MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK MEETS GREAT SUCCESS

VERY POPULAR WITH AUDIENCE

Mme. Schumann-Heink, that grand old lady of song, rendered a concert in George Washington Hall Thursday night that will go down into history as one of the brightest spots of musical Andover.

Despite her old age and her more than fifty years on the stage, she gave as beautiful a concert as can be heard anywhere. Her personality had so gripped the audience by the end of her first group of songs that they were loath to have her leave the stage for a few short minutes. The wonderful sense of humor that she had was apparent everywhere, much to the joy and satisfaction of her audience.

A great factor in the success of the concert was the marvelous selection of songs. For a concert primarily for the younger generation, no better selection could have been made. Throughout the program one found old favorites that will never die. Who ever gets tired of hearing such songs as "The Erlking" and "Trees" sung? The youngest knows them, yet the oldest never gets tired of them.

An integral part of any concert is the accompanist. In this respect Mme. Schumann-Heink was unusually fortunate, for the work of Joseph Hartman Vollmer, displayed her talent at its best. Of Miss Vollmer's solo work "The Spinning Song" was the best though the others were not far behind. This piece is taken in part from Senta's "Spinning Song" in the opera, "The Flying Dutchman".

The song that appealed to the audience most was Oscar Rasbach's musical setting of Joyce Kilmer's beautiful poem "Trees". Everybody knew it and Mme. Schumann-Heink's singing of it endeared it all the more. That old German legend, which almost everybody who has studied German knows by heart, "The Erlking", took on new glory when sung by its greatest interpreter, Schumann-Heink. The "Six Gypsy Songs" typical Hungarian folk songs, were received with great laughter and applause.

Her two encores, "Danny Boy" and "The Rosary", were two other old favorites which were very well received. In connection with the first, Schumann-Heink pleaded with the audience to visit a soldiers' hospital and cheer up the wounded soldiers there. Since she had learned "Danny Boy" in the most trying years of her life and because it is now associated with very dear events in her own life, Schumann-Heink sang this with a great deal of emotion.

ANDOVER BASKET BALL TEAM MEETS DEAN TO-DAY

FAST GAME EXPECTED

This afternoon the Andover basketball team meets the Dean Academy team. If our boys expect to win this game they must show a much better brand of basketball than they have shown in practice the past week. Wednesday afternoon the second team defeated the first team in scrimmage without any apparent effort. Time and time again Bannon completely fooled the first team's defense. Even when the first team did get the ball they seemed to prefer to pass it around in back court rather than to make an attempt for a goal.

However, in the two games they have played so far this season, our team has played much better basketball than they did in practice. The manner in which they turned back the Tufts freshmen last week should give us some encouragement as far as today's game is concerned. On the other hand the Dean team is one of exceptional strength. Their defeat of Durfee Textile, 34 to 23, is proof enough that they are a team to be feared. So far this year, both Andover and Dean have had fairly successful seasons, so both teams will be out to attach one more scalp-lock to their belt.

Chaffee, our left guard, will have his hands full guarding Dean's high scorer, Gray. It was largely through his efforts that Dean gained the verdict over Durfee. Shea, their right forward, must also be watched closely, or Andover will soon find herself far in the rear. Creedon at center is a man with whom no chances may be taken. In addition to his offensive work this man is a tower of strength on the defense. Their two guards are men through which a forward can only penetrate with the greatest difficulty. In the Durfee game Layden, their left guard, slipped through for eight points. This must be kept in mind when comparing the two teams.

Coach Blackmer will start his usual lineup with the hope that they will return to their former stride. He has been drilling the team in a stalling type of offense which should gain them many baskets when they are unable to penetrate a five-man defense. Kellogg has been playing in practice a great deal lately and will probably play a major part of the game though it is doubtful whether he will start or not. Otherwise Andover's lineup will remain the same as in the first two games.

The probable lineup:

PHILO

On Wednesday night the Philo Debating Society held a meeting which seemed to foretell a very successful season. Forty men have signed up already, and it is hoped that sixty will be on the list before the end of the term. At the meeting, the members of Philo were divided into two clubs, one to be led by R. M. Davis and the other by G. S. Hayes. From these clubs, teams will be formed which will debate against each other. The winners of each debate will be decided by a vote of Philo members themselves.

SECOND SWIMMING MEET OF THE SEASON TO-DAY

BLUE HAVE IMPROVED

This afternoon the Andover swimming team will meet Dean Academy, which has started its first swimming team in the history of their school. Their team, of course, is not experienced but is shaping into a good one for the amount of coaching it has had.

