COUNT VON LUCKNER TALKS HERE FRIDAY IN THE AUDITORIUM

"My Buccaneering Cruise" the Subject of the Lecture
To Be Given

CAPACITY HOUSE EXPECTED

To Deal More Fully with His Deeds
In the Great War than He Did Last Year

The much-heralded and deservedly famous lecturer, Count Felix von Luckner, will make his second appearance in George Washington auditorium at Andover on Friday night at eight o'clock. The genial hero of such thrilling stories as The Sea Devil and The Devil's Fo'c's'l will speak on "My Buccaneering Cruise". It is, of course, well-known that Count Luckner was the great humanitarian captain of his own vessel the Sea-Adler during the later years of the World War, when he conducted a personal naval campaign against the Allies. Throughout his many naval encounters, Count von Luckner never took a single life.

The Count's lecture at Andover, will describe in full this buccaneering cruise. Given a tremendous ovation at his lecture last year at Andover, the speaker described in full his early life,—his experiences as middle-weight boxing champion of Queensland, as bar-boy in Hoboken, and kangaroo-hunter in Australia, only touching upon his famous service to Germany in the

Two Interesting Nautical Volumes Have Been Recently Added To Library

All students interested in old American marine vessels will be pleased to note two of the recent additions to the shelf of works on nautical subjects now in the library. The first of these is a volume written by Charles G. Davis, and published by the Marine Research Society of Salem, Massachusetts. This book is one of exceptional interest, being illustrated with photographs and diagrams of both the original boats under construction, and also authentic models. Some of the chapter headings are: Block Island Boats, Frigates Raleigh and Congress, Fishing Schooners, and Southern Craft. A photograph of the "Desdemona", built at Middletown, Connecticut, in 1823, and the Gloucester fishing schooner "Columbia", serve to complete a book worthy of a visit by all who are interested in ships.

The second volume, entitled "The Yacht America", gives an intimate history of this famous ship which, in 1851 won the Royal Yacht Club Cup at Cowes, England, and which after that passed into various hands of several nations, finally to end up in the service of the U. S. Military Academy.

CRIMSON FRESHMEN WIN CLO E MEET FROM BLUE

Conquer Strong Andover Squad
Despite Loss of All
Field Events

The Andover track team was defeated by the strong Harvard Cubs by the score 49-31 last Saturday. Brown starred for the Blue with a pole vault of 12 ft. 3 inches, a feat which shattered the cage record. He also tied for first place with Withington of Andover in the high jump clearing 5 ft. 6 inches. Captain Jackson also starred, displaying better form than ever before in the shot put and coming within a foot of the cage record. Kollmeyer, the former Exeter star, gained three first places for Harvard, the 40-yd. dash, the 300-yd. dash and the high hurdles. Andover though it lost every running event, won all the field events.

Pole Vault—First, Brown (A) height 12 ft. 3 inches; second, tie between Pierce (A) and Bennett (H). Height 11 ft. 9 inches.

MR. RICHARD HILL, NEGRO, SPEAKS TO SOCIETY OF INQUIRY

Noted Authority on Negro's
Life Discusses Race
Question

ATTENDING HARVARD SEMINARY

Tells How Negroes Are Handicapped in Business and Social World

The unusually large audience that attended the Society of Inquiry meeting last Sunday heard an interesting lecture given by Mr. Richard Hill on "What it Means to be a Negro in America Today". A well-known authority on this subject, Mr. Hill is now at the Harvard Theological Seminary. Being a negro himself, he has devoted much of his life to the study of the so-called "Negro question". His talk was not only interesting, but also very instructive.

At the beginning of his lecture, he pointed out that nobody is quite certain just how much African blood one must have to be a negro. In different states, the same man would be considered in turn a negro, an Indian, and a white man. Another item of interest was the fact that mulattoes were generally leaders of the negroes, owing to the greater advantage given them by their white parent. This, however, is changing, since negroes are being given more advantages and opportunities than formerly.

