BLUE SOCCER TEAM HAS GOOD PROSPECTS FOR COMING SEASON

Difficult Schedule Includes Yale, Worcester, and Exeter

NINETEEN MEN ALREADY CUT

Captain Wolcott, Wheeler, Dorman, And Gordon Are Returning Letter Men

Thus far in the season the soccer team has not shown much definite development. From the sixty men who reported, Coach Ryley has already cut nineteen. He plans to make another cut next week, leaving twenty-six men. There is much good material in the new candidates as well as in the returning letter men and squad men. There are four returning letter men, who should form a solid nucleus for the 1930 team; they are Captain Wolcott, Wheeler, Dorman, and Gordon. Coach Ryley thinks that the half-back line, the backbone of a soccer team, is not quite as strong this year as usual, but time and practice will undoubtedly improve it. Although there are no outstanding players in any position, we should have a good, well-balanced team.

The schedule for the 1930 season is as follows:

Saturday, October 11 — Tabor Academy at Marion
Saturday, October 18—Yale Freshmen
Saturday, October 25—Worcester Academy
Wednesday, November 5—Harvard Freshmen
Saturday, November 8—M. I. T. Freshmen
Wednesday, November 12—Exeter at Exeter

TWENTY-TWO MEN CUT FROM EXETER SQUAD

New Charging Machines And Tackling Dummies Have Been Of Great Assistance

By the latest cut, Coach Martin W. Sondershas of Exeter has reduced the squad to a working force of about four elevens. Twenty-two men were removed from the squad, leaving about forty-four from which the team will be chosen. The coach himself is devoting much time to building up a speedy backfield, while his assistant is drilling the linesmen. Practice has been aided a good deal by the installation of a new charging machine and of tackling dummies. After but five days of practice however, little can be said as to which of the new candidates will be chosen for the team.

Several Prominent Musical Artists Will Give Recitals During The Year

This year's schedule of concerts will contain several items of interest. Mr. Dye has been trying to get a prominent musical artist to come here every month.

The first one, to appear, on October 21, will be the famous Roman organist, Germain, who played both at the wedding of Mussolini's daughter and at the marriage ceremony of the Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and the Princess Marie of Belgium.

On November 13 Heifetz will give a recital on the violin. His master playing needs no introduction.

Calendar of Events For the Coming Week

The preacher at both services tomorrow will be the Rev. Nehemiah Boynton of Medford, Mass. The Rev. Dr. Boynton is an Andover alumnus.

PROFESSOR DICKERMAN DIES AT WILLIAMSTOWN

Was Member of Department Of Greek At Williams For Many Years

GRADUATED FROM ANDOVER

Williams Record Pays Tribute In Editorial To Memory Of The Educator

Professor Sherwood Owen Dickerman, Ph.D., an old Andover graduate, died of cancer of the lung at his residence in Williamstown after a long illness, on Saturday, September 20. For the past 21 years he has been a member of the Department of Greek at Williams College.

Professor Dickerman prepared at Andover for Yale University, from which he was graduated in 1896. For the next two years he studied at the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, an institution upon whose governing board he later served. Upon his return he taught at Yale for five years.

In 1909, having received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Halle, Germany, Professor Dickerman went to Williams as Assistant Professor of Greek, and ten years later he was appointed to the chair of Lawrence Professor of Greek Language and Literature, a position which he held until his death. During the year 1929-30, he served as visiting Professor of Greek at Yale, acting as a member of the two faculties simultaneously. He was a member of the American Philosophical Association, the Archeological Institute of America, and the American Association of University Professors. The great love and admiration which the student body had for Professor Dick-

SOCIETY OF INQUIRY GIVES RECEPTION TO THE INCOMING PREPS

New Men Hear Talks Given By The Prominent Men Of School

TROWBRIDGE ADDRESSES BOYS

Donahoe, L. P. Howard, C. K. Howard Hegeman And Elliott Speak

On Sunday evening, September 21, the Society of Inquiry held its annual reception for the new men. This society is a means of promoting good-fellowship, Christian ideals and understanding among boys. Into this informal society, controlled by student executives together with Mr. Trowbridge, the faculty adviser, any student who wishes may enter and take part in its activities. Later this fall, it will canvass for funds to keep up its activities, which include an interesting series of informal lectures, usually held in the Peabody Club.

