by periods follows:

FIRST QUARTER

Adams received the kick-off on the 10-yard line and ran the ball back thirty yards. After Koehler and Smith went through the line for eight yards, Wight punted, State getting the ball on its 35-yard line. State bucked the line for twenty-five yards, but then the ball was Andover's in midfield. Adams went around the end for five yards. Koehler bucked the line for four yards and Adams went through for three, making it first down, on the State's 46-yard line. Adams' three-yard plunge and Smith's eight-yard buck brought another first down. Smith went through for four yards and then tried a drop kick for a field goal from the 25-yard line. The kick was poor, however, and New Hampshire had the ball on its

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS PROGRESSES

Committees Assigned to Different Parts of Country

The following memorandum has been made up for class agents and local committeemen of the Building and Endowment Fund:

A discussion at the meeting of Andover class agents on September 29th in New York, demonstrated the vital necessity of organizing immediately, local committees of Andover men in various important centers. GOVERNMENT TO WORK MINES IF MEN STRIKE

Conference Vetoes Compers' Plan. Treaty Foes to Serve Ultimatum To-day

REBELLION SAID TO HAVE BROKEN OUT IN RED FORCES

The failure of the mine operators and the workers to settle their differences after a four hour conference yesterday, may force Secretary Wilson to prevent the strike of five hundred thousand coal miners called for November first. Another effort will be made to-day to bring about a settlement of the differences between the miners and the operators, but the leaders of both sides last night admitted that there is little hope of this being done.

Proposals for the recognition of the right of collective bargaining and President Compers' plan for the arbitration of the steel strike were rejected by a decisive vote at the industrial conference last evening. Five votes were taken — four on the question of collective bargaining and in each case the vote stood two to one against adoption.

Democratic leaders in the Senate are seriously considering the question of accepting the reservations to the treaty without further opposition. The forces hostile to the treaty announced last night that a complete agreement on the program of reservations had been reached by the majority party. The new amendments to the peace treaty which were introduced yesterday by Senator McCumber of North Dakota, are briefly as follows:

1. That in case the United States withdraws from the league of nations, it shall be the sole judge of whether its obligations have been fulfilled.
2. That the United States reserves the right to determine for itself whether its forces shall be employed in any European dispute.
3. That the United States exclusively reserves the right to decide its own internal affairs, which include immigration, tariff, commerce and questions not solely within the jurisdiction of the United States.
4. That the United States does not bind itself to submit to arbitration or inquiry any question which involves the Monroe Doctrine.
5. That the United States refuses to enter into any agreement regarding the Shantung settlement.
6. That the United States reserves the right to refuse to be bound in cases where one nation and the dominions of the said nation have more than one vote to the decision of the league.

Russian newspapers report that rebellion has broken out in the Bolshevik forces fighting around Petrograd. The "Reds" admit the loss of Kiev, and allied and anti-Bolshevik leaders announce that Petrograd and Kronstadt are likely to fall in a few days. The Soviet forces seem to be resisting vigorously west of Petrograd along

Communication

To the Editor of the PHILLIPIAN:

Now that the tennis season is nearly over, there have been numerous rumors going the rounds to the effect that all tennis men will be asked to choose some other sport for the remainder of the term. Why is this necessary? It certainly is no harder or more difficult to play around on a tennis court in the cold weather than it is to run about on the track or soccer field. Also it is a much more active sport, and one has a much greater chance to keep warm. Let anyone who doubts this statement go down to the soccer fields of the various clubs, and watch the frantic exertions of the goal guards as the possession of the ball is hotly contested at the further end of the field. Or let him stroll out to the Oval and watch the different groups of athletes shiver in the wind as they wait their turn at the pit or jumping standards.

Finally let him look for a few minutes at the tennis courts, and the difference will be at once apparent. Not a man is idle, and everyone is exercising quite vigorously enough for all practical purposes.

Why not start a series of tournaments, say, one in singles and one in doubles, for any who might care to enter? This would occupy what time there is remaining until all athletics must necessarily stop.

Exeter Notes

Last Saturday, Exeter defeated Yale Fresh at New Haven, 17 to 7. Yale was ahead at the end of the first half, Jordan making a touchdown for Yale in the second quarter, while Herr, an ex-Andover man, kicked the coal. Exeter started off in the second half and made two touchdowns and a field goal before the game was over. The gains were made through Yale's right guard almost at will, by Emery, Exeter's plunging fullback, while O'Hearn made the touchdowns on end runs. Three players on the Yale Freshmen team were old Andover men: Herr, guard; Boltwood, fullback, and Whipple; left end. Exeter held the Freshmen for downs on their one-foot line in the second quarter, although the Exeter line was greatly inferior to the Freshmen's line, which weighed on an average of two hundred and four pounds from tackle to tackle included. Next Saturday, Exeter will meet Harvard Freshmen with the chance favoring Exeter.

Jack went to France with the Andover Ambulance Unit in May 1917. He secured his release as soon as possible and joined the American aviation. He was soon commissioned a first lieutenant, but was killed when his plane fell on January 24, 1918.

While in school, Jack was captain of the soccer team in 1916, and was on the Mirror and Pot-Pourri Boards in 1917.
