Billhardt Switches Line-up To Find Good Hitters In Squad

The Andover baseball team will meet the Boston College Freshman nine on Brothers Field this afternoon. In an effort to improve the hitting, which to the present time has been very weak, Coach Billhardt will replace Cook with Sumner in left field and Haviland with Weller in right field.

Reiter, who pitched well in a practice game with Lawrence High School on Wednesday, and Cates will both be available for mound duty. They will be ably assisted by Captain O'Neil behind the plate.

GREEKS AND GAULS WIN CLUB TRACK MEETS

Shallenberger, A Gaul, Wins Five Events; Promise Shown By Many

In the first club track meet of the spring season, held yesterday afternoon, the Greeks defeated the Romans by a one point margin, and the Gauls overcame the Saxons by a somewhat greater score. Much promising material was unearthed, as was inevitable, since nearly half the school is out for track in one form or another. The outstanding performance of the afternoon was handed in by Shallenberger, who scored first in all the five events which he entered. Results of Mr. Baldwin's expert tutelage were evidenced in the pole vault, while in the hurdles, which Mr. Shepard has been working on, the entrants showed considerable room for im-

INTRA-SCHOOL DEBATE TO BE HELD APRIL 29

Vye, J. Cates, And Sullivan Will Oppose Capers, Darman And Munro

PROHIBITION TO BE SUBJECT OF DEBATE

"Resolved: That fight wines and beers should be legalized in preference to total repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment" will be the subject of the Robinson Prize debate. The teams, consisting of Vye, J. Cates, and Sullivan, for Philo, and Capers, Darman, and Munro, representing the school, began preparation yesterday. The debate will be held in George Washington Hall on April 29, and will be judged by Andover residents.

The teams were chosen from the outstanding debaters of the year, and the debate is sure to hold the interest of everyone. The teams are under the tutelage of Mr. Wilkinson, who coached the debating teams last winter.

The rising importance of the question and the part it is sure to play in the coming national elections will make this debate engrossing.

MR. VAN DER STUCKEN STARTS NEW COURSE

Explains Events That Led To Situation In Russia Today

ALL INTERESTED IN COURSE INVITED

Mr. van der Stucken held the first meeting of his Current Events course last Wednesday afternoon with an initial attendance of about thirty. The course was started after many requests from those who are interested in politics and current happenings in the field of international affairs. The course is held entirely for pleasure. In the first class Mr. van der Stucken gave a general introduction to his course and explained how present conditions arose in the world today.

First Mr. van der Stucken explained the events which led to the situation in Russia today. He told of France's huge loans to Russia in 1905, which were the reasons why Russia joined the Triple Entente. Next, in 1917, came the revolution led by educated men, who were trying to introduce a government of moderation. However, as Mr. van der Stucken said, a government of moderation usually proves a failure in times of distress such as Russia was then undergoing. Kerensky failed, and Lenin and his followers took his place. Mr. van der Stucken expressed the opinion that the Soviet government is a success when compared with the anarchy of 1917, but not when compared with a true monarchy.

He also explained the importance of Manchuria to Japan. Manchuria itself is a powerful country through which passes the Russo-

MID-MORNING MEALS DRAW LARGE CROWDS

Over 500 Bottles Of Milk Used As New Plan Goes Into Effect

FEWER AT BREAKFAST THOUGHT PROBABLE

Some 520 bottles of milk, according to Miss Baker, were consumed in the basement of The Commons between 10:45 and 11:15 Thursday morning, as the new mid-morning meal plan went into effect. Promptly at a quarter of eleven a considerable crowd of students appeared, and the room was well filled in a short time, though a considerable falling-off was noticed during the latter part of the half-hour, as more fellows have eleven-o'clocks than ten-o'clocks. During the first fifteen minutes four hundred bottles were used, while less than two hundred were needed during the second quarter of an hour.

As one student was heard to remark, this mid-morning lunch was a blessing if one had missed break.

BADMINTON EXHIBITION GIVEN BY WILLARD

Defeated In Doubles Match By Houghton And Hutchinson

DIRT COURTS MAR PROFESSIONALS' GAME

"Jess" Willard, professional doubles champion of the United States, with three other outstanding badminton players gave Andover its first sight of expert badminton playing last evening in the Case Memorial Cage. Jack Brewer, the second best professional in the country, Houghton, the amateur doubles and mixed doubles champion of New England, and Hutchinson, the amateur singles champion of New England, accompanied Willard on his trip to Andover.

