

ENDOWMENT FUND NEARING ITS QUOTA

Speakers Start Last Tour to the Coast

Dr. Stearns and Dr. Fuess left Andover for the Pacific Coast last Sunday evening on the last leg of their trip in behalf of the endowment fund. Over half of the amount has now been subscribed by 450 graduates and there are still many old men to be approached. The drive will lose on January 1, when it is hoped that the whole amount will have been subscribed.

Dr. Stearns and Dr. Fuess are scheduled to speak this evening at a dinner to be held in Cincinnati. Dr. Stearns is expected to return to Andover by Saturday morning, but Dr. Fuess will be detained at the endowment fund's offices in New York. City

Christmas Seals

The Christmas Seals will be on sale this year as for a number of years past. They bear the Red Cross, but it would be more appropriate if they bore the Lorraine double cross which is the symbol of the anti-tuberculosis organizations. The proceeds are to be used for anti-tuberculosis work, local, state and national. This is not another Red Cross drive but is under the auspices of the national and state anti-tuberculosis organizations and the local health association. The national campaign against tuberculosis is being pushed with renewed activity, and the sale of seals is being planned on a much larger scale than ever before. Every one who buys even a few of these seals helps in this great work. Announcement will be made later where and when these seals will be on sale in the school.

"Drayt" Mayers is captain of the Yale Freshman soccer team. He was on the varsity soccer team here and also won his AAA in the Exeter track meet last spring.

SWIMMING SQUAD GETS FIRST CUT

Much Promising Material Among New Men

Coach Sutherland last Saturday made his first cut in the swimming squad, reducing the number of men from 65 to 23. There has remained in school a good deal of material from last year's team, but a great deal of new material is urgently needed. There are but three men out for diving, which is the most pressing need at present.

J. M. P. Anderson, a member of last year's team, is captain this year. In the Brookline intercollegiate pool, he last year defeated Atha Wales by a plunge of 76 feet, one-minute time limit. Wales, a former M. I. T. player, was the holder of the national amateur championship. The following men comprise the present squad:—

Plungers: Anderson, Learned, Stilwell, Stern, Taylor.

Sprinters: K. Smith, H. S. Pole, R. Colgate, S. York, H. Ledyard, N. Thomas, R. H. Butler, J. S. Robbins, R. S. Robertson, J. MacPherson, L. A. Draper, G. Case, Deuel, M. Bovey, M. H. Frost.

Divers: R. Brigham, O. D. Ferguson, B. H. Hayes.

INQUIRY ENJOYS A SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Excellent Delegation Gives Interesting Talk

The meeting of the Society of Inquiry last Sunday night was a very interesting one. "Sherry" Day, who was here in 1909, and "Bill" Bryen and Elliot Speer, both here three years ago and now undergraduates at Princeton, were the speakers.

The first speaker of the evening was "Bill" Bryen. He said he would try to tell the things which were fundamentally Christian. When he was up here he thought he was a good enough Christian. He went to chapel every morning and twice on Sundays, to the Society of Inquiry Sunday evenings. In short, as far as he knew he was a Christian character, but nevertheless his life was commonplace. True he didn't gamble or have any of the other petty sins. He did not know what fundamental sin he might have. First, he said, let us consider what are the fundamental sins. Deceit, lying, both to oneself and to other people; dishonesty, impurity, and superficiality; making excuses for oneself. He did believe in God, but when the test came he refused to be a minister. He was selfish. He didn't know himself. We must get at the bottom of things. If a man thinks he believes in doing the will of God, he ought to question himself. A man may be selfish and not know it. If you find you have been a little selfish, give up more of your time to your friends. Force yourself to be unselfish.

Often the things he heard in chapel went in one ear and out the other. He found he must get the fundamental things through God, and secondarily through friends. One cannot be a real man without being upright in the sight of God. It is hard to be unselfish. If one does know himself and his friends, if one is unselfish, then one is truly happy in the happiness of God.