The Reception was opened by M. H. Donahoe, Jr., who spoke a few words of introduction, mentioning specifically the drive which the Society conducts for funds among the students, and urging the preps to contribute. Donahoe also introduced the other speakers. Mr. Trowbridge spoke about the distinguished history of the society, its ideals, and its purposes, some of which are mentioned earlier in this article. His speech and all the others were very enlightening to the new boys.

L. P. Howard then spoke about the various school publications, The Phillipian, The Mirror, The Blue Book, and The Pot Pourri. He touched upon the advantages of being connected with a publication, the methods of handling the business and editorial boards, the special character of each publication, and the elections.

J. B. Elliott, manager of football, spoke of the prospects of the season, talked about the teams, and urged the new boys not only to go out for the various teams whether they would make them this year or next, but also to show their school spirit by coming to the bleachers

LARGE NUMBER SIGN UP FOR CLUB TENNIS

Under The New System Numerals Will Be Awarded

Club tennis has opened again this fall under the expert leadership of Mr. Williamson and with sixty-five men as material until this week's cuts. It has been announced that the tennis squad will be reduced to twenty-eight by Saturday, allowing seven men for each club team.

Fall club competition will open next week after the final cut, and captains will be appointed for each club. Contrary to the usual fall custom, the winning club team will receive their numerals only in the spring, but it is hoped that this new ruling will probably incite much keener competition in the clubs than ever before. These inter-club contests will last approximately until the Andover-Exeter football game.

From among those who are already entered, members of the spring squads will be selected in addition to others who will join next spring as varsity material.

Fall Police Force is Chosen

Keith Brown, Harry Royal, Lee Howard, and Norman King were recently selected to compose the fall police force. Report all burglaries early as the new sleuths have many tricks if appealed to in time.

Four More Men Are Elected By Class To Senior Council

In an election held last Monday, Norman King, James Elliott, King Howard, and James Wolcott were chosen to complete the Senior Council.

OPENING OF NEW INN EVENT OF IMPORTANCE

Is Decided Improvement In All Ways Over Stowe House

BARBER SHOP IN BASEMENT

Walls Of Dining Room Are Decorated With Beautiful Water Colors By Sindona

It is a far cry from the "stone shell of a building" with its wooden addition used from 1893 to 1929 by the Trustees of Phillips Academy as a hotel to the palatial new fire-proof Georgian colonial building of brick and stone built on the old Stowe house site on Chapel avenue which was opened under the old name of the Phillips Inn the first of this week.

The setting under the old elms with the view over Rabbits pond in the foreground to Lawrence and the distant mountains beyond is one of great beauty and with the completion of the landscaping of the grounds will make it a harmonious part of the campus.

The pillared portico gives a feeling of hospitality confirmed by the spacious lounge which occupies the entire ground floor of the main building. A fireplace with a Peele portrait of George Washington in the panel above is directly opposite the entrance door. The floor of wide boards of quartered oak is the only wooden floor in the entire building, all the others being of cement. Oriental rugs, old maple tables, and deep wing chairs and sofas give an atmosphere of comfort. The clerk's office is at the right, and a writing room furnished in amethyst and blue is at the left of the corridor leading to the east wing. A handsome secretary lends

ANDOVER'S FOOTBALL OUTLOOK SEEMS RATHER PROMISING AT PRESENT

Team Displays Strength In Practice Scrimmage With Lawrence

KING PROVES OUTSTANDING

E. King, Gardner, O'Neill, Clifford, Kettle, And Davis, Letter Men, Are Back To Play

The Andover football team this year will be considerably strengthened by the return of six letter men, and it is rapidly being organized and trained under the competent direction of Coach Shepard and his staff. The line will soon get into shape with the coaching of Mr. Benton and Mr. Hagenbuckle. The ends will be held down by O'Neill, a letter-man, who distinguished himself in last year's Exeter game, and by Clifford who is also a letter-man. The tackles will probably be Strauss and Foreman, who also played last year, the one on the varsity squad, the other with the Grey Jerseys. The guards are the same combination of strength that the Blue had last year, Davis and Gardner. Although Davis is the lightest man in the line, he is one of its great assets. Gardner, the heaviest, who is also a source of power, is scheduled to do the kicking off. The center is a new man, Barr, who has already showed something of what he can do in practice and will undoubtedly show more as the season progresses. The line is a little heavier this year than for the past few years.