The matches got under way at about 6:45 p. m. with nearly 250 students in the gallery. Willard, playing with Brewer, opened the proceedings by losing a fast two out of three games to Houghton and Hutchinson. The play was speedy despite the fact that the players were not accustomed to the slippery dirt courts. The spectacular playing of "Jack" Brewer, the English "pro", was outstanding during this match. Immediately after this, Willard's beautiful placing brought him a 15-12 win over Houghton. In the meanwhile Mr. Shields, singles champion of the local badminton club, and Mr. Stevens of Lowell took on Brewer and Hutchinson.

"Jess" Willard, in an interview with a representative of THE PHILLIPPIAN between matches, stated that he believed badminton should be adopted as a sport at Andover, and

PRIZE OFFERED FOR DRAWING ORIGINALITY

Twenty-five Dollars Awarded From Recent Donation Of Ames, P. A. '25

A prize of twenty-five dollars for originality in drawing has been donated by Winslow Ames, P. A. '25.

This prize, named the Morse Prize in honor of Samuel F. B. Morse, was accepted at the last meeting of the trustees. By originality avoidance of the commonplace is not meant, but rather the development of a really personal style based on talent, order, and taste.

Samuel Morse, for whom the prize is named, was an artist of note before he took up his scientific career, and he founded the National Academy of Design. This is the first prize of this kind ever offered at Andover.

Mr. Ames, who recently graduated from Harvard, is at present at the head of the new Lyman Allen Museum at New London, Conn.

Nature Club To Meet In Archaeology Building

The next meeting of the Nature Club will be held in the Archaeology building on April 26 at 6:45. Mr. Moorehead will take the group through the building pointing out objects of interest.

Calvin, Hildreth, Andover '31, To Run For Harvard; High Hurdles Strong

The Andover track season will officially open this afternoon when the Blue will engage the Harvard Freshmen in what is for both teams their first encounter of the season. It is a somewhat altered and vastly improved Andover team from that which the yearlings defeated during the winter season.

As to the relative strength of Harvard, little is known except that which might be gathered from observation of the winter encounter. Ed Calvin, P. A. '31, who was consistent in the 40-yard dash, will

ROMANS AND GAULS WIN FIRST BASEBALL GAMES

Gauls Give Good Performance Marred By But Few Errors

The first club baseball games started yesterday after several weeks of practice. The Gauls triumphed over the Saxons with a score of 10 to 5. Beebe and Wilson, the battery for the Gauls, both played brilliantly. Although Mathews, the Saxon pitcher, played a good game, the men behind the plate did not play so consistently. Being the first game of the season, many of the men were a trifle nervous and a number of errors were made.

In the game between the Greeks and the Romans, the Romans came out on top after a hard fought battle with a three run lead. The final score was 6 to 3. Both R. L. How-

COMPLETION OF ACADEMY CHAPEL DUE TODAY

Work On Organ And Carpets Which Delayed Opening Now Finished

CHARLES A. PLATT IS CHAPEL ARCHITECT

With the completion of the organ installation and the laying of the carpet, work on the new Academy Chapel, which was begun over a year ago is being finished today and the chapel will be open for inspection tomorrow morning, although no definite date has been set as yet for its official opening. Due to the length of time required to install the woodwork and tune the organ, work has been delayed several weeks.

The construction work was done by the Thompson Starrett Company of Boston, famed as builders of skyscrapers, under the supervision of Mr. McKensie who has directed most of the work done by the company around the school. The building is the design of Charles A. Platt, who also designed the Oliver Wendell Holmes Library, Paul Revere Hall, The Commons, and George Washington Hall.

ALUMNI COLUMN

The officials of Dartmouth College announced recently that Richard Jackson of Medford, Mass., P. A. '30, was one of the six juniors to get 1932-33 fellowship awards. These awards relieve the recipients of attendance at classes, tuition, and all examinations, the only stipulation being that they reside in Hanover during their senior year. Jackson is captain of the hockey team, in which sport he was prominent while at Andover.

John Taylor, John Fuller Taylor, J. S. Abell, H. K. Brown, Jr., J. B. Elliot, F. P. Haas, T. H. Lawrence, Jr., W. F. Lineberger, Jr., all P. A. '31, have been elected to the Freshman Football Managerial Competition at Yale.