Last week the Brown freshmen swimming team sank the Dean team by a score of 32 to 21, because of the last event, the relay race. Their times in the various events are not very good and are quite a bit slower than those set by the swimmers on the Blue. This being the case, the Blue team is the favorite by quite large odds.

The relay race will probably be swum by King, Mooney, Jones, and Westfall, who were beaten last Saturday by the veteran team of the Boston Boys' Club. However, they ought to beat their opponents' combination of Learned, Gates, Ingram, and Messer. The Dean Academy team is not very strong in this event, but it is powerful enough to give the Blue team plenty of fight. In the fifty-yard free style, Westfall and Jones will probably swim against Messer, who is the anchor-man on their relay team.

The backstroke will probably be won by Anderson, who broke the pool record in the last meet. There will not be much competition in this event, but Gates will probably make the race interesting. The breaststroke will undoubtedly be a very even race. For Andover, W. Anderson, Tatlock, or Phillips will swim, and for Dean, Learned and Sternberg. In the 200-yard swim Andover will enter Fry and perhaps Westfall, who broke the record of the pool this week. Ingram will represent Dean in this event. Mooney and Westfall will swim in the 100-yard free style against Ingram and Holden. Westfall may not swim, since he will have been in three other events preceding this. Kimball, McCloy, or C. Williamson will dive for Andover.

CLUB BASKETBALL

Wednesday afternoon Mr. Sides met those interested in club basketball in the gym. After watching each club work out separately Mr. Sides selected a tentative lineup for each club. This lineup was selected merely to help the boys get organized and is not at all permanent. Mr. Sides told each club that they must get a member of the faculty to coach them. The Romans have succeeded in obtaining Mr. Jacob for this important task. Since the other clubs have not practised alone as yet little is known concerning their ability. The clubs practise from 7.00 to 7.40 on the following nights:

MELROSE DEFEATS BLUE IN HARD-FOUGHT GAME

ANDOVER LOSES 3-0 IN THIRD GAME OF SEASON

Last Wednesday the Andover hockey team was defeated by the Melrose High School team, 3-0, in the Blue's third game of the season. The game was a hard fought battle and was characterized by fast playing by both teams. The Andover squad has greatly improved since last week. The game was played on the Ell Pond rink in Melrose, but the Blue men soon made themselves at home and played as well as if they were on their own ice. Allman, the Melrose right wing who scored the three goals for his team against Exeter, was again a star for Melrose. Although he did not score in this game, he was continually threatening the Blue defense. Keogh and Harris, center and left wing respectively, also kept the puck deep in Andover territory while they played. The Melrose forward line, as a unit, showed fine teamwork and passing, as a result of which, they were able to make their scores. Their defense line, Keating and W. Spadafora, also played well, although they hardly handled the puck at all, leaving that department of the game to their teammates. Kinney, the Melrose goalie was not called upon to make as many stops as Neill, but nevertheless showed that he had plenty of ability.

For Andover perhaps the outstanding player was Neill at goal. He was forced to be continually on the alert because of the aggressiveness of his opponents' forward line. Bryant, Fawcett, and Wing, the Blue first-string line, exhibited some fine teamwork and showed the results of much drill on passing and keeping to their own places on the ice. McDougall and Jackson, as usual, played a good game.

Although the game was originally scheduled to be played in Andover, it was found that the rink had not frozen. Consequently the Melrose authorities invited the Blue to play on their city rink on Ell Pond. Here conditions were scarcely any better than at the former rink, because, although there was ice, it was not thick and was rapidly melting. The team was forced to wait almost two hours until their opponents arrived and until the boards around the rink, which had been taken down because of the bad ice, were put in place again. However, the game finally commenced at 4 o'clock.

As the game started, Melrose at once took the puck and skated toward the Blue goal. McDougall broke up their attempt and passed to Fawcett, who did not get very far with it. Jackson succeeded in getting in front of the Melrose goal and shot, but Kinney caught the puck in his hands. Neill was forced to fall on the ice to save a quick shot by Keogh. Allman received the puck from Harris and put it in the net, but it was not allowed as the pass was forward. Shortly after this, there was a scrimmage in front of the Andover goal, and Keogh scored on a pass from Harris. Jackson again took a shot

HOCKEY PREVIEW

Today Andover meets the Tufts freshmen hockey team on the rink at Brothers Field. This will be the first game at home for the Blue since January 16, and everyone is urged to come out and support the team. The game commences at 2.30.