The backfield, coached by Mr. Shepard, looks very promising with King and Barclay as half-backs, Kettle as full-back, and Bird as quarter-back. King's two or three forty-yard runs in last year's contest with Exeter establishes his reputation firmly. Barclay, the other half-back, comes to the varsity from the Grey Jersey squad. Kettle, the full-back, played well throughout last year's season, and made Andover's touchdown against Exeter. Bird, the quarter-back, will play with the varsity after playing on the Grey Jersey squad last year. This lineup is a preliminary one, and the final lineup will undoubtedly have a few changes.

The eleven had its first try-out with another team in a practice scrimmage against Lawrence High School, in which Andover made three touchdowns and no extra points, and Lawrence High made one touchdown. King and Barclay both played well in the backfield while O'Neill, the right end, did his

Many Prizes To Be Awarded To Students By Fisher Body Corporation For Craftsmanship

The Fisher Body Corporation has established the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild, to which membership is free to every American boy from 12 to 19 years of age. To join, one must go to a General Motors dealer and get plans for the construction of a Napoleonic coach. Four four-year, university scholarships with $5,000 extra to defray expenses and 960 other awards, totaling $50,000, will be given to the boys who display the finest craftsmanship in building these models. The builder of the best models in each state will be given a trip to Detroit as a guest of the Guild as well as cash prizes. There are various other awards for proficiency in building certain parts.

Headed by Dan Beard, national commissioner of the boy scouts of America, as honorary president, a board of honorary judges has been selected which includes eleven deans and presidents of famous universities and technical schools throughout this country.

The purpose of the guild is to perpetuate the ideals and principles which were founded in the Middle Ages by guilds of this kind

THE PHILLIPIAN invites communications, but does not assume responsibility for the sentiments expressed therein.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

To insure change of advertisement, copy must be received not later than noon of day preceding publication.

It Sometimes Happens

In taking up the work for the new year I would like to remind the class that this is not going to be what you boys call a "snap course".

Teacher gets awfully tired standing on his feet all day over a hot desk, and you may be quite sure that he is doing the very best that he can.

That is Robert Benchley's version of the preliminary lecture of the year and rather close to perfection it is.

Useful criticism is still music to our ears though, and we confess that from time to time THE PHILLIPIAN is unintentionally funny.

It seems one of those long processions of motor cars was winding, wormlike, along a Westchester highway a few Sundays ago when, as happens, it was halted by something doing up ahead. Drivers groaned, swore, and called each other names. Subsequently several climbed out and went forward to see what the trouble was.

Now that the period of formal torture is over, and the "preps" have been in a manner introduced to the life of this great school of ours.

We also hope that you will be prudent enough to keep off Main Street, to sit on the south side of the Grill and to wear your "prep" caps.

Communications

To the Editor: It is with the greatest interest that we read the instructions that have been handed out to the waiters at the new dining hall.

"The silver should be placed one-half inch apart and at right angles to the table."

Another thing that one cannot help remarking is the peremptory fashion with which the early part of the meal has been handled.

Of course all this will be difficult to master immediately, but the waiters have been instructed to learn it as soon as possible.

"Soup, Fish, Entree, Roast and vegetables, Salad, Ices, Fruit, and Coffee. These may be added or diminished, if desired."

When the formal dinner season comes it will be invaluable for every waiter in the dining hall to know the following:

"At a formal dinner the hostess is served first in order to enable her to see that each dish has been properly provided with serving silver and to allow the guests to observe how any unusual dish should be served."

