

ARMILLARY SPHERE HAS ARRIVED FROM FRANCE

Work of Art Designed in Paris by Paul Manship

SET UP BETWEEN BARTLET AND FOXCROFT

At last the pedestal between Foxcroft and Bartlet Halls which has stood empty so long is filled. The armillary sphere, which occupies it, has been under construction for over a year. It is a gift to the Academy by Mr. Thomas Cochran. Paul Manship, the designer, is one of America's foremost sculptors although he is now living in France. He is the winner of many prizes and his works are an exhibition in many of the large museums of the country. In the Trustee's room in George Washington Hall are two small figures of his workmanship.

The sphere, which was cast in Paris, is one of his masterpieces. It represents the "Cycle of Life." Of course, its primary purpose is to tell time by means of the sun; however, it is even more a work of artistic beauty. The superstructure is supported by a base of beautifully carved turtles. Besides the main group, a man, woman, and child, the cycle of life, there is carving on all parts. On one large band are engraved the signs of the zodiac: Aries, the ram; Taurus, the bull; Gemini, the twins; Cancer, the crab; Leo, the lion; Virgo, the virgin; Libra, the balance; Scorpio, the scorpion; Sagittarius, the archer; Capricornus, the goat; Aquarius, the water carrier; and Pisces, the fish. Each of these is a work of art in itself. Through the center runs an arrow which points toward the north star and by which the time is told. On the large outer circle are symbols of fire. On the other circles, representing the equator and the horizon, are symbols of water, air and earth. On the whole work, there are over one hundred different signs. The sphere is nine feet in diameter and is made of bronze covered with gold leaf. This work will make a fine addition to the collection of fine arts which is being made at Andover, and, since there is only one other like it in the world, will probably be a center of admiration for people from all parts of the country.

DR. STEARNS REPRESENTS PREP SCHOOLS AT BARBOUR DINNER

IS ONE OF SPEAKERS AT INAUGURAL OF BROWN'S NEW PRESIDENT

Last night Dr. Alfred E. Stearns was one of the principal speakers at the inaugural dinner for Dr. Clarence Barbour, new President of Brown University. Dr. Barbour is well known to Andover students, as he has for many years been the preacher after the Exeter game. Dr. Stearns, who is one of his close personal friends, represented the preparatory schools at last night's dinner while Dr. James Rowland Angell, President of Yale University, the other speaker, represented the colleges.

GAUL POLO TEAM WINS, SWAMPING ROMANS 5-2

Saxons Blank Greeks in First Games

Club Polo, which has recently become a recognized sport, has begun with two games, one played last Wednesday and one this Wednesday. In the first game the Saxons defeated the Greeks three to nothing, and in the second the Romans were beaten by the Gauls, five to two. Next week the two winning teams will play.

The last game showed that we have some good players. It was a hard fought contest in spite of the score. The Gaul captain, Nathaniel T. Clark, who is also varsity captain, played an outstanding game throughout, scoring four goals although he played back. Guerin scored the other point for the winning team. On the Romans, Buckingham and Wickwire made a goal each. Buckingham, although able to score only once, due to Clark's fine defense, was the best player on the Romans. Only one substitution was made in the game when Batten went in for Guerin on the Gauls.

Polo has proved quite a popular sport and many more are expected to go out for it this spring. Probably it will rise still farther in prominence, for it has an irresistible appeal for those who play it.

Wednesday's lineup was as follows:

GAULS	ROMANS
Guerin (Batten), 1.	1. Wickwire
Royal, 2.	2. Spitzer
N. T. Clark, 3.	3. Buckingham

BLUE SOCCER TEAM TO MEET YALE ON OLD CAMPUS AT 2:30

Four Ex-Andover Men on Yale Team This Afternoon

This afternoon at two thirty on the old campus, Andover's soccer team will meet the Yale Freshmen. Thus far in the season neither team has lost a game; consequently a close match can be expected. However, due to the skillful passing attack which is the Blue's greatest threat, another victory should be added to the long string accumulated during the past decade.

Old soccer fans will have the opportunity of seeing our ex-captain and star, Jim Bannon, in action. He has his old position at fullback and is well able to make it his team's strongest link. Three other ex-Andover men, Crane, Barclay, and Burgweger have berths with the Freshmen. Crane is at half-back while Barclay and Burgweger are forwards. Little is known of the remaining players except that they all are fully capable of presenting a strong, steady attack.

In opposition Andover has an equally strong team. There are no brilliant stars, but each man forms a unit which, collected, goes far to produce teamwork, a vital essential to victory. If the same style of play is exhibited against Yale as was shown in the all-club game Wednesday, the Blue need not worry as to the outcome.