The race issue, he said, is at base an economic issue. The two races

INTERNATIONAL TOPIC FOR DEBATE TONIGHT

Great Interest in Discussion of U. S. Recognition of Soviet

Great interest has lately been aroused by the announcement of the coming debate which Philo will hold tonight on the second floor of Peabody House. This expectation is due in part to the importance and timely interest of the question in hand, namely, "Resolved: That the United States should officially recognize the Soviet government of Russia", and also to the announcement of the participants in the coming discussion. The affirmative will be upheld by Millikan, Hull, and Moyer. Bull, Dunn, and D. G. Allen are slated for the negative. Millikan was the winner of the Draper Prize in the oratorical contest this fall. Hull is well-known as the winner of the prize for being the best high school debate in the West. Dunn was judged third best in the Draper contest, and the remainder of the speakers need no introduction. This debate, the fifth of the 1930 series, ranks as one of the most important of the season, and it is probable that upon the outcome of the match may depend the selection of some of the members of the team which will speak against teams from

Captain of Relay Team Elected

L. W. McGuire, Jr. of Malden, Mass., was elected captain of the relay team which meets Exeter this Saturday at the B. A. A. Games at the Boston Arena. McGuire, a senior, will probably run anchor on the team. The election was held Tuesday afternoon in the cage.

Music Notice

Mr. Blair McCloskey, soloist of Trinity Church, and one of the leading vocal teachers of Boston, will be in the chapel tomorrow, Thursday, from one to two o'clock, to meet any students who may be interested in taking private vocal lessons.

Hockey Picture

The picture of the hockey team (in uniform), will be taken at Huntress Studio at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Only One Other Artist Uses This Instrument in Solo
Playing

This afternoon in George Washington Hall Dr. Pfatteicher has arranged for a recital to be given by Paul Shirley, noted virtuoso on the Viola d'Amore. Mr. Shirley is a pioneer in playing the Viola d'Amore as a solo instrument. It was formerly used merely in symphony orchestras, and it was thought impossible to play it as a recital instrument. Koussevitsky, the famous leader of the Boston Symphony, and Mr. Shirley, surprised the musical world by their success at recitals on the Viola. Many musicians have not taken up the study of this instrument because it is such a difficult one to play.

Captain Noel Will Lecture Here Soon On "Kashmir", Illustrated By Movies

Following the lecture which Count von Luckner will give on Friday evening, an unusually interesting talk will be delivered on Tuesday evening, February 25th, by an Englishman, Captain Noel, who according to Dr. Fuess, is the finest speaker Andover is to hear this year. Supplementing the lecture he gave three years ago at Andover—"The Mt. Everest Expedition", the notable explorer will speak this time on "Kashmir".

Captain Noel arrived only last month from England bringing with

Andover Teamwork Baffles
Opponents in First Period

After an extremely close and hard-fought battle, in which good playing, fast shooting, and fine defense work were outstanding, the Exeter hockey team defeated the Andover sextet 4-0, last Saturday in the Boston Arena. The Spain-Lane passing combination, due to Andover's excellent interference, was not at its best, although as individuals its two members showed fine games. Fawcett played fine hockey for Andover, repeatedly breaking up Spain's advances that otherwise might have been costly to Andover. Rolfe played his best game of the season, and Bryant came through with his usual good stick-work. Rugg did excellent work, playing the entire game with only one penalty, and piercing the Exeter defense continually. Of great assistance to the Blue was the second forward defense line, consisting of Tolman, Wolcott, and Ogden. However it was Captain Neill who was the outstanding player for Andover, making stop after stop nothing short of sensational.

him the motion picture he recently took on his expedition into the Vale of Kashmir. These films deal in part with the high, snow-covered Himalayas, partly with Kashmir itself, and partly with the spacious plains of upper India. A bit of historical interest is brought in at the close in connection with the life of the great Mogul Emperor, Shah Jehan.

Captain Noel's lecture is anticipated by all those who have heard him here before, and his coming lecture concerning "Kashmir" will unquestionably be both exciting and vivid, as well as educational.

Concert

No student should fail to hear the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra which will play in the George Washington Auditorium on Monday evening, Feb. 17th. This is the first time Andover has ever had the privilege of hearing in its midst a complete symphony orchestra. Even many of those students who are prone to avoid music as something very esoteric will experience a revelation if they have not heard a symphony orchestra before. And it is a part of a liberal education to be conversant with the masterworks of the fine arts!