Elliot Speer was the next speaker. Speer said that the things which he knew we would encounter in our college life would be useful to us now. He had come up to give knowledge of those things, but really, he said, we are going through them ourselves right here in "prep" school. He thought that the fundamental thing was to give oneself completely in the service of Christ. He said he owed the school an apology for what he didn't have when he was head of the Society of Inquiry when he was here in school; he owed Princeton an apology for what he didn't have when he was a prominent member of the Philadelphia Society, which corresponds to the Society of Inquiry, at Princeton, before the war; and last, he owed the soldiers an apology for what he didn't have when he was in France with the Y. M. C. A. He didn't learn what he lacked till he got to the Northfield Conference last summer; then he realized what he had been doing. While in the Y. M. C. A. in England he led hymns, sold candy and cigarettes to the soldiers, but outside of that he gave them no help. In fact, he said that he couldn't

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Train Service to Be Reduced. Senate to Back Lansing in Mexican Trouble

For the first time since he became President President Wilson sent his annual message to Congress instead of delivering it himself. In this message he refers to the state of uncertainty caused by the failure of the senate to sign the treaty. He also mentions the social unrest and recommends that measures be taken to fight radicalism and Bolshevism by giving workers a square deal and by eliminating their existing grievance. Although the President made no mention of the League of Nations or direct mention of the peace treaty in his message, it is expected that he will send a new message to Congress in the near future, offering some form of compromise for the senators who are opposed to the treaty. The President's message was received in Congress with mixed feelings. As would naturally be expected, the Democrats praised it, while the Republicans were inclined to be critical, saying that he dealt too kindly with labor and that he did not offer strong enough measures to curb the radical movement.

Director General Hines of the United States railroad administration yesterday authorized the regional directors of the railroads to use their discretion in abandoning trains that were not essential to the public. Another move to conserve coal was made by the Railroad Administration yesterday also when it ordered that after midnight of December fifth no coal whatsoever will be given to foreign ships. Government officials yesterday expressed their opinion that the strike would be a long one.

The state department yesterday awaited word from the Mexican government that Consular Agent Jenkins has been removed from the prison at Puebla in response to Lansing's second peremptory note to Carranza. Pending development of the attitude of the Mexican government, the state department is firm in its determination to tolerate no further evasion of responsibility by Carranza for the many outrages done to Americans against which the United States government is protesting. Senator Fall of New Mexico, chairman of the committee which is dealing with the Mexican situation, announces that Carranza is spreading I. W. W. propaganda into the United States with Mexico as a base. It is expected that Senator Fall will introduce a resolution of support for Mr. Lansing when the senate meets to-day.

At a conference between the Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday it was decided to introduce a joint measure into the Senate and House of Representatives declaring the United States in a state of peace with Germany to pave the way for a separate treaty with Germany. The Victory Number of the Mirror Passes in Review

The Victory Number of the Mirror is expected shortly. Le Tripotage in order to keep proper balance in this issue has crowded Foreign Matter into the ads somewhat, but it's there if you look for it. Among the humorous poems is They Went A-Fishing by Charles B. Wright. It really deserves a more honorary position than Le Tripotage, but its humor will perhaps be more universally appreciated in that place than in another. Two other poems follow; one of them, Winter, is free verse of the freest kind. Since the best magazines publish occasional free verse and claim to know nothing about it, the Mirror is safe in its experiment. The author prefers, meanwhile, to remain anonymous. The other poem is Jubilate by George B. Dyer. It commemorates the evening of the fifteenth, ably catching the spirit of the occasion and setting it forth with a choice of words more than usually well selected.

The two stories by Wright and Ludlam both show improvement in certain matters of form over their previous work. Wright's story, All That Glitters (a somewhat pedantic title for so light a farce), begins more directly than did A Bargain in Boats and moves towards a climax equally well attained and equally humorous.

