YALE FRESHMAN TEAM WILL OPPOSE BLUE IN BASEBALL TODAY

Andover to Face Strong Opposition Today

BROACA WILL PITCH

This afternoon at New Haven the Blue nine will meet the Yale freshmen. Wednesday's defeat by St. John's Prep did not brighten the general outlook for today's game, but it doubtless gave the team experience that will prove very useful.

The Andover lineup will be practically the same as that of Wednesday. Trexler or Broaca will pitch with R. Brown substituting. In Wednesday's game it was Trexler who prevented the St. John's score from mounting higher than it did. His brand of ball was remarkable with the support he received. A. M. Rogers will catch. His play has been good in the last few games and his batting above the average of the team. Jackson will hold down his regular position at first. His form for the first game or two was exceptionally good, but the game on Wednesday seemed to have caught him on an "off day" and, though his playing at times was up to his usual standard, he did not seem to be up to par. Wing or Wilson will be on the second sack. This position has not yet been definitely filled, but both candidates are equally good, and competition should be close. Mettler will be at shortstop. His play so far this season has been good, although occasionally marred by errors. Captain Kimball will be at third. His work has been one of the bright spots in the team's playing, and, though not particularly strong at the bat, his fielding average has been exceptionally good. Batchelder will be in right field with Allen as a possible substitute. Mayer or Bassett will play in center. Bassett's fielding and batting averages have been remarkably good. C. P. Williamson will be in left field.

BLUE NINE DEFEATED BY ST. JOHN'S PREP

Game Marred by Many Errors by Andover

SCORE 7-2

Last Wednesday the Blue Nine met its third defeat by a score of two to seven at the hands of St. John's Prep which turned out a very skillful team. The large number of errors which the Andover men made were principally the cause of this defeat. Both teams were handicapped somewhat by rain in the first inning, and a high wind, which caused several flies to be missed. Trexler pitched a very fine game walking only four men, but he was not sufficiently backed by either the infield or the outfield.

Lashua for St. John's began the hitting by getting a two-base hit which was followed by a long one between center and left field, causing the first error, as it was missed by Bassett and Williamson, who collided with each other. Although our opponents managed to fill the bases, no runs were made. Our team succeeded in going out in one, two, three order.

MUSICAL CLUBS IN JOINT CONCERT WITH BRAD- FORD ACADEMY CHOIR

Both Schools to Sing To- gether In Two Numbers

Another feature of the Musical season will be introduced this evening when the Andover Glee Club sings at Bradford in a joint concert with that institution. So splendidly did the Andover fellows acquit themselves in the recent concert with Exeter that one may reasonably expect that they will do very well tonight.

The Glee Club will depart for Bradford at about three o'clock and, after dining there, will take part in a dance before the commencement of the evening's festivities.

The Andover singers will present a program identical with the one that they sang in the concert with Exeter. It may be remembered that, at that time, they rendered, with especial skill, the "Song of The Volga Boatman", the Russian peasant song, Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory", and "Land Sighting" by Grieg. If the Club does half as well in singing these selections as it did when Exeter was here, it will still be well worth listening to. As a special feature, C. P. Emerson, who performed so well will play some violin solos.

It is not known definitely just which selections the Bradford girls will present. Their talent is, however, a known quantity, and whatever pieces they have chosen will undoubtedly be well rendered.

There are two selections on the program in which both schools will take part. These are—"Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones", composed by a seventeenth century writer, and "The Heavens are Telling" from the Oratorio "The Creation" by Haydn. Each of these tunes is stirring and beautiful and it is hoped and expected that they will be very pleasingly given. The Bradford Club will appear at Andover on Wednesday to give a return-rital.

The partial program follows:
ANDOVER GLEE CLUB
"Song of The Volga Boatman"
Russian Folk Song
"Land of Hope and Glory"
Elgar
"Laudamus" (Bryn Calfarina)
Welsh (Protheroe)
"Land Sighting"
Grieg
COMBINED GLEE CLUBS
"Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones"
17th. Century Master
"The Heavens are Telling"

Anthropologists, Under Presidency of Dr. Kidder Will Meet Today in Andover

On Saturday there will be held at the Department of Archaeology the first meeting of the Executive Committee of the Laboratory of Anthropology at Santa Fe, an institution recently organized by representatives of the universities and museums of the United States, and endowed by Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The meeting will be attended by Professor R. B. Dixon of Harvard University; Professor Fay-Cooper Cole of the University of Chicago; President J. F. Zimmerman of the University of New Mexico; Dr. H. C. Bumpus