Inquiry Speakers

Seldom in recent years has the Society of Inquiry had such a program of famous speakers scheduled as it has in 1930. The deluge has only just begun, with Dr. Allen K. Foster, Dr. A. Herbert Gray, and Richard Hill. The first mentioned was not on the original list as announced in THE PHILLIPIAN for January 29th; but it seems to us an excellent idea to get well-known ministers out of the pulpit for a while and give them a chance to talk to the fellows personally. Richard Hill, who spoke Sunday on "What It Means to Be a Negro in the United States", was so well-informed on his subject, and had so many personal experiences to back up his statements, that although the meeting had to be called to a close at five minutes of eight, questions could have been put and answered for another hour.

But as we say, you ain't seen nothin' yet. Bruce Corry, Erd Harris, and A. L. Kinsolving are all definitely scheduled. Besides these, Otis Rice, Rabbi Schwartz, and Arthur Rugh are promised for undecided dates later in the season. Bruce Corry and Erd Harris both come here from Union Theological Seminary. Mr. Harris is particularly interesting; he talks, does parlor magic, plays the piano, and used to write the music for the Princeton Triangle Show. Rev. Arthur Kinsolving is in Grace Church at Amherst. Mr. Trowbridge is also trying to schedule several other speakers, including a man from Andover who is now doing his best to relieve the mill situation.

The usual delegations are also coming including a group of German students who will spend the entire day here. Altogether this year's program is one of the finest the Society of Inquiry has prepared.

BLUE QUINTET MEETS HARVARD FRESHMEN

Team Strengthened by Captain Kellogg's Return—Harvard Has Lost to Exeter

The Andover basketball team meets the Harvard freshmen today at the gymnasium. The home team is greatly strengthened by the return of Captain Kellogg who will probably start at left forward. He is one of the strongest players that have ever played for Andover and can be counted on to lead both the defensive and offensive attacks. Kettle will be at his regular place at right forward where he has served so well and faithfully all season. Drick will start at center and judging from his work against St. John's he is now playing the best game in his career at this school. Douglas, who put those long shots through the basket in the last game, will very likely get the call over Mayer for the left guard position. Brown will of course be at right guard. This man doesn't play a spectacular game but he is always at the right place at the right time.

The Harvard team, although it was defeated by Exeter thirty-one to twenty-three last Saturday, has a very powerful aggregation

Davidson at center led the attack against Exeter with four baskets. He is ably supported by Schroeder and Renshaw who play right and left forward respectively. These two men will keep the Andover guards busy as they are fast and have a deadly eye for the basket. Reisner, a former Exeter player, and Hageman play at the guard positions for the visitors. These two men have had a lot of experience and are both very capable players.

BLUE DEFEATS MILTON IN WRESTLING MEET

Dufton, Crawford, Byington, And Shallenberger Win Falls

Sweeping the first five divisions, the Andover wrestling team won its third victory in a row here Saturday by overcoming the Milton Academy team, 23-10. All of the matches except the one hundred and forty-five pound, from which Captain Eiseman was absent, were decided by falls.

Shallenberger opposed Franklin of Milton, in the opener. The latter was outclassed, and the Andover wrestler pinned his shoulders to the mat with a crotch hold and half nelson in two minutes, thirteen seconds. Crawford, in his first appearance for the Blue, downed Howland with the same hold in one minute and thirty-five seconds. Dufton scored the third straight fall for the home team by tossing Bass with a cradle hold in five minutes. Incidentally, this was his fourth triumph in four starts.

The one hundred and forty-five pound class provided the most evenly matched struggle of the afternoon. Byington, representing Andover, had a three and a half minute time advantage over White at the close of the fracas, and was on the point of throwing his man. In a long-drawn out fight, Purney pinned Weld, visiting one hundred and fifty-five pounder, in seven minutes, five seconds. This ended the scoring for the home team.

Clark, Milton crack, met Cowee in the next division, and put him down in six minutes despite the Andover wrestler's game struggle. Royal, Blue one hundred and seventy-five pounder, dropped his match to Ames in two minutes, twenty seconds, making the score twenty three to ten in favor of the home team.