Other important material is covered in this same clear lucid style, and we hope that the waiters will be careful to observe all of it carefully and make our dining hall the last word in perfect service.

we sincerely hope that next the officials will deal in a similar minute and complete fashion with the subject of the food, which to some of us, who are, perhaps, a bit sordid and material, is almost as important as the manner of service itself.

To the Editor: A general complaint has been circulating around the school concerning the service in the Dining Hall. This defect will soon be remedied.

To the Editor: More is to be said, and will continue to be said, concerning the new dining hall, aristocratically called the "Commons".

EXETER WILL OBSERVE ITS SESQUICENTENNIAL

Academy Was Incorporated One Hundred and Fifty Years Ago This Spring

This spring, Exeter will commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its incorporation.

In 1781, when Phillips Andover had been running successfully for three years, Dr. Phillips of Exeter, who, with his brother, Samuel Phillips, and his nephew, Judge Samuel Phillips, had been instrumental in founding Andover, decided to establish a school in his own town.

The charter having been obtained, Dr. Phillips, on the ninth of January, 1782, endowed the school with real estate in various New Hampshire townships.

Although the charter had been obtained, the opening was delayed, because a suitable site could not be found.

IN PASSING

We return to school to find a new dining hall, the dream of many P. A. students for years back.

The Freshest Prep did not keep under cover long after school opened. When approached by two venerable Seniors and informed that he was about to perform a certain task, he replied, "Don't be silly; I've got to study."

Among the season's revivals is the return to school life of Graves Hall, which some time ago we thought quite dead.

From the frequent bun-throwing it looks as though the spring baseball tryouts will be held in the Upper Middle dining room.

Will the proposed "talkies" for the auditorium replace or merely supplement the present Saturday night sound system?

We understand that the Phillips Inn will soon begin serving tea in the afternoon, to which Academy boys will be especially invited.

When this column was started last spring, those in charge expressed dissatisfaction in the title, and asked for suggestions for a new heading.

FALL TRACK PRACTICE STARTED LAST MONDAY

Cross-country Group Again Begins Work Under Mr. Shields

GOOD TRAINING FACILITIES

Relay Teams Will Be Organized And Races Held At End Of Season

The annual fall session of track, otherwise considered as the hard reconditioning necessary from the ease and relax of the summer vacation, opened last Monday with a following of one hundred and thirty athletes.

Fall track is usually considered a general building-up in preparation for other sports besides track during winter and spring.

The other division of fall track is Mr. Shields's cross-country group. This, however, is not as extensive as it might seem, but offers excellent training facilities for anyone interested in the quarter-mile, half-mile, or mile run.

After a period of about two weeks occupied with the usual grind, the fall track group will be divided into squads which will compete weekly in two events.

Toward the end of the season, relay teams will be organized, and intra squad relay races conducted.

It must be understood that these squads have no connection with the respective school clubs, nor will there be any club competition in track this fall.

The season will be closed with the annual fall track meet in which medals will be awarded for first, second, and third places.

WHAT'S YOUR IDEA OF A FRESHMAN?

Freshmen can be classified under two distinct groups—unguided and misguided. Those in the first group never heard of collar-control. They unblushingly face the world with collar-tips untrammelled—waving with the winds—free as fancy's flight (or however the poet puts it). The misguided group makes an attempt to be captains of their collars. But they think a collar must be pinned . . . they think that the torture of stabbed throats and thumbs is a penance they pay to fashion. They never heard of Swank. It looks like a pin, but isn't. Just slip Swank on and slip it off. Collars never wrinkle. They keep perfectly in place. And Swank has no points—you don't fill your collars with holes. Jewelers' or men's shops. distinction to the latter room. The beautiful and dignified parlor is on the ground floor of the east wing. Wainscoting and a dentelated cornice might look to the uninitiated like the work of Samuel McIntire but are in reality made of plaster, conforming with the fire-proof construction of the building. The restful gray wall paper was especially imported from Alsace-Lorraine and is a satisfactory background for the old steel engravings. Over the fireplace hangs a portrait of Martha Washington also by Peele. An interesting touch on the mantel is a pair of green glass vases with ivy, repeating the green of overhangings and carpet. Much of the furniture is from the Mabel Brady Garvan collection of the Institute of American Arts and Crafts at Yale University, and other pieces are Sloan's copies of interesting Early American pieces. A Hepplewhite card table is at either end of the room over one of which hangs a reproduction of a mirror in the Metropolitan Museum in New York. A Duncan Phyfe table stands near the fireplace and a couch formerly the property of Louisa Alcott and now owned by the academy will have a place in this room. Notes of brilliant color are introduced by the upholstery of the wing chairs in gold, green and crimson.