P. D. Eastman, P. A. '28, has recently been elected to the Sphinx Club at Amherst.

Foster F. Birch, P. A. '29, is president of the Sphinx Club at Amherst.

A. R. Yale, P. A. '28, qualified as a member, last Monday, of the Yale University golf team with an eighty-seven.

Albert H. Newfield, Princeton '33, was elected team manager of next year's basketball squad. He graduated from Andover in 1929, and is a member of the Cannon Club.

JOHN M. MCGAULEY, P. A. '29 was recently elected Captain of wrestling at Yale.

More Harrisiana

Since the publication of the last PHILLIPPIAN, Reed Harris, expelled editor of the Columbia Spectator, has been reinstated into Columbia University upon the direction of Associate Dean Nicholas McKnight. The stir which Harris's expulsion caused seems to have been of sufficient import to warrant his reinstatement. However, immediately upon learning of the university's change of heart, Harris resigned from Columbia for good. With this reinstatement and resignation came what is apparently the inside story of Harris's expulsion. He was dismissed for an impertinent reply to Dean Hawkes's request for proof of his dining hall attacks and charges. It was for this impertinence that he was expelled, not for too free speech, for Associate Dean McKnight explained Columbia's policy with the news of the reinstatement, saying that "as to free speech and freedom of the press it is and has always been the university's policy not to discipline a student for the exercise of any rights guaranteed to him by the Federal or State Constitutions." So the Harris case ends—with Harris apparently emerging with a victory both for himself and for student journalism, which wielded power sufficiently strong to win his reinstatement, and with Columbia exonerating itself of that most heinous of crimes, the suppression of free speech.

Progress At The Commons

Upon the announcement of the establishment of a mid-morning milk-and-cracker, meal, the Commons this week rose another step in public esteem. Since its opening two years ago the Commons has been perhaps the one unit on the Hill that has required the united attention of every branch of the school administration. To manage its dining hall well is always one of the most difficult jobs every school must face; in Andover the job was doubly difficult, for the Commons was the first eating place here to be used by all the students. Students accustomed to the food of private eating houses and even students hardened to the rather poor food of the old beanery gathered together and tasted the food of the new Commons censoriously; criticism was the natural outcome of such a situation.

Three reasons contributed to this criticism. First, the beauty and dignity of the building seemed to indicate that the food should be equally excellent. Second, it seemed impossible that such elaborate kitchen equipment could bring forth anything but remarkable meals even though five hundred odd students must be served. Third, students have always believed that they should be receiving better than they are, whether it be food or privileges. Undoubtedly the situation which prevailed a year ago last fall needed an immediate and radical remedy. The Trustees realized this and did their utmost to improve conditions. The school authorities combined to do what they could. And now, almost two years later, a direct comparison will prove, we believe, that this united action has brought about a distinct improvement. The extra service of this new mid-morning meal, designed for that remarkable phenomenon, the ever-hungry boy, is receiving favorable comment on all sides. Conditions already have improved considerably; may they continue to do so in the future.

Andover Plates

A project advocated by several prominent Andover alumni within the past year seems worthy of more serious attention than it has been getting. Noticing the success of the sets of plates published recently by such institutions as St. Paul's School, Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton, Smith, Vassar, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of California, and many other such colleges and schools, these alumni have suggested that Andover issue some plates of her own for sale to her many alumni who are always desirous of mementos of the school, and especially to those who did not go to college and regard Andover as their sole Alma Mater. Andover's famous colors, blue and white, are perfectly suited for a good-looking plate, and no one can deny that there are not handsome buildings on the Hill to grace the plates with their images. What could be more fitting for a luxurious dining room than a set of blue and white plates with pictures of the Memorial Tower, Samuel Phillips Hall, the Senior Fence with Bartlett and Foxcroft Halls in the background, the Oliver Wendell Holmes Library, the Addison Gallery of American Art, the old Stone Chapel or the new Academy chapel, and possibly Bullfinch or Pearson Halls? The plates are, we believe, of very good quality, made in one of the best potteries in England. Andover as a school is perfectly suited for them. They have been a tremendous success at Yale; they should be equally successful at Andover.