Relay Clips Second Off Former School Record Made In 1925

Setting two new records and extending its winning streak to three straight, the Andover swimming team smothered Brookline High School Saturday with a score of 46-16. King was second with J. Hyland of the visitors third. McCloy again won the dive. He was closely followed by Buckingham of Andover. Third place was taken by Richards of Brookline. The closest race of the day followed when W. Hyland of the visitors won the fifty, beating out his teammate Broadbent and Rowland of Andover by inches. The time was 27 3-5. Willey and Breed, both of Andover, had a race of their own in which the former barely nosed out his mate. Broadbent was third. Willey did 1:12 in winning the race. Savell remained undefeated in the breast stroke when he approached the record by swimming the 100 yards in 1:14 4-5. Richey and Silverman of Brookline followed to take second and third respectively. Captain Fry was pressed hard by French of the Blue to win the 200-yard freestyle in 2:26 1-5. W. Hyland of the opponents followed in third place.

NEW BOOKS INCLUDE
FIVE-TOME SET ON ART
Biographies and Modern Fiction
Of American Authors
On Shelves

Among recent additions to the shelf of newer books in the Oliver Wendell Holmes library is a beautifully executed, five-volume set of books, covering different important periods of the world's art. One volume is devoted to painting of the rococo period, a second to the Gothic art and architecture of the French and German renaissance, and a third to the painting of the twentieth century. The five volumes are profusely illustrated, and although the reading matter is German, they should be of great interest to those students who have a liking for painting.

There will also be found two good biographical selections. One, Jefferson Davis by Tate, and the other, The Life of Charles McKim. Mr. McKim was before his death one of the foremost American architects, concerned chiefly during his lifetime with establishing a school where promising students of art and architecture might receive training on the basis of scholarship awards. The renowned American Academy in Rome is the result of his efforts.

The library has recently managed to obtain and catalogue a large number of good old standbys, in the line of modern American novels. On the shelf of recent books, there can be found the earlier works of Edith Wharton, Booth Tarkington, and as well a collection of short stories by Edna Ferber. For those who are continually clamoring for up-to-the-minute reading matter, such fiction as this would serve a better purpose. The novel Precious Bane, is particularly recommended for its almost classical picture of present-day English life. Precious Bane, by the way, is the name of a poisonous herb, and its connection has to do with the leading man in the story, and the way in which he works out his destiny. It is a masterly piece of writing.

at present do not have absolute equality. And a policy of isolation and segregation would quickly defeat itself. Negroes are greatly handicapped in business. Mr. Hill cited a case where a man was earning good wages and working hard, but when it was discovered he was of negro descent, he was immediately fired. The Pullman porters, too, are not well treated. Their wages are far too small to live on, so they are forced to depend on tips, a situation which lowers their self-respect. Yet many of them are graduates of Harvard or Yale!

One of the easiest and best ways to remedy this state of affairs is by affording means of closer contact between the two races. It is easy to hate a man when we do not even know him. At any rate, it will take a considerable length of time for a complete reform to be effected. At the close of his lecture, Mr. Hill kindly consented to answer a few questions. One point he brought out while answering one of the questions was that negroes in the South were forced to travel by themselves. There were many other interesting questions which he answered.

ing well in the defense line, also managed to get through several times for tries at the Blue cage, and the substitutes, Willis, Tufts, and Richardson gave admirable results.

In the first period Exeter started out with a fast pace, and if there was any difference in the two teams, the Blue was slightly faster. This speedy game was kept up the whole fifteen minutes. The first half of the second period was much as the first, and, with the exception of Exeter's fortunate goal, the two sides continued to be very evenly matched. Towards the end, Andover showed signs of weakening, but the defense line held, and the Red icemen were unable to get through for a second tally. At the beginning of the third period Exeter came out looking as well as ever, while the Andover team was perceptibly tiring. In the last of the period the game belonged entirely to Exeter. The Blue offense weakened, and the heavier Exeter team was able to get through the back line time after time and it was only by the fine goal work of Captain Neill that the opponents were prevented from scoring.