EXETER NINE GAINS FOURTH VICTORY

Second Track Team Defeat- ed by Lawrence High

TENNIS TEAM WINS

(Special to the Phillipian)

The Exeter nine kept its slate clean by winning over New Hampton School 6-1. This is Exeter's fourth straight victory. Reid, who has been a relief pitcher this season, started on the mound for the Red and Gray, and pitched nine innings, allowing only four hits. Rich, of Exeter, batted well, making two doubles in three times at bat. Cole, batting in the visitors' only run, was their star.

Wednesday afternoon the second track team of Exeter lost to the Lawrence High School aggregation by the score of 63 2-3 to 35 1-3. The Exeter team took no first places at all, except in the broad jump, in which they scored a clean sweep.

The Lowell High School Tennis team was downed by the Red and Gray netmen by the overwhelming score of 21-0. Twenty-one matches is probably the most that have ever been played in one meet at the school. Munger, number one man, was unable to play because of illness.

In an uninteresting match, the Exeter golfers overcame Dummer Academy 9-0. There were no spectacular shots or plays in the game.

Wednesday evening, in the Academy chapel, Mr. Samuel Scoville, Jr., of Philadelphia gave an interesting talk on "World of the Wild Folk".

Plans for the Southern Club Dance, to be held May 11, are rapidly progressing.

TRACK TEAM TO FACE YALE FRESHMEN AT NEW HAVEN TODAY

Opponents Unusually Strong in Every Event

TEAM LEFT FRIDAY

In the track meet this afternoon at Yale Andover will be very hard pressed if it expects to emerge victorious. The Yale team is one of the strongest freshman teams in the country, and has for its captain one of Andover's fastest track men last year, H. Barres, P. A. '28. Andover is also represented on the Yale track team by Tate, Lee, Abell, Mendenhall, Gould, Rowland, Miller, and Avery. Avery, because of a bad leg acquired last winter, will be unable to compete in anything but the discus throw. However, it is expected that he will recover his customary versatility later in the season.

The way the Yale team overwhelmed New Haven High School in an informal meet last Monday shows its strength. Yale, taking every single place save one second, scored 105 points to its opponent's 3.

In order to spend Friday night in New Haven the track team, including twenty-eight men, left Boston at 3.00, arriving at their destination at 6.41. Immediately after the meet the team will take the 4.49 train from New Haven which reaches Back Bay station at 8.30. There a bus will take them to Andover.

TENNIS TEAM ALSO TO PLAY AT NEW HAVEN

Opponents are Powerful and Well-Trained

HARD MATCHES EXPECTED

At New Haven, today, the thus-far-extremely-successful Andover Tennis team will engage in a match with the Yale freshmen. This will be the first contest of the year for the yearlings, so that their strength is an unknown quantity. Judging though, from the teams of the past few seasons, Yale will be very well represented. The exact makeup of their squad not having been definitely decided upon, the list below is merely that of the players from whom the team will be chosen.

Andover, with a fine nucleus of new and old stars, appears to be set for a splendid season. In recent matches, Captain Paine, McWilliams, and Smith have been playing the strongest and most consistent games, with the rest of the squad not far behind. Loftus, regular first string singles man, being unable to accompany the squad to New Haven, will have his place taken by Neff. In the doubles, the latter will pair with Sykes, who is also an excellent performer.

INTERESTING LECTURE GIVEN BY PROFESSOR MICHAEL DORIZAS

Speaks on Present Day Sit- uation of the Baltic States

LARGE AUDIENCE

Last evening Prof. Michael Dorizas of the University of Pennsylvania gave one of the most interesting lectures given here this year. He spoke very emphatically and plainly on the conditions now prevalent in the Balkan states, and illustrated his points throughout by slides. Prof. Dorizas is a man much the same type as Count Luckner and makes his appeal in a similar manner. For many years he was the heavyweight wrestling champion of Greece and for three years international champion. His athletic slant did not stop here as he was a skillful javelin thrower, and gained second place in the Olympics in this event. This was the first time that he has spoken here since he was here fifteen years ago, when he challenged five of the biggest men in school to turn him over. Needless to say, they were unsuccessful in their attempts. Prof. Dorizas has enjoyed great popularity throughout the world and has great political influence in the Balkan States.

