Austin, Emerson, And Capers Make Up Negative: Thacher, Hite, And Woolsey On Affirmative

The negative, represented by B. M. Austin, J. H. Emerson, and F. W. Capers, was given the decision in the thirty-seventh annual contest for the Henry S. Robinson prizes, Tuesday evening. The speakers for the affirmative were T. Thacher, R. M. Hite, and J. M. W. B. Burnett, President of Philo, after a short introductory speech explaining the occasion, introduced Thacher, speaking for the affirmative. After setting forth the interpretation which he and his colleagues gave the question at issue. Thacher brought up as his first point the power that advertising has in influencing the purchaser, and the misuse of this power in the line of patent medicines and various drug preparations. He cited five well-known products and told of the harmful effects which they have produced

Beach And Miller Outstanding In Oils; Student Reviews Club's Work

The Sketch Club is now offering a representative exhibition of the year's work done entirely by students. The works cover two small galleries. These are filled with charcoal drawings, linoleum cuts, ink washes, and oil paintings.

The exhibition is now complete. but the new works of the members will be hung from now on as they are finished.

The following is a student's criticism of the exhibit:

At the beginning of the year there was a trend toward imaginative subjects, but now the members are painting real scenes of the school and nature. In connection with this Stevens has two excellent small views of parts of the Academy. They have very good coloring and show good handling of subject. Miller, who has made remarkable progress, is represented by several pictures, including his very first and last. His first attempt was an imaginative painting of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. It has excellent coloring and shows talent. His third is a small landscape and house which is a good example of his improvement.. The picture is a real piece of work, and is helped by the excellent lighting of the background

Weissman is represented by sev eral paintings, the best of which is his picture of a marble head. Most of the pictures illustrate the members' primary achievements and their improvement. Tower has a fine picture of a lighthouse with the foam breaking high. Meyers demonstrates his love of boats by several paintings of small ships.

Beach is the best represented as he has been a member of the Sketch Club for several years and has had much outside practice. He has a large painting of a row of piers in Seattle, which took him several months to complete, and also a small picture of a scaport. The latter shows his talent to a better degree and hardly gives a hint of degree of Master of Arts in 1918, an amateur's work. His colors are becoming more delicate and he has developed a real feeling for paint-

The other gallery contains charcoal drawings and linoleum cuts. There are three self-portraits by Store, Richardson, and Peck, Richardson has achieved the best likea good self-reproduction, it is an excellent piece of drawing. Stone also has a fine chalk drawing of

The Andover ball club barely missed a victory Saturday when Iarabeano of the undefeated Boston College Freshmen hit a long right-field fly in the ninth which was misjudged by Stevens. triple knocking in a run resulted. and all chances for an Andover win were removed.

The home team showed some real ball playing when it held B. C. to only 4-6, considering that the opponents have won every game this season and have given most of their college opponents severe trouncings.

Nothing happened in the first, but in the second the Freshmen managed to connect with Platt and scored a run. Lombardi walked and Flaherty hit. Lane was next up and hit, scoring Lombardi, Packard saved a run by putting Flaherty out at the plate. They also scored one in the third when Marocca came home on a wild throw to the pitcher. Packard caught Mahoney on his way home to save another run for the Blue.

Andover didn't score until the fifth when Platt reached first on an error. Pomerleau and Stevens connected but reached first on an error, scoring Platt. The opponents also scored a run that inning. Ready reached first on an error: stole second: and went to third on Lombardi's hit. He crossed the plate on a wild throw from Mc-Ternen.

Paglucia of the visitors whacked out a homer in the fifth with no men on base. However, the Blue did nothing about it until the eighth. Stevens walked and Heller was put out at first but sent his teammate to second. McTernen Stevens. Kellogg reached first on an error and was hit in the head by a ball while diving back to first. Lowe replaced him, Sumner sacrificed to left to bring Mc-Ternen across the plate.

The Fresh scored two runs in the ninth when Galligan singled and Tarabeano tripled to score him. Mahonev popped to left and Iarabeano chalked up another for the opponents.

A vastly underrated Andover track team won the 48th Annual Harvard Interscholastics at the Stadium track last Saturday with a score of 52 1-5 points. The Blue team placed in all but two of the fourteen events in Class A, producing nearly enough points in the field events alone to beat Exeter, the nearest rival. Exeter's score was 36 1-5, only three more than the Blue got in the field events alone. Kitchel did 25 seconds flat in the 220-yard low hurdles to tie the record in that event. Barclay A. Kingman came up from seventh place in the last lap to win a sensational mile run in 4 minutes and 38 seconds. It was one of the best races of the afternoon. In the 440-yard run, Herbert Furse broke the tape in 51 1-5 seconds. Capt. John Badman jumped 5 feet 10 inches for a first in the running high jump. Harold W. Sears tossed the hammer 168 feet 4 7-8 inches and thus out-distanced all onponents. The pole vault was won by William H. Harding. The bar was at 12 feet.