DR. MOOREHEAD WILL VISIT INDIAN CAMP

Plans To Aid Students Interested In Taking Research Work In College

Any student interested in Indian history, or in the study of primitive people, is welcome to visit the Archaeology Building at any time. Dr. Moorehead will be glad to explain the exhibits and talk with any fellow planning to take research work in pre-historic studies at college.

Near Concord, N. H., was discovered not long ago, in a farmer's meadow alongside a trout brook indications of a large and very old Indian camp site. Many relics were found there, and Dr. Moorehead plans to investigate the place this spring.

An interesting book, Columbia Came Late, has been recently placed in the library. It is heartily recommended for anyone interested in archaeology. It relates to Central and South America, is written in an extremely interesting style, and contains many interesting stories of the mysteries of the temples, buildings and shrines of our Central American peoples.

again represent Harvard, this time in the 100, the 220, and the broad jump. Likewise "Red" Hilbreth, P. A. '31, distinguished for past performance, will run in the 100. A third member of the Harvard team who is well known at Andover is Locke, Exeter's 440-yard dash star, who will again run in that race.

Nine returning letter men form the nucleus of the Andover squad. J. Dorman, the present holder of the 440-yard record, can be depended upon in this race. J. Dechesne, a letter man in the mile, is to run the half-mile, while Nield, a promising recruit from the second team, will represent Andover in Duchesne's usual position. Greenwood, deMare, and Crosby will run in the sprints. Calmers, a dependable sprint man, is out with a lame ankle. B. Brown and Raymond will do the hurdles. In the field events Andover has a powerful aggregation, many of last year's team returning. In the pole vault, Miller, Harding, and Cates will be the blue entrants, Badman not entering this event, since he is specializing in the high jump, in which he, with Collings and Prescott, will probably excel. Fitz and Ritzman will represent the broad Graham, star shot-putter, with Royal, Dwyer, and Hite will toss the shot, while in the discs, Andover will be represented by Millard, Newell, and Lafean. In the final event, the javelin, the throwers will be Neal, Harvey, and Morse.

Messrs. Shepard and Shields, when asked to make some statement concerning the strength of the squad or the outcome of the meet, were skeptical as usual, and refrained from making any definite comment. Manager Williams, however, when questioned, said, "The meet ought to be a fine test of the team's calibre."

fast, as he evidently had. Miss Baker feels that a decreased attendance at breakfast may be one result of the idea, and states that less milk was consumed at dinner that noon.

For the benefit of those who may be wondering, permission cannot be granted to take milk out, as it would be too difficult to keep track of the bottles.

On Friday a surprising increase was shown as 630 bottles disappeared, most of it, as on the day before, during the first fifteen minutes. The enthusiasm had spread to the Faculty, two of whom were seen strolling about, sipping milk.

One student, it appears, explained that he did not care for milk, and asked if he couldn't have Coca-Cola instead. Upon being informed that this could not be arranged, he asked if he might take his bottle out with him, sell it for a nickel, and get himself a Coca-Cola with the proceeds.

Mr. Willard believes that interest in badminton is increasing very rapidly and that, although originally all the interest was for the most part concentrated in New England, recently it has been spreading all over the country, doubling itself year by year.

The results of the meet were as follows: Greeks vs. Romans: in the running events, the 75-yard dash was won by Ungerman, (G); the 300, by Clymer, (G); the 600, by Cook, (R); the hurdles, by Day, (G). In the field events: the shot put was won by Schultz, (R); the pole vault, by Gardner, (G); the broad jump, by W. In the Saxons vs. Gauls: in the field events, the 75-yard dash was won by Shallenberger, (G); the 300, by Shallenberger, (G); the 600, by Blasdell, (G); the hurdles, by Shallenberger, (G). In the field events, the shot put was won by Rosenberg, (S); the pole vault, by Shallenberger, (G); the broad jump, by Shallenberger, (G); the discus, by Dean, (G); the javelin, by Johnstone, (G); and the high jump, by Dearborn, (S).

Thus the Greeks and the Gauls are now tied for first place, and the Romans and Saxons, for last.

First Baseball Games
ard and C. L. Miller pitched for the Greeks with A. M. Clark behind the plate. All three played well through the four innings of the game. Although a few errors were made, the team played well together, and Coach Jim Ryley says that the prospects of the coming season look bright. However, the Romans with Taradash pitching did better than they were expected to do.