He gave first, after being presented by Dr. Fuess, a brief history of these states discussing their two great wars. He showed in what way the results of these wars were outstanding causes of the great World War, and the clever political tricks which were done by these countries for their own interests. One of the features of the lecture was the slides of the Balkan peasants. There were some very interesting pictures of their customs and dress. The pictures of the scenery of the country were quite artistic and gave one an accurate impression of their beauty and climate, which closely rivals that of California.

Throughout the lecture he related humorous stories illustrating his points, which, combined with his frank and free way of putting things, quickly won over the audience. The lecture was of particular interest to those who are taking or have taken courses dealing with these states and their conditions.

After the lecture, Prof. Dorizas challenged Andover's heavyweight for a few rounds, next Sunday.

ANDOVER GOLFERS TO MEET NEW PREP

Team Exceptionally Strong and Well-Balanced

ELLIS FIRST MAN

This afternoon the Andover Golf team will open its season in a match with the New Prep. Ever since the opening of the term, the Andover squad has been hard at work developing its material for the rather difficult schedule which Manager Lardner has arranged.

Thomas A. Edison is again offering an unusual scholarship in order to insure the carrying on of his work, which has been so vastly more helpful to the world of practical science and to the human race during the past fifty years than that of any other one man. Mr. Edison, his son announces, will pay all tuition fees for the four years of a college course to the secondary school student who gives the best answers to a questionnaire which he is sending out. His former questionnaires have required in the answering a varied knowledge of all sorts of subjects by no means on scientific topics alone. Feeling the burden of advancing years, the great inventor wishes to find his successor in the world of science, and hopes to do so by one of these questionnaires.

Ex-president Coolidge, who we believe said more words during the six years of his administration than any other president, must have got a good deal of practice in writing while preparing his speeches. For a few days ago he completed his forty-five-thousand-word autobiography, having started it in January; he thus sets a mark for any professional writer to aim at with numerous magazine articles and a complete autobiography (embracing fully the story of our country during this period) finished in a little over three months.

Statesmen and executives seem to be able to waste as much time and be as silly over trifles as children. Mrs. Gann's social position as sister of Vice-president Curtis, with Indian blood in her veins (think of that!), has caused almost as much commotion in Washington, apparently, as ever the 'I'm Alone' sinking. Emily Post, who spends her potential talent on matters of etiquette, declares that in Washington etiquette is vitally important, and makes out a list of political officials in the order of their social precedence, embracing thirty-eight dignitaries of all conceivable branches. The vice-president ranks third on the list if the president is absent; but if not, the poor man drops way down to seventh place, which would even put him off a tennis team. Senators elected on "the same day are ranked according to the date of admission of their respective states; or, in case of the original thirteen states, according to their population." Postmen are omitted from the list.

NOTICES

A letter has just been received at the office stating that Dartmouth College will accept College Board Examinations on both the new and the old plan this year.

Reverend James Gordon Gilkey of Springfield, Mass., has consented to preach the Baccalaureate Sermon this year on June 9. He will perform this duty at Wellesley College on the same date.

Reverend W. B. Bryan of The First Presbyterian Church of Princeton, New Jersey, will preach at both services tomorrow.

CLUB BASEBALL GETS A START

At last after about three weeks of delay because of bad weather, club baseball has finally started. Although the fields were a bit soggy, the first game was played Tuesday.

The Gauls beat the Saxons 8 to 3. The game was not very exciting because of the errors which were made. But these may be excused on the ground of lack of practice. The pitching on both sides was good for the first game of the year, but the lack of support behind the pitcher was the cause of the Gaul's victory.

The Romans easily defeated the Greeks by a score of 5 to 2. Burke Smith pitched a good game, but he got tired towards the last and was replaced by Rugg, a former all-club player. Wiggin twirled for the Greeks, but lack of sufficient support spoiled his chance of keeping the Romans from scoring. In the last inning when the Greeks were at bat, the bases were loaded, and there were no outs, Rugg replaced Smith and then two men were put out at the plate and the last was struck out.

Thursday the Greeks met with defeat at the hand of the Saxons, who won by a score of 12 to 5. On the Greek team the catching was not what it should have been, and their hitting was weak. Wiggin pitched for the Greeks, but his backing was poor. The Saxons have a very promising team, and their prospects for the season are good. They are particularly strong in batting.