Not much is known about the visitor's team. Last Saturday they held their first practice on ice and thus have had only a week in which to prepare for today's game. However, in spite of their lack of practice, it is expected that they will furnish the Blue with good competition.

If the Andover men can play as well as they did on Wednesday, when they were defeated by Melrose, there is little doubt but that they will win easily. Since the M. I. T. game, the squad has really worked, and the result so far has been quite satisfactory. The forward line, by dint of much drill in passing, has developed into a steady, fast-moving, and well-functioning machine. They have learned to keep more to their lanes on the ice, as Coach Vaughn has been teaching them to do, and to cover more on defense. The lack of this covering of the opposing forwards in the Melrose game gave Melrose two of their goals. The defense, which seems to have improved much under the strenuous and expert coaching of Mr. Vaughn, ought to be more in evidence than heretofore. Neill, in goal, improved one hundred per cent between the M. I. T. and Melrose games, and if his improvement continues, it will take an expert shot to sink the puck in the net today.

VARSITY WRESTLING PREVIEW

The varsity wrestling team has been working out for the past few weeks under the watchful eyes of coach Carlson in preparation for this, the first meet of the season. Prospects for a victory in this encounter are good, although the scarcity of knowledge concerning the makeup of the Tufts squad makes positive predictions impossible.

This year's schedule is an extremely difficult one, since all the opponents to be met are college freshmen. Two weeks after today's match, M. I. T. will bring a strong squad to Andover, and on the following Saturday the Blue team will journey to New Haven to meet the Yale cubs. After this struggle a fortnight will elapse before the closing of the season in the annual meeting with the Harvard first-year men. In order to come out with any degree of success in a group of contests such as these Mr. Carlson will have to develop one of those very strong teams such as have made him famous on the hill. As to whether or not this year's aggregation will be as strong as last year's group was, is hard to tell.

In the one hundred and fifteen pound class Rowland, a man with a lot of experience, has evidently clinched the right to represent the school. His opponent, Anderson, is as quick as lightning, but unfortunately is handicapped by inexperience. However, a year under coach Carlson, and he will undoubtedly be a first rate wrestler. In the trial matches, Rowland won by a fall in the final thirty seconds.

The one hundred and twenty-five pound class position is being contested by Lasater and Byrne. The former, a heady courageous fighter, will most probably face Tufts this afternoon, for he won a time decision over his rival in the trial contests. Byrne is an extremely strong man with a bone-crushing head-lock. Should he be able to add a little versatility to his attack, Lasater will have to be careful.

Wednesday, McGauley, by capturing his trial bout from Bearn, earned the privilege of once more being Andover's first choice in the one hundred and thirty-five pound division. McGauley, as is well known, is a most capable performer, and he will doubtless capture the great majority of his bouts. Long experience and a sound knowledge of the technique of the game, gave the victor his advantage over Bearn. The loser has a great deal of ability and has come on amazingly fast this year. Added to what he has been taught, he possesses a sturdy, rugged physique, and these qualities make of him a most dangerous opponent. It certainly is unfortunate that two such good men should happen to be candidates for the same position.

Eiseman, one of the most promising and one of the best men on the squad, will occupy the one hundred and forty-five pound berth, his understudy being Crandon. Eiseman is quick and slippery, and one of his greatest assets is the alert, clever style with which he wrestles. Andover may expect much from this man.

The two heavy-weight groups—the one hundred and fifty-eight and the one hundred and seventy-five—will be taken care of by Walden and Barrows respectively. The substitutes in these last two divisions are Craft and Trexler.

On paper the team seems to be pretty well balanced, although there are some men about whose ability there is a little doubt. We hope that this afternoon will see the end of that doubt. The wrestlers face the season with quiet confidence and determination. The most that the school can do for them is to give them continued unflinching support.

CLUB WRESTLING

The results of the first club wrestling meet of the season held on Wednesday at two P. M. were good. The Romans barely won from the Greeks with a final score of 9-8, and the Gauls overwhelmed the Saxons 18-3. There will be a great deal of rivalry this winter, as the majority of the matches were decision matches. The teams were made up largely of last year's men. The prospects for the Gauls, who have a very quick and strong team, as judged from Wednesday's meet, look very good. The outstanding match was probably that between Cooper and Brown, in which the former won a decision, although Brown put up a very good fight.