The Andover lineup will be:

ro., Wolcott; ri., Neff; c., Fawcett (capt.); li., Butler; lo., Murray; rh., Greenway; ch., Curtis; lh., Lang; rf., Wheeler; lf., Rickard; g., Neill.

EXETER NOTES

FACULTY GRANTS WIRELESS PERMIT

Last year a member of the Scientific Society petitioned to the faculty for permission to install a wireless station, and this privilege has just been granted. This student is a licensed operator and is bringing from home his powerful short wave set on which he has sent to and received from all parts of the world. In addition a new set will probably be installed in the near future.

FOOTBALL

The Exeter team is in good shape in spite of the handicap imposed by the persistent bad weather of last week, which made only one scrimmage possible. Though the ground was slippery, about forty-five minutes of hard scrimmage was possible. The remaining part of the week was spent in developing some new plays and perfecting the old ones, as well as in practice of the offense and defence of overhead passing.

MOVIE NOTICE

Mr. Dye wishes us to state that the apparently capricious changes made in movie bookings are due to the fact that he rents films through an independent distributor and thus is not always able to obtain certain films as previously announced. By purchasing these films in this manner the cost is very materially reduced, and for that reason your indulgence is asked in the matter of the occasional changes necessary.

GAULS AND SAXONS ARE WINNERS IN CLUB GAMES

Greeks Get No First Downs; Saxons and Gauls Still Tied

SAXON-GREEK

Wednesday afternoon, the powerful Saxon team fulfilled expectations by swamping the Greeks 19-0. The heavy Saxon line did not allow the Greeks a single first down. Early in the first period, the Saxons started their offensive. Two Greek fumbles and excellent running by Byington and Sumner brought the ball near the Greek goal, and Sumner carried it over. Byington added the extra point by running through the line. During the second quarter, no score was made. The Greeks here were at their best. The Greeks kicked off and Byington, by several beautiful runs, carried the ball to the Greek ten-yard line. Here the Greeks held, but Byington ran back a punt to the three-yard line. After being stopped for three downs, Sumner carried the ball over. The try for the extra point failed. After the Saxon kick-off, Donahoe intercepted a Greek forward pass and raced across for the final score of the game. In the final period, the Greeks managed to prevent any scoring. Byington was the star of the game, again and again running through the Greek line for ten or fifteen yards.

GAUL-ROMAN

The Gauls remained in a tie for first place with the Saxons by virtue of a six to nothing defeat over the Romans Wednesday. It was a very close game throughout and not until the whistle blew was the result sure. Morgan and Mayer played well in the Roman backfield and Phillips and Hallett were the best men in the line. Rose was very outstanding for the Gauls, Norris, also playing a good game.

Rose kicked off for the Gauls and himself tackled Mayer on the twenty-yard line. After a couple of plays Morgan kicked to Cuthbertson. The Gauls soon kicked but the Roman receiver fumbled and Willay recovered it for the greenstockings. The Gauls made little gain in the next few plays, a Roman offside off-setting a Gaul penalty for too much time in the huddle. Rose made six yards around end just before the quarter ended.

Near the beginning of the second period, after Sumner had downed

ANDOVER FOOTBALL TEAM TO MEET DEAN ELEVEN

Blue Team is Slight Favorite at Brothers Field This Afternoon

BERRIEN TO PLAY QUARTER- BACK

Today Andover is going to meet the Dean football eleven on Brothers Field. The Blue is a slight favorite to win the contest because of the excellent passing game which Coach Shepard has developed in his men. The Dean men have showed up quite well in the difficult schedule which they have followed. Although they were beaten last week by a very strong team from Worcester, Dean held her formidable opponents to two touchdowns. Neither team has been very successful as far as the total of games won is concerned, but there are several facts, including the handicap of a light team, which in the eyes of many atone for this.

The Dean lineup is to be very much the same as the one that she used last week. White will play the right end. He is a very good man for running down and blocking defensive punts. The other end will probably be Bowen, who was in the last game for Schmelzer, and who made a very nice blocking on the defense. The tackles are expected to be a very good job, with right and left respectively C. M. White, the brother of the end, will probably start at the center of the line. He is supposed to be one of the best "Prep" school centers in New England. He will be supported on either side by Fitzgerald and W. Cody. In the backfield it is expected that McMahon will start in the quarter-back position. He is also the safety man when Bead is on the defense. Ottaion and Marute will play in the right and left half-back positions respectively. Marute tried several forward passes in the game against Worcester; but, although they were unsuccessful it was through no fault on the part of his passing. Slinger, who

ROGER SULLIVAN AWARDS MADE IN MORNING CHAPEL

Mayer, Garrison, Goodale, and Lewis are Prize Winners

Last Tuesday morning in chapel, Dr. Stearns announced the winners of the Roger C. Sullivan Scholarships for improvement in scholastic standing. These prizes are among the most desirable, for they are open to all members of the student body. Four awards of $300 each are made each fall to those members of the Junior, Lower-Middle, Upper Middle, and Senior Classes, respectively, who have made the greatest improvement in scholarship during the preceding school year. This year, all winners made