Ludlam's story, Within the Hills, is lightened by a well managed dialogue. It lays more claim to plot than All That Glitters, and up to a certain point progresses equally skillfully. There is a certain over-dramatic quality in the ending which those who like an easily believable story may disapprove of. We are interested to know how Ludlam would handle some motive other than revenge.

The editorials treat separately of the effect of victory on Andover, and Christmas. The first, a somewhat ambitious undertaking, makes several points which are not badly taken; the second aims to capture a bit of the Christmas feeling and anticipates the holidays. It is our opinion that the Mirror is offering a pretty fair issue, but that remains to be confirmed.

ROXBURY

A School for Intensive Instruction

ROXBURY'S success has been due to the efficiency of its teaching method. There are no forms. Each student is given a careful physical and psychological examination to determine his capacity for hard work, and assigned to classes no larger than five. The number of hours' instruction in each course, the size and character of the class the boy enters, and the number of studies he is allowed to carry are determined by his ability and state of preparation.

Large faculty—one master for each five boys. One hundred and fifty acre campus and farm. Three dormitories. All athletic teams, gymwork, boxing, wrestling, under expert coaches and instructors. Ten saddle horses for boys' use. A large open-air swimming pool to be constructed next spring.

Two months summer session for boys who need additional work, and boys preparing for September examinations.

Roxbury's record has been extraordinary. This summer only two out of over one hundred final candidates failed to enter college.

Students admitted any time during the year when there are vacancies.

Strong Basketball Team at Exeter

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 29—Winter athletics at Exeter are now well under way, all of the boys taking part in some form of competitive sports. The school will have a strong basketball team, there being twenty-nine candidates out for the team, including as the best material
Ray Luman, H. C. Emery, B. B.
Smith, R. H. Burke, S. T. Cook,
P. J. Cook, and M. L. Switzer.
The schedule will contain games
with many of the Greater Boston schools, besides Andover.

Trainer George Connors has started a series of events on the board track to take the place of the fall meet, which was canceled, owing to the weather. Medals will be given the winners. The first event, 40-yard dash, was held yesterday.

The events and dates are: Dec.
3, 390-yard dash; Dec. 6, 600-yard run; Dec. 10, mile run; Dec. 13,
high jump; Dec. 17, 45-yard hurdles.

The rowing schedule next spring will be featured by a race with Groton School for the Columbia University Cup, offered to the school which first wins three races, the series now standing 2 to 1 in Exeter's favor, they not being held during the years of the war.

School crew work will start in February, there being bright prospects for a fast school eight. During the fall five eights have been working on the Swampscott river, the tentative school crew being
F. Gorman, bow; J. P. Fordyce,
2; C. Y. Wheeler, 3; A. Jackson,
4; J. R. Gobey, 5; E. P. Botsford, 6; G. B. French, 7; S. L. Kelley, stroke; with Laurence Stoddard coxswain, who will be assisted by Myron R. Williams.

Battery candidates for the nine
are now working under the direction of Coach Clarence P. Parker.

Play Clean This Fall

The following article appeared recently in an issue of the New York Times and is of interest generally because the comments on the spirit shown is rather the opposite from what most expected.

Through the entire length of the game between the Army and Navy
at the Polo Grounds on Saturday, but two penalties were imposed by the officials, and those two, as it turned out, both of them for holding, occurred in the same play,
and so neutralized each other.
This exceptional observance of the rules of the game was a splendid comment on the cleanness of the play between the two service elevens. But it is also pleasant to report that cleanness of play though possibly in no other instance so conspicuously exemplified, has none the less been characteristic of the other games between the leading college elevens
this fall.

In advance of the season, certain Gloomy Gus commentators upon the sport opined that many of the games would be marred by rough tactics because of the number of men in them who had just returned from military service and who, it was unjustly contended, had subordinated all else in the service games to a desire to win. As a matter of fact, the reverse has been the case.