By an exciting rally in the last inning the Gauls nosed out the Romans by a score of 5 to 4. The Romans started out with such good playing that it looked like an easy victory for them. In the first inning Morgan, Marshall, and Kettle journeyed around the bases and reached home plate safely. There was a great deal of competition between the catchers, and more than once the score was dependent solely upon them. In the second inning Ogden and Clark brought in two runs for the Gauls, thus making the score 3 to 2. Later in the game each side added two more runs to its score. Although the Romans managed to fill the bags in the fourth they did not succeed in scoring.

Friday the Greeks were defeated for the third time in three games.

The Gauls won 6 to 5. This game was the best that the Greeks have played, and also the closest. In place of Wiggin, their first pitcher, they had Bartlett in the box. He had a very good curve ball which held the Gauls down to few hits.

Clever base running and all-round good playing against the Romans won another game for the Saxons 5 to 0. They started off with one run in the first inning. However, the cleverest bit of playing was displayed when with two men on bases Sumner, for the Saxons, lined one out to center field which, because of the strong wind, turned out to be little better than a "Texas Leaguer". Nevertheless, the two runs were brought in. Kellogg and Scott crossed the plate and with a man on second and third the pitcher threw to second and Sumner easily brought in the fifth run. The Romans were last at bat but could not toe the mark.

GOLFERS TO MEET NEW PREP

Ellis, who has come up so rapidly thus far, will play the number one man position due to his recent startling victory over Captain Couch. Ellis is a new man in the school but a veteran in Golf; much is expected from him.

Captain Couch will occupy the number two berth. His ability is well known and he appears to be a probable winner for the Blue.

The number three man will be T. Lawrence, who won the right to his position by an unexpected but convincing win from Goldberger.

Goldberger has played amazingly fine golf all year and is looked on as very much of a coming star. He will be the fourth man.

Rasmussen will be Andover's other representative in the singles matches. Like many other members of the team, he is a new man. So far, his game has been satisfactorily consistent, and will undoubtedly continue to be so.

Since it is planned to have only five singles encounters, Hayes, the number six man, will not take part in an individual match. He may, though, enter the foursome competitions.

Rosenfeld, who last year attended this academy, is the only member of the opposition about whom there is any information. The rest of the team, however, is strong without doubt.

The first contest will begin at two o'clock on the home course of the Andover squad, The Andover Country Club.

TRACK MEET WITH YALE FRESH

Although the field events are usually a clean sweep for the Blue, today's competition will undoubtedly prove more difficult. In the pole vault D. Smith will take the place of Laundon, who has been incapacitated by a sprained ankle. Lee, who pole vaulted for Andover last year, will represent Yale in that event. Crawford, who was a Hill School jumper last year, will be exceedingly difficult to beat in the high jump since he has done six feet and over this year. Moore, however, will push him to the limit and may succeed in out-jumping him.

The broad jump, too, is one of Yale's strong points, for they have a consistent 22 ft. jumper in Henry. Here, also, Moore will put up stiff competition, but he will have to do unusually good work in order to oust Henry from first place. The Blue javelin throwers will have to face two members of last year's varsity squad, Gould and Rowland, but they have good chance of taking this event. Uihlein of the freshmen has been doing such excellent work in the shot put that the chance of an Andover first place is small since the Yale man has been doing about fifty feet. Avery, star of last year's team, who competed at that time in six events, taking in the Exeter meet three first places and three seconds, will be a hard man to beat in the discus throw. Andover has a good chance to do some scoring in the hammer throw since Yale is not over-proficient in this line. The freshmen are especially powerful in the hurdles, both high and low. Fates of Exeter's '28 track team is a place winner in not only the low hurdles but also in the century. Tritle, another Hill School athlete, is a dangerous man in either of the two hurdles. Last year he took a first and second place in the Yale Interscholastics. These were in the low and high hurdles respectively.

The hundred-yard dash will probably be a fight between Osborne and Fates, but it is hard to tell who the winner will be. Andover seems to have a slight edge in the two hundred and twenty-yard dash. Andover's chances in the quarter-mile look very slim against a runner like Anderson who is rated as one of the best freshmen quarter-milers in the country. The half-mile will undoubtedly be one of the most closely contested events of the meet between French and Capt. Barres of Yale. Although the mile run will undoubtedly have a close finish Duchesne ought to arrive there before any of his rivals.