Archaeology Department

Few students realize what a rare opportunity Andover presents to develop themselves in a scientific way. In America most students prepare for what business career whether or game they have leanings toward art or science. In this way we lose many potential scientific geniuses. The Europeans, who think less of money than we, allow their natures to develop as they will, and consequently are far ahead of us in culture. Yet there are some in a school like Andover who would really like to profit by the presence of the Archaeology Department. If any are planning to make science their profession, they would do well to see Dr. Kidder or Dr. Moorehead who would be glad to give them a chance to go on one of the numerous expeditions carried on by the department. Such experience would be of great aid in college and later on in their life's work.

Andover's Archaeology department was the first in any preparatory school in this country. It was founded in 1901 by Mr. and Mrs. R. Singleton Peabody. Originally it was intended to give instruction in the subject, but this proved impracticable and the department is now principally one of research. Dr. Moorehead has made several expeditions to Cartersville, Georgia, where he excavated the three Etawah mounds, the largest of which is sixty feet high. Dr. Kidder, who is chief archaeologist of the Carnegie Institute, has worked in Itza, Yucatan, South America. Last summer he worked in New Mexico, and more recently he has made important discoveries about the Maya civilization in Central America. Miss Ashley is carrying on research in Georgia, Illinois, and Maine.

The museum, although it is small, has a rare selection of exhibits. The department believes in leaving to the larger public of the great cities the largest exhibits. Yet we have here a fine collection of Indian red paint; the largest Navajo rug ever made; and a seven and one half foot birch bark scroll, one hundred and five years old, with Indian picture records whose translation will not be published until the death of White Earth, the last of the Ojibway Medicine Society. There is a large model of the Serpent Mount of Adams County which was exhibited at the World Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, an Indian stone grave with its skeleton, and the second largest flint implement in the world. Besides the exhibits of the department itself, many collections are stored here by scientists who come to work on them. Even if you do not wish to make archaeology your profession, it would be well worth your while to visit these fine collections.

Concerning a Band

To the Editor of THE PHILLIPIAN:

The purpose of this article is not to prove that a band would be an asset or a deficit to the school, it merely hopes to stir up some thought in the minds of the student body along these lines. At one time there was a band in the school, or, if it is against the grain for some people, I will say that a certain large sum of money was given to the school by a certain person for the express purpose of buying the instruments necessary for a band. The instruments were purchased, but after a short time they were sold to Exeter, who at the time was desirous of starting a band. To the best of my knowledge these are the very same pieces which the Exeter band plays now.

There were several reasons for this. Financially the band was a distinct failure, and so was a real weight on the school instead of being the supposed asset. It was a great deal of trouble to teach the boys how to play the various pieces. Indeed there were a very few who came here with any knowledge of how to play the instrument which they chose to direct their efforts on in the band. Naturally it took a great deal of time to teach the boys how to play the big horn and other such uncommon instruments, and consequently they could only play on the band their senior year, and often not as long as that. And also many of the instruments which were necessary to be learned were quite impractical. They could only be played in a large group such as a band, and no enjoyment could be had of them otherwise.

But there is much to be said on the other side of the question. Exeter comes down to Andover to play against us in some major sport, and she brings a large forty or fifty piece band, a thing which is very noticeably lacking in the Blue ranks. But in order to remedy this, we have secured the services of some outside band. Although it may be a very good band, it would certainly look a great deal better if Andover had her own musical accompaniment to the songs which she sings on the field. From the abstract point of view a band would certainly help in the cheering. The student body as a whole would certainly take more interest in the singing if the band that was playing was composed of schoolmates instead of some people in whom it has no interest at all. During the half time intermission of a football game when the Exeter hand is out on the field going through certain intricate marches and formations, the best that the Andover men can do is to look on and admire the Crimson band and perhaps wish that they had one to supplement the other schools marching. Certainly at that time there is no one in the school, no matter who he may be, who does not wish that we had an equivalent to what was marching in the middle of the field.

The objection is raised by some that after a few years the fervor for the band would die down, and it would be hard to get the men to turn out for it. This would not necessarily be the case if we devised some suitable rewards for the musicians. Up at Exeter the recompense comes in the form of a hat with some insignia on it. If we did this, or something similar to it, it seems very evident that the urge to play on the band would be perpetuated.

R. B. Greenough, P. A. '28, has sufficiently recovered from a slight injury and will be able to rejoin the Amherst football squad this week.

C. W. Williamson, M. Williamson, and A. Y. Rogers, all P. A. '29, played on the Yale Freshmen football team when it defeated Andover 12-6 last Saturday.