In the west wing is the dining-room which is entered by descending a short flight of broad steps. At the left is a private dining room the walls of which are covered with an interesting collection of hunting prints. At the right is the ladies' dressing-room, the red and green of the Chinese wall paper being repeated in the furnishings.

The crowning glory of the house is probably the dining room itself with its walls paneled in water colors, softly finished pine woodwork, cabinets of choice Staffordshire and pewter, and chairs following the pattern of the Early American Windsors. Overhangings of glazed chintz temper the western sunshine and hanging lights with bronze bands and old glass table lamps provide for evening illumination. The carpet on this floor as well as those in the corridors are in a hooked rug pattern. The panels were painted by D. C. Sindona of New York and represent the early days of the Massachusetts Bay Colony with quaint figures, clipper ships, and the stage-coach with prancing horses which plied between Providence and Boston. Beginning with the landing of the Pilgrims at Provincetown the visitor sees in turn Dorchester Point, Foster's Hill and Windmill Point, South Battery, Fort Hill, the Old South-church, King's chapel, the old State House, Faneuil Hall, and North Battery. In the alcove the windows of which overlook the proposed garden and Rabbits pond the panels are of Hartford, New London and Yale College. The china is Englishware in blue and white known as the Mayfair pattern. The dining room seats about one hundred thirty-five.

The kitchen is in the end of the same wing which contains the dining room and has a complete and modern equipment operated by gas and electricity.

The barber shop is in the basement.

The hotel contains forty rooms and twenty-two baths. Rooms without private baths have hot and cold running water. Their furnishings of Early American reproductions in maple, as well as the draperies, are by W. & J. Sloan of New York. On both the second and third floors at either end, there is a suite of bedroom, sittingroom and bath separated from the main corridor by a small hall. The building is heated by steam and all radiators are enclosed. An up-to-date vacuum cleaning system operated by a motor in the basement provides for the cleaning of the carpets with which all the floors are covered.

An electric elevator will be installed shortly.

Approximately thirty persons are employed at the inn.

The building for which ground was broken almost exactly a year ago was built by the Thompson Starrett Company. The plans were by Sydney Wagner of the firm of Bottomley, Wagner and White of New York City.

A beautifully bound guest book has been prepared to receive the autographs of the many distinguished persons who will in the course of years be the guests of the inn, musicians, artists, travelers, authors and educators. The first name to be entered in the book is appropriately enough that of the architect, Sydney Wagner, who "turns over his child" to go grow old gracefully in the hands of his friends Mr. and Mrs. John M. Stewart.

the side aisles. There was much interest in what was to come, some old fellows wishing for the return of the old "Prep Parade", and others, particularly preps, seeming to prefer the new system. As an opening to the program, "Royal Blue" was sung. After singing it twice, the old boys let the "preps" sing alone, in order that they might become more familiar with the words and tune.

The first act was put on by "Harmonica Harry", who played several well-known tunes. He was received with much applause and rendered one encore. He was followed by Dennet and Russell in "The Long and the Short of It". In appearance they lived up to the title of the act, and were humorously dressed. After their laugh-producing act the school rose and sang "Old P. A." and gave several cheers. Later on more of the different cheers were given for the "preps' benefit.

Then Towne, another new boy, played excellently a number of pieces on the piano, including encores. His enthusiastic reception is reminiscent of that of the Howard Brothers, last year's twin wonders. Thompson and Perry, costumed as two darkies, raised many a laugh in quite a long act named "Ham and Noah", as did also several French "garcons", who came on the stage and "went native". Most of the school still wonders what they said meant in English. Besides the musical entertainment already mentioned, several pieces were enjoyed from a clarinet player and a decidedly "hot" banjo player. Some good tap dancing, even in the absence of regular tap shoes, was rendered by Pritchard, who danced with Towne at the piano. At the close of the preps' entertainment, the regular movies, "The Girl Said No", and a cartoon comedy were shown. The entertainment was, in all respects, successful, for which much credit is due the "Preps".

and supporting the team with their cheers and their encouragement.