SUNDAY RECITAL

Dr. Pfatteicher will give his usual Sunday Organ Recital tomorrow immediately following the Chapel service. At that time he will play the following selections:

BLUE DEFEATED BY ST. JOHNS

Donovan scored the first run for the visitors in the second inning as a result of Funchion's and Palerm's hits, but the side was soon retired when two flies were caught, and Murphy was put out on first. Kimball got as far as first, only to be caught stealing second. Mettler got walked, putting men on first and second, and Rogers made a beautiful hit, bringing in Batchelder for our first run. However, the side was soon retired. Nothing of interest occurred until the fourth inning, when the score was raised to 3-2 in favor of our opponents.

After one out, Curran made a run after his hit was followed up by Donovan's and Funchion's. The next two men went quickly out, however. At the beginning of the sixth inning, despite Murphy's being walked, St. John's got only as far as second. In the seventh inning St. John's again scored. Although Curran and Donovan were both put out after they had gotten hits, Funchion got a one-base hit and succeeded in stealing to third. Palerm followed suit and stole to second. Lashua was put out on first, but Funchion got home in time to make a run. Rogers was put out on first, and Trexler struck out. St. John's got as far as third in the eighth inning. However, no other scores were made, leaving the final score 7 to 2 in favor of St. John's.

SQUIRE DUVEENECK BY FRANK DUVEENECK

ART GALLERY: No. 5

The intensely interesting portrait of Squire Duveneek, another from the Academy's collection, was painted by Frank Duveneek, the first of American instructors to make brush work, instead of crayon drawing, the foundation of a picture. Indeed, there is no trace of charcoal outline on the unfinished arm of his most famous work, "The Whistling Boy".

The painting of the squire certainly bears out his instructions to his pupils that the head of a portrait should have the utmost concentration first of all. "Paint that until it lives," he would say, "and then paint the rest up to it."

The squire appears to be a resolute man of strong character. The groove over his right eye, the slight scowl, and the turned down corner of his lip seem to imply that he is not wholly pleased with the idea of having his picture painted; in fact, there seems to be a lot of character in his face which is hard to read. It will be found that as you study the picture it will seem to grow on you until you will soon feel as if you had known the man in real life.

All painters have a pet color which may or may not predominate in the picture. Duveneek's was a muddy brown, and in the case of this picture, was used without much restraint. Although the color is easy to see how such a jovial and burly man could inspire an almost passionate devotion in his young men. Immature artists under his influence were bound to develop an enthusiasm for the kind of painting that interested him.

not striking it is very carefully blended, and his broad, direct strokes are carried out with dashing assurance. The squire's hair and beard are not done in detail, yet the effect is pleasingly gained by the use of light and shade. The depth and solidity of the whole man is outstanding.

Duveneek was born in 1848, in Cincinnati. At the age of twenty-two he sailed for Germany, where he studied art under Wilhelm Dietz. In 1873 he returned from Munich to Cincinnati and exhibited the work which he had done abroad. Fame, however, did not come to him until he went to Boston in 1875. Soon after, flushed with triumph, he returned to Bavaria. This time he taught at a town called Polling, located in the Bavarian Alps. Sociable and popular, he met with almost immediate success. Those of his students who later became the best known were: Twachtman, John Alexander, and Joseph De Camp; the latter in more recent years painted Duveneek's portrait which now hangs in the Cincinnati Museum. Duveneek was large and powerful, with a strong face and a mass of undisciplined hair. It is

From Bavaria he moved to Italy, where he later came in close contact with Whistler, who was living at Venice. In Florence he started a new class which Twachtman again joined. He taught his students to impart the painter's rather than draughtsman's point of view. Instead of completing an elaborately shaded drawing and then painting over it, following every line and detail closely, he taught the student to block out the subject boldly in large masses, afterwards laying on successive coatings of color, and finally touching it up, producing an ensemble effect by gradually advancing all parts of the canvas simultaneously through the separate stages to a finish.

In 1880 he was married in Paris, but two years later his wife died and he returned to Cincinnati. The coolness of Cincinnati's welcome to her son in 1873 was corrected later, and today he is a hero. Since that time the city has embraced every opportunity to do him honor.