No players of football have evinced a finer brand of sportsmanship than those who acquired or who complemented their knowledge of the game on the improvised gridirons of France and Germany and at the cantonments in this country. In fact, no less an observer of the game, particularly in the West, than Walter Eckersall, states that the majority of penalties inflicted this Fall have been occasioned by men who never got any nearer the army or navy than a position on the curbstone during a victory parade after the armistice.

However this may be, the fact remains that never in the history of the gridiron game has sportsmanship been more consistently in evidence than this Fall. If anything finer could be said of the football season than that, one wonders what and how it could be.

To the Editor of the PHILLIPIAN:

Now that the winter is at hand, it would seem as though there should be some major sport for the months of snow and ice. As there is only one game which is played out of doors in the winter, it would appear logical to pick this one for the most prominent position. There is now a decided tendency in schools and colleges to make hockey a major sport. Harvard has taken the lead in this and has turned out star sevens ever since she made this move. Here at Andover, hockey has not, strictly speaking, been taken seriously. Last year no earnest attempt was made to secure a coach. At no time did the entire school come out to cheer for the team, not even at the Exeter game. Only once during the entire season was there any kind of organized cheering whatsoever. As a result, Exeter was able to stave off defeat through their teamwork, which had been drilled into them by a professional coach.

The lack of a major sport during the winter term has been one of the breaks in the get-together spirit of the school. In the spring the lack of co-ordination in cheering and singing is a bad fault and it takes a long time to rectify it. A major sport would keep the school more in unison all the year round and would increase interest in athletics. As hockey is the only sport in which we have been meeting Exeter in the winter term hitherto, it would seem the only logical choice for a straight "A" sport.

We therefore urge the Advisory Board to think this matter over seriously, and see whether it could not be made practical.

Notes of Other SchoolsHILL SCHOOL

On November 8th the whole school went down to Haverford for the football game with that school. The Hill defeated them by a score of 10 to 7.

On the following Friday, the Hill played the final game of the season with Hotchkiss. It resulted in a 20 to 0 victory for the visiting team. Captain Bentley of the Hill team was taken sick the night before the game and was unable to play.

The Camera Club gave its annual fall term exhibition on Saturday evening. After the winning photographs had been shown, the school was delightfully entertained with Douglas Fairbanks in "His Majesty, the American".

HOTCHKISS SCHOOL

On Friday, November 14th, the school team defeated the Hill at Pottstown by the score of 20 to 0. The game was played on a very muddy field, which naturally slowed up the game considerably. Although Captain A. L. Bentley, the Hill captain, was taken sick immediately before the game, the game was evenly contested. A. Pond, who starred for Hotchkiss by making a 75-yard run for the first touchdown and playing a very excellent game, was elected for the next year's captain and has for a nucleus for his team three linemen.

On Wednesday, November 19th, the Weber Male Quartette gave a very interesting song recital to the school. The program consisted of classical songs, folk-songs, and also some very humorous negro songs and monologues.

CHOATE SCHOOL

The Choate team and over half of the school attended the Yale-Princeton game on Saturday, November 15th.

Prof. A. P. Fitch of Amherst held the school service again on Sunday, November 16th.

The football team was defeated 14 to 0 by Kent on Monday, November 17th. The school accompanied the team to Kent in two special cars. Everyone felt well repaid for the all-day trip by the opportunity to support the team through a hard-fought game.

GROTON SCHOOL

The football team was defeated by St. Mark's School on Thursday, November 6th, by the score of 7 to 0. St. Paul's School defeated the football team on November 15th by the score of 20 to 0.

Mr. Underhill gave a very amusing dramatic recital of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" on November 14th. The Dramatic Association has decided on "Box and Cox" for the Thanksgiving Day Play.

TART SCHOOL

The Taft second football team defeated the Simsbury second team by a score of 18 to 0. The Taft team was far superior in both weight and in playing ability, so a number of third team men were put in.

The Taft School first football team defeated the Pomfret team by a score of 6 to 0 on Saturday, November 15th. The game was very well played by both teams. Although the field was very muddy, the game was fast and interesting.