At the start of the game, on the face-off, Fawcett got the puck and started down the ice with Rugg for a shot that netted nothing. Exeter made a quick come-back, in which Rolfe starred in the defensive work. Playing was going fast when Rugg a few minutes later went to the penalty box. Muther of Exeter usually managed to come out ahead in the scrimmages by the boards, but all his advances were repulsed, usually before he could get through the Blue forward line. Rolfe, Bryant, and Fawcett went down the ice over and over again, only to be broken up before the opportunity for a goal shot was neared. Tufts and Richardson replaced Muther and Adams for Exeter, and a few minutes later the former went to the penalty box just as Rugg's time was up. Coach Eaton then put in the auxiliary Andover forward line, to rest Fawcett, Bryant, and Rolfe. Tolman got down several times on the right aisle, but his center passes were broken up, and the Blue advance stopped. After Ogden went down the center several times unsuccessfully, the first Andover line returned. Gardner narrowly missed a goal shot from left center. Fawcett was put out two minutes for tripping. Adams went down the right side, and it looked as if he might get a shot, but he made a pass to Lane which was intercepted. A short while later he got the puck after a scramble near the Blue cage, and swung around for a shot but was prevented from any attempt at scoring. At this point the Exeter first line returned, and Willis, Tufts, and Adams went out. The game was just beginning to slow up when the end of the first period was reached.

The second period began with Fawcett passing to Bryant after the face-off. Lane intercepted and his dash for the goal was stopped by Gardner. After this all Exeter's plays were to Lane or Spain, in the Red and Gray's desperate attempts to score. Andover retaliated with numerous attempts by Bryant, but he was not able to get through for the shot. Spain's checking was skilfully jumped by Fawcett. Both substitute lines went in. A pass off the boards to Spain was easily broken up by Tolman's good body-checking, and shortly afterward the two first lines went back. Rolfe was penalized for charging. A high shot by Bennett of Exeter was easily caught by Gardner, who after putting the puck into play went down and lost it to Lane. Lane came back and managed to get through for a very close shot which Neill saved by some fast work when he dove and caught it. As Rolfe came out of the penalty box Muther of Exeter went in again. When period was about ten minutes old a scuffle occurred by the left side of the Andover cage, and an Exeter man shot the puck across to Lane by the right boards who slipped around and when Neill lost his stick shot the puck in through an unguarded corner for the first score of the afternoon. The Andover second forward line went in again, Gardner was penalized for tripping, and Wheeler went in for Wolcott. Near the end of the period Wheeler and Ogden were replaced by Fawcett and Rolfe. Bennett was put in the penalty box as the second period came to an end.

The third period began with Exeter's game noticeably quickened, and with the opponents getting easily through the Blue line. Spain was broken up many times by Fawcett. Lane lost the puck to Rugg, who went down through Spain and took a long shot which resulted in no score. Then Exeter started the advance which won the game for her. Spain got the position he had been trying for all the last period, about six feet in front of the Blue goal, and when a fortunate pass finally reached him, he put it in for the second Exeter tally. The time was about twelve minutes when this occurred, and for the rest of the time all playing was in the Blue territory. The score was brought to 3-0 when Lane again passed to Spain, who made his second goal of the game. The last score came close to the final bell, and was made by Lane on Spain's rebound. Shortly afterward the gong rang, leaving the final score Exeter 4, Andover 0.

Groton and Exeter. Because of the natural coincidence of the subject with recent steps in politics, the debate will prove of great interest to those studying both ancient and modern politics. In this connection those in charge wish to express an invitation to all faculty members to attend, for in the past a feeling of reticence to interrupt what appears to be purely a student activity has been felt. This is not the case; the presence of faculty members is desired, both on account of any helpful suggestions they may care to make, but also for the genuine enjoyment they are certain to secure.

played strong passing attack as well as a powerful scoring punch. At half time the Red and Gray was leading 14-12. Merchant and McCoach were outstanding on the Exeter five. Merchant was high scorer for the third consecutive time, with ten points to his credit. Davidson and Captain Hageman starred for the Harvard team.

Last Saturday afternoon, the Academy mermen lost to a powerful Worcester aggregation by the score of 31-35. During the meet, a new pool record in the 100-yard backstroke was established by Lee of Worcester with the time of 1:9.4. Rizer, Exeter's leading breaststroke man, bettered his former pool record, setting the new mark at 1:17.2. The teams were very evenly matched, and the last two events finally decided the winner.