He resumed his teaching in 1882 and had great influence in the Cincinnati Museum to which, in 1915, he gave a collection of his works.

One of his biographers states that Duveneek derived his special inspiration from Rembrandt and the Dutch schools, but this seems probable only from the standpoint of his coloring. He remained quite aloof from all new movements in art. His work reflects the results of Munich training before the artist learned for himself the effects of nature's lighting. If he could have exchanged the atmosphere of the studio for that of the open air he would have been still greater.

"Elizabeth Booth Duveneek", "A Man in a Spanish Coat", and "The Whistling Boy", are probably his best known paintings.

Duveneek had a passion for good workmanship, and his success in instilling this in his pupils, whether carried out in his way or their own, helped later to lift American painting to a new level.

YALE BASEBALL TODAY

The Yale team started off the season by winning from Worcester Academy and Hun School, 6-3 and 16-10, respectively, and losing to the United States Naval Academy in a close game, 3-1. The team as a whole has played very consistently, considering the fact that the men have worked together for such a short time. Taylor, a southpaw, will probably pitch, with Newton as a possible substitute, and H. Jones, P. A. '28, or Maine will catch. Jones was last year's captain and catcher here and reports from New Haven state that he is doing good work. Hall will be on first with Buck substituting. Jones will play second, in the event that he does not catch. Captain Booth will be at short. He is now captaining his third team for the Freshmen, having been captain of the football and basketball teams in the Fall and Winter. Warren will be at third. In the field, Venning, Heim, and Ingram or Pond will play right, center, and left, respectively.

Both teams appear to be evenly matched. The Andover team has had a little more experience, but the Yale men have been playing good ball and the outcome of the game is doubtful. The lineup:

ANDOVER	YALE '32
Trexler, p.	p., Taylor
A. M. Rogers, c.	c., Maine
Jackson, 1b.	1b., Hall
Wing, 2b.	2b., Jones
Mettler, ss.	ss., Booth
Kimball, 3b.	3b., Warren
Batchelder, rf.	rf., Venning
Bassett, cf.	cf., Heim
C. P. Williamson, lf.	lf., Ingram

CLUB BASEBALL

In order to make up for the large number of games that have been cancelled so far this season, there will be two contests this afternoon.

The first game, in which the Romans face the Greeks, will start at one thirty. At two forty-five the Saxons will take the field against the Gauls. Providing that the Varsity diamond is in suitable condition, both games will take place there.

RUB AWAY THOSE MUSCULAR ACHES

Early season sports often bring into play muscles grown lazy through winter's inactivity. What happens? You feel just like a first-class bewhiskered grand old dad who needs a cane. Use Absorbine Jr. at once. It will relieve the aches and stiffness, bring you back into top form again. Any time you are fagged out, a diluted Absorbine Jr. rubdown will invigorate, stimulate circulation, give you new vigor. With its many uses, a bottle of Absorbine, Jr. is handy to have around.

RENSSELAER POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE

TROY, NEW YORK

A School of Engineering and Science

THE Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute was established at Troy, New York, in 1824, and is the oldest school of engineering and science in the United States. Students have come to it from all of the states and territories of the Union and from thirty-nine foreign countries. At the present time, there are over 1400 students enrolled at the school.

Four year courses leading to degrees are offered, in Civil, Mechanical, Electrical and Chemical Engineering, in Architecture and in Business Administration, Physics, Chemistry, and Biology. Graduates of the engineering courses are prepared to take up work in any branch of engineering. Graduates of the course in Architecture are prepared to practice their profession in any of its branches. Graduates of the course in Business Administration are prepared for careers in business for the study of law. Graduates of the courses in Physics and Chemistry are fitted for research and teaching in these fields, as well as for practice in many branches of applied science. The course in Biology prepares for research in teaching, for work in sanitary engineering and public health, and for the study of medicine and dentistry.

Graduates of any of the above courses may continue their work in the Graduate School of the Institute. The Master's Degree is conferred upon satisfactory completion of one year's work and the Doctor's Degree for three year's work.

The method of instruction is unique and very thorough, and in all departments the laboratory equipment is unusually complete.

Interesting illustrated pamphlets giving information regarding the courses of study and the methods of instruction and containing views of the campus, buildings, and laboratories, the student activities, and the work of graduates, may be had by applying to the Registrar.