To mark the end of the football season and the victory over Pomfret, our old rival, there was a large celebration on Saturday night. Speeches were given by a huge bonfire by the members of the team and the coaches.

College Football Notes

The Army-Navy game next year will be November 27th and will probably be played at the Polo Grounds where it was this fall. "Gil" Dobie will again be the Navy's coach.

Coach Fisher of Harvard has stated that he was in favor of Harvard going to the Pacific coast and playing an intersectional game with a coast team. It is thought that if a Harvard football team played on the coast it would help the Endowment Fund now being carried on by the Crimson alumni. As all the players on the team as well as the coach and trainer are in favor of the proposed game only the consent of the faculty is needed to make it a fact. The Mayor of Los Angeles and the Governor of California have both sent invitations to come. If the game is played it will be of great interest to all the football world, for never before have two college football machines from the Atlantic and Pacific played together.

Origin of "Tenderloin."

The name "tenderloin" was originally applied in New York city to the nineteenth police precinct. The credit of naming it is attributed to Capt. Alexander Williams, who was placed in command of the precinct September 30, 1876. When he took charge he was asked how he liked the change. "Great," was the response. "I've come from a rump district (an east side district) to the tenderloin," and tenderloin it has remained ever since. The newspapers of other cities soon followed the example of the New York journals in so designating similar districts of their own cities.

give them any spiritual help at all. When he came back to this country he traveled around the preparatory schools of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, before he returned to college. The first thing he did when he landed in a town was to look up the trains out. He couldn't answer the questions the boys put to him.

When he began to think it over he couldn't answer them for himself. He found he had been making wrong decisions. Outside things like selling candy and cigarettes were superficial. It took him a long time before he was really a Christian. It dawned upon him that there was sin, that there was a hell, and that certain things come into our lives and keep us from doing God's will. The only way to be sure of doing right is to completely give oneself up to God. He tried as soon as he found these things to be true, to recognize his mistakes, to make up for his former shortcomings. Christ's life and death make up for our shortcomings as we ought to make up for them.

After we confess and say we are going to live the life we ought to have lived before, we should watch out that we don't slip back into the old groove. To keep from doing this we must let Christ in and give ourselves completely to Him. If we have Christ's power we can make up for our former shortcomings.

"Sherry" Day next told how he thought we ought to "throw our cards on the table".

We have all the opportunities to get religion here with our fine chapel speakers and the men who come to speak at the Society of Inquiry meetings. This is the proper thing to do; then we can make it work afterwards. It is a fine thing to know men like "Bill" Bryen or Elliot Speer. With helps like these we ought to get to a place where we can throw our cards on the table. He told how it affected him.

He thought of religion when he was here as just a chore. He was president of the Society of Inquiry Cabinet, but was nevertheless unable to give the help he ought. He then went to India. In the mission there he would talk of everything under the sun except religion, when a native chief came to him and wanted help. He thought that if he got into a theological seminary he could be much more happy. He said his first year there was one of the happiest in his life. But the second was the worst he had ever spent. No one could see that he was unhappy, for he went around wearing a false face of happiness, but underneath he felt his sentiments were very different. He didn't dare tell his friends, but one day he went into a friend's room and opened up to him. From that time on he and this fellow were the fastest of comrades. Not till then had they known each other. They had, unconsciously, been wearing a mask. Now they knew each other to the core.

Mr. Day went on to say that he didn't see why boys in college couldn't club together and bicker about this thing in their rooms. In fact he said that it had succeeded in Hill School. We must get to know ourselves. We must get to know our fellows, and above all, to know God.

The meeting was closed early and those who wished remained and "bickered" with Mr. Day and the two Princeton men about getting down to fundamentals and bare facts.

Phillips Club Talk

Last Tuesday evening in the Peabody House, Professor S. E. Morrison of Harvard University, who was with the American delegation which accompanied President Wilson to Paris, gave a talk on the Baltic situation to the members of the Phillips Club.