J. D. Hegeman, manager of track, then spoke to somewhat the same end in regard to track, urging the preps to go out for the team not only during the spring term but also in the Fall and Winter terms.

C. K. Howard then gave an interesting talk about the various societies open to members of the school. He explained the "closed" fraternities AGC, AUV, and KOA and the "open" ones, EDP, FLD, PAE, PBX, and PLS. He also told about the selection of societies and customs connected with it.

After this speech the refreshments were served. It is estimated that about two hundred and fifty preps and one hundred old men attended. This reception replacing doubt in the minds of the new boys with definite information on all the campus activities, was undoubtedly a great assistance to all the "preps".

erman was clearly shown by the following editorial commenting upon his death, which appeared in the college paper, the Williams Record.

"By nature and training, Professor Dickerman was a scholar of amazing power and depth. He possessed the rarest quality of scholarship, the ability to impart to those he taught the enthusiasm of his own research. In his hands, a translation of Homer was not the dull and stilted thing that Pope and Bryant made of it; it was a thing retaining the beauty and heroic proportions of the original, and yet a complete canvas, rich in pictorial values, the incident, and character study, with which a modern author might endow his work.

"Above all, however, he was a gentleman of the highest type. He was never assertive nor petty nor sarcastic before his classes. A quiet humor and a clear and sympathetic understanding of his men were his tools; with these he earned honor in his chosen field and respect among his pupils. Above and beyond the scholarship which he has fostered in his long career of teaching, there is the fact that each student was his friend as well as his disciple; surely no man could wish more honor when he dies."

ROYAL BLUE DISPLAYED IN LOUVAIN LIBRARY

Andover Colors Among Flags Assembled By W. Francklyn Paris

TRIBUTE TO LATE CARDINAL Exhibit Opened In Presence Of Officials Of Belgian Government

Among the college and preparatory school colors unfurled in the roster of flags displayed in the library of Belgium's University of Louvain this week, Andover's Royal Blue held a prominent place. The Rector of the university, Monsignor Paulin Ladeuze, presided over the massing of the banners in the reading room of the library, attended by members of the faculty and in the presence of representatives of the municipality of Louvain and the Belgian government.

The Louvain library, it will be recalled, is the gift of the American people to the Belgian nation in testimony of their admiration for the late Cardinal Mercier and the gallant conduct of the Belgian people during the war. It replaces, on a much larger site, the library building wantonly destroyed by the invading German troops in 1914.

The architect, Mr. Whitney Warren, in his design of the new library building has happily combined the best elements of Flemish architecture of the time of the Renaissance with Italian and Spanish features, and even some Gothic details in the decoration. The ensemble has been judged by no less an expert than Cass Gilbert as one of the finest pieces of modern architecture erected since the war.

The school flags among which Andover finds her own were assembled for the ceremony by W. Francklyn Paris of New York as a tribute to the late Cardinal Mercier whose friendship he enjoyed during that distinguished ecclesiastic's lifetime.

This privilege of having her colors displayed together with many other American educational institutions is granted Andover in recognition of her participation in the rebuilding of the library.

The full roster of the flags unfurled at the ceremony is as follows: Amherst College, Catholic University of America, Columbia University, Hunter College, Pratt Institute, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, University of Pennsylvania, Wellesley College, Williams College, Yale University, New York Public Library, University of Cincinnati, University of Dayton, University of California, Pomona College, Stanford University, Syracuse University, Sweet Briar College, University of Virginia, Brimmer School, Harvard University, Mass. Institute of Technology, Radcliffe College, College of St. Elizabeth, New Jersey State Normal School, Princeton University, Rutgers College, Coucher College, Johns Hopkins University, St. Mary's Seminary and University, Georgetown University, George Washington University, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, Temple University, Chicago University, The Masters School, Adelphi College, Cathedral College, Cooper Union, Finch School, Fordham University, New York University, St. Agatha, St. Anthony Club, The Spence School, Mary Institute, University of Rochester, Dwight School, College of New Rochelle, Cornell University, Dartmouth College, Knox School, Lafayette College, Middlesex School, Mount Holyoke College, Smith College, Vassar College, Williston Academy, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, University of Delaware, St. Mary's College, St. Charles College, St. Lawrence University, Phillips Academy, Andover, Clark University, Indiana University, The Choate School.