Rose for a loss, Morgan blocked a pass. The Gauls were penalized fifteen yards for holding. On the next play Norris got away but Mayer tackled him after he had nearly made first down. Kerr blocked a pass on a fake drop-kick and the Romans took the ball on downs. The Romans did not keep the ball long, Morgan punting before they had made first down. A Gaul made a nice run-back. The Romans regained the ball but Cuthbertson intercepted a pass and the half came to a close.

The Gauls kicked off and the Romans went up the field steadily for a few plays, gaining twenty yards on a pass from Morgan to Mitchell. Another first down brought them to the Gaul seven-yard line. A fumble occurred and there was a long fight between Seabury and Morgan for the ball, which was finally awarded to the Gaul player by the referee. The rest of the quarter was uneventful, the two teams holding the ball alternately. In the last period the Gauls got the ball and advanced up the field until Norris got away and scored. Rolfe caught a pass on the point after touchdown, but it was beyond the end zone. The Romans rallied but it was too late. After they had carried the ball up the field a bit, a pass was intercepted and the whistle blew.

The lineup was as follows:

ROMANS	GAULS

a gain in all the subjects they took. In previous years, a large gain in one or two subjects has offset a small loss in one subject. For the three upper classes, the improvement was almost two hundred points; for the Junior class, over three hundred points. The gains are figured by multiplying the number of points improvement in percentage by the number of hours which the course requires. The prizes this year were awarded to:

FIFTY YEARS AGO IN THE PHILLIPIAN

A CANE RUSH

Wednesday morning last an announcement appeared on the bulletin board that there would be a cane rush that afternoon at 2.30. The afternoon was rainy; but notwithstanding, a goodly group of Middlers assembled upon the campus; but not a Junior or a cane appeared, and, after waiting for some time, they dispersed. The rain began to increase and the prospects of a rush decreased. But at 3:30 a band of twelve or fifteen Juniors, armed with umbrellas and a young hickory, lopped from the side of a neighboring hill, marched across the campus to the English Commons, thence around the block, gathering strength as they proceeded, and ever and anon sounding their tocsin of war. Presently two Middlers put in their appearance and the Juniors, having gone into the Latin Commons, thrust their young saplings out of a window with a challenge for a rush. Another Middel comes and another. An officious Senior comes along and accepts the challenge for the Middlers, and out come the Juniors with their sapling. The few Middlers make a rush for the cane, but find themselves beset by great odds. Reinforcements arrive for both sides. The combat deepens. Blood begins to flow. The clothes of the antagonists are rent with mighty holes; and hats are strewn about in boundless profusion. Collars and cuffs, shirt buttons, and pieces of shirts are strewn about the ground. Here and there an unlucky contestant gets lifted off his feet and, with two or three grasping his coat collar and legs, is laid heavily on the wet ground, or more likely in a mud-puddle.

The opposing forces are becoming exhausted, but reinforcements at the conclusion and again it wages fiercely.

The rain has ceased, and so has the struggle. The cane still remains in possession of the Juniors. Fellow Middlers begin to arrive and offer congratulations to their brethren. The sun comes out and illumines the trodden field of battle, and a bright rainbow o'erarches the heavens.

PERHAPS the greatest compliment paid to our tailoring, is that so many seniors are wearing our clothes, whose first Rosenberg suit was made in their freshman year.

ANDOVER-DEAN FOOTBALL

is a big heavy-set fellow, has been assigned to the full-back berth.

For the Blue, Broaca is sure to play one of the end positions with his usual skill and precision, but it is unknown whether O'Neill or Kimball will start on the other side of the line. If one starts, the other will probably be put into the game as a substitute at a later time. Potter and Jackson are the best prospects for the tackle positions. Jackson is always among the bright stars of any game in which he participates. Potter is a new man and has been playing a fine game ever since he started. Frazier will probably play at center. Although his passes were a bit doubtful when he was first put in as a substitute for Capt. Crane, he has now developed into a very reliable center. On either side of him Steketee and Davis will play in the guard positions. It is quite doubtful whether Brown, the regular quarter-back, will be able to start, but if he does not his place can be very well filled by Williamson. Keesling and King are expected to play in the half-back berths. With Wilson at full-back to do the kicking for the Blue, there is little left to chance along that line.

The probable lineup for both teams will be:

ANDOVER	DEAN
O'Neill or Kimball, lc.	lc. Bowler or Schmeltzer
Jackson, lt.	lt. Richovitch
Davis, lg.	lg. W. Cody
Frazier, c.	c. C. White

FOR THE PREPS' BENEFIT

This "map", the latest one available for publication in THE PHILLIPIAN, has been revised as carefully as possible in accordance with recent changes, and the list of buildings put in alphabetical order. We hope this may be of some help to those who still have a hard time finding their way around the campus.