The Romans and the Greeks were first on the program with Bloomberg of the Romans and Gordon of the Greeks wrestling team in the 115 lb. class. From the beginning, Gordon distinctly had the advantage and in two and one half minutes threw Bloomberg. The 135 lb. class was next with Burgweger for the Romans and Bodwell for the Greeks. The entire six minutes Burgweger, who went through last season undefeated, was on top but could not turn Bodwell over, for he put up a stiff and game fight. Fry of the 125 lb. class then won a decision over Alexander, who wrestled for the Greeks. Next was the 145 lb. class, in which Cooper for the Romans succeeded in getting a decision over Brown of the Greeks. For several moments neither had the advantage, and the match was full of action which caused it to hold a greater interest than the other matches. Last was the 155 lb. class in which Townend won a decision over Kidston of the Romans after having a hard time holding the latter down. The Romans won with a score of 9-8. The Saxons then met the Gauls. In the 135 lb. class Dines got a decision over his Saxon opponent, Chase, in a good match. Dines was on top most of the time, but Chase got away several times. Benwell for the Gauls pinned Bull in the 135 lb. class in four minutes. It was a good match in which both gave all they had. Breed for the Gauls in the 145 lb. class put Hotchkiss down in five minutes after a good fight. For three minutes neither had the advantage, after which Hotchkiss nearly had Breed, who got away, came back, and put Hotchkiss down. A. Y. Rogers, a Saxon, in the last match, got a well earned decision over Barclay in the 155 lb. class. For the first four minutes it was a toss-up. In the last two minutes Barclay got a headlock on Rogers but could not get out from under him. The Gauls won 18-3.

at the Melrose net, but it went wide. Keogh and Harris skated down the ice, but McDougall broke up their combination with a poke-check. The Blue second line came in and at once took the puck down by the Melrose goal, where they lost it. Harris recovered it, dashed quickly down the ice, and caused a pile-up when Neill fell on top of him to save the goal. A few minutes later, Harris again beat the others down and forced Neill to bat the puck away with his stick. Rugg and Jackson went down the ice several times but did not get near enough to shoot. Bachman broke up the combination of Keogh and Harris but failed to score with a long shot. Following a substitution, McDonald for Harris, an attempt for a goal made by McDonald was stopped by Neill. Soon afterwards, substitutions were made in the Blue line, and the period ended with our forwards down in front of the Melrose goal.

After a three-minute rest, the original teams lined up for the opening whistle of the second period. Jackson at once received the puck and went down the ice but failed to get very near the goal. Bryant and Fawcett both missed scoring with close shots. Keogh and Harris came toward the Blue goal but were checked. Then Allman passed the puck to Harris who slipped it into a corner of the net which Neill could not reach. The Andover line forced a play around the Melrose goal but did not succeed in getting past Kinney. Neill stopped two hard shots and a long one from center-ice by Harris. Jackson and Fawcett got in front of the goal, but were checked by Spadafora. The Melrose forwards got down in front of our net and caused a mix-up, out of which McDougall emerged with the puck. He nearly scored when the puck ricocheted off Kinney's pads, but the latter stopped it with his stick. After nine minutes of play, the third goal was scored by Harris, who had managed to evade the Blue men on a solo dash down the ice. The Melrose forward line was relieved. Shortly after this, Bachman fell down in back of Hannigan, who in turn fell over the Blue player. The Andover substitutes came in and carried the play away from their own goal.

The teams lined up as before for the third period. Melrose immediately began a dash to the Blue cage, resulting in much congestion in front of the net. Allman got the puck and tried to pass out to Keogh and Harris, who stood directly before the Blue net, but the timely interference of Fawcett sent the puck sliding toward the Melrose end of the ice. Keogh again shot, but the puck bounced harmlessly off Neill's pads. Harris again made a one-man attempt to score, but this time did not get beyond Jackson, who then went down with McDougall to try a shot. Allman passed to Harris, but the latter lost the puck to Wing, who narrowly missed scoring when Kinney was caught off his guard. The Blue's second line came in and had some trouble in stopping Melrose's rush toward our goal. Neill made several stops before McDougall finally got possession of the puck and kept it down in front of Kinney for a while. Allman got close to Neill and forced him to stop a hard shot with his hand. Just before the game ended the Melrose substitutes came in and gave Andover a chance to get the puck away from their own goal