MANY CAMPUS CHANGES DURING SUMMER MONTHS

New Inn and Dining Hall Are Finished; Art Museum Nears Completion

The changes in the campus and in the school itself that greeted the returning student body were quite extensive. In place of the half finished Inn which the vacationing students left, there now stands one of the most beautiful buildings on the campus. The new dining hall has been the source of much comment, not only by the visitor who remarks on its architectural splendor, but also by the students who have many praises for its beauty and conveniences. The tidiness and neatness and attractive furniture add a great deal to the enjoyment of the meal.

More changes greet us though, as we see the excavating being started for the new chapel. This new building will conform in architecture with the other additions to the campus. It goes without saying that this building will be as splendid a structure as those of which we are now so proud. Not many steps from the future site of the chapel-to-be, the New Art Gallery is assuming a finished look. There is yet much to be done to the interior, but before long Andover will have another new structure to boast about.

In noting these summer developments, last but not least may be mentioned the new floors which we found in both the gymnasium and the locker rooms upon our return. This is really a very great improvement over the old, dirty and splintery floors which we endured last year.

The student body of the years of 1930 and 1931 probably has seen the campus of the school undergo more changes and improvements during that one year than any period of twenty-five in the history of the school could exhibit.

SCHOOL MUSICAL CLUBS GET AN EARLY START

New Director Plans Schedule;
Concert At Bradford
Included

Under the supervision of Mr. F. H. Young, instructor in music in the absence of Dr. Pfatteicher, who is on leave of absence this year, musical activities are rapidly progressing. Mr. Young has started to organize the combined musical clubs, which include the glee club, orchestra, and choir. Until last year they included also a mandolin club, but by a vote at that time it was indefinitely discontinued. Try-outs for the choir and glee club have been held for the upper and lower classes this week, and a group of about sixty has been chosen. Wednesday evening all those wishing to join the orchestra met Mr. Young in Graves Hall. Although for various reasons no rehearsal was held, a list of names of those present and also a few names of fellows not there, but whose friends said they wished to join, was compiled. In spite of the fact that many reported, there is still a scarcity in some parts of the orchestra, particularly in violins, violas, cellos, and French horn, leaving an opening for any boys who have not signed up. The next rehearsal will be held next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, in either George Washington Hall or the old Science Building. Regular weekly rehearsals will continue throughout the term. The choir held its first meeting Friday evening in the chapel and will continue having them several times a week throughout the year. Concerts are held annually by the Musical Clubs, with Bradford Academy in Haverhill, Mass., and Rogers Hall in Lowell, Mass. Both of these concerts are followed by a dance. A concert is also given for the benefit of the student body in the Auditorium, in addition to the annual Exeter concert which will be held at Andover this year. These various concerts always afford excellent amusement to all the members of the Musical Clubs and also to the student body. Those who have been signed up for the orchestra include: Bixby, Covell, Kingman, J. W. Kellogg, W. A. Kellogg, Rubenstein, Blount, Folli, Clark, H. B. Hill, DeWolfe, Bloombergh, Parker, Mook, Breed, Royal, R. N. W. Harris, Rhodes, J. L. Richardson, Jensen, Culter, Lazzaro, and Christie.

Those who have been chosen for the choir are:

E. W. Clark, E. Joseph, L. W. Parker, F. S. Allis, J. M. Cates, C. B. Coburn, R. R. Covell, D. M. Dunlop, D. W. Goodale, R. J. Goodrich, H. D. Kellogg, M. F. Millikan, T. F. Moyer, R. S. Pearsall, H.