Tom Crosby won the first heat of the 100-yard dash in 10 1-5 seconds and came fifth in the finals. Crosby also placed in the trial heat walked, loading the bases. #### Fun For All

Many complaints concerning the small attendance at baseball games have appeared in this column in past years. Such arguments as lack of school spirit and the tendency of people to show utter indifference to the success or failure of the team in its preliminary games have been used with no noticeable effect on either the attendance or the percentage of victories earned by the team in its games leading to the Exeter contest. These arguments seem very narrow since it is not the nature of most boys to sit and watch their fellow students play the great American game and worship them for their prowess. The average growing boy has a certain desire to be somewhat of an athlete himself and realizes that Prep school is the time to develop such talent. Baseball is not the only sport in which games are played on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Lacrosse, for example, is judged by many to be far more interesting to watch than baseball.

However, the case still stands. Is it not better to be exercising than to watch someone else exhibit his athletic skill? The physical health of the students will be greatly aided and certainly a higher degree of personal character and sportsmanship will be developed if the students are themselves taking some form of physical exercise rather than sitting in a grandstand and having their every move directed by a group of those who lead the cheers.

Of course a major contest with Exeter is an entirely different matter. On these days there is no reason why every student should not be present to support the team and become a part of the cheering section which is led by the able cheer leaders, who are "kings for a day". An Andover man has not the true Andover spirit until he has seen an Ex- and netted one of the Crimson's eter contest. However, until the third of June we feel every student three tallies.... should be preparing for future Andover-Exeter contests.

A Good Opportunity

A few weeks ago we printed in this column a paragraph about Andover's newest organization, Peabody Union. We feel, however, that we did not do justice to the marvelous opportunities offered by that organization. Last Thursday Dr. G. Pozzy de Besta gave a fine talk in French to the French Club at its special table. The members eat together twice a week in a special room and can talk only in French at these meals. We feel there are many more who could avail themselves of this excellent opportunity to speak a foreign language fluently.

Aside from the educational benefits to be derived from Peabody Union, the social contacts should be given equal consideration. There is much talk about the evils of the present fraternity system at Andover, but it has at least one exceptionally fine point to its credit. The members learn to adapt themselves to their fellow members and thus promote a high degree of lasting friendship. A larger number of students should realize this and join Peabody Union.

The only way the standard which has been set this year for one of Andover's largest extra-curricular organizations can be maintained is for a large group of students to sustain the good support which has been given Peabody Union this year.

He cleared 14 feet 1 1-2 inches in the pole vault and jumped 6 feet 6 1-8 inches to a new high in the jump. These are the two most spectacular records ever achieved by a highflying individual in the history of track and field sport. While at Andover. Brown broke the longstanding interscholastic pole vault record, and managed to place in every high jump event he entered. Also prominent for Yale were the Williamson, following: Rose, Keesling and Moore, Raymond, Brown, Barclay, and Ritzman; the last four were in the Freshman meet. Ritzman, although a freshman, has been picked to represent the Yale-Harvard aggregation this summer against Oxford and Cambridge. When it comes to reading the metres, the former Blue track star is right on the mark. In the 100, he clocked 10.7 seconds, in the 200, 21.1 seconds, and in the broad jump he executed a non-stop flight of 23 ft. 7 5-8 ins. In the freshman meet, the P. voting most of his time to the testimonials used in modern advertising. In doing so, he brought in some humorous sides of the question.

After stating that the advertising business was not perfect. Emerson continued the argument with an explanation of the part that advertising plays in the cycle of production. He then took up the stability of quality which it insures and the employment that it furnishes. Woolsey, the last man to argue for the affirmative, said that harmful advertisements have a three to one prevalence over those which are not harmful. He then followed with the rather weak point that advertising furnishes employment for considerably fewer people than it deceives with its false claims. His main topic was the manner in which advertisements play upon the emotions to obtain their ends instead of presenting the true facts.

The aspect stressed by Capers was the influence on people, such sented some excellent points and as to make them more careful of their health, and the tendency to produce better conditions in genenough to constitute a conclusive dover debating circles, resumed the eral. RAGCED STICKWORK SHOWN

Francis, Hall, Lewis, Cleveland, Henry, And McLean Score For Andover

The Blue stickmen secured an casy 8-1 victory over the Tufts Freshmen Saturday on the old campus. The visiting team was better than had been anticipated, and consequently the Andover outfit was not able to use as many reserves as had been hoped. The team showed the effects of not having played many hard practice games this week, and will have to do much better in the game next Saturday with the Dartmouth cubs. The team started a little weaker than usual owing to the absence of Gulick and Moyer, who were not able to play on account of disabilities. Greenough playd an excellent game on the defense. Wright, second string cage keeper, took the goal in his first game and did a fine job, making quite a number of good saves.

Both teams showed rather ragged playing in the beginning of the game, with a good deal of inaccurate passing and loose stick work. The weather was suited to the middle of August; the blazing sun and the clouds of dust rising from the bare spots in the field combined to make it extremely uncomfortable for the players. During the first period the ball moved back and forth between the two goals with neither team making a real scoring threat. A high spot in the second quarter was a beautiful body-check made by Henry, which left a very surprised Tufts player sitting on the ground. Lewis rang up the first tally of the game, and was soon followed by Cleveland's. Toward the end of the half Francis netted a shot to make the score three to nothing. Tietlebaum, playing goal for the visitors showed up exceptionally well throughout the game. He played a good, steady game, and was by far the best player on the Tufts

Hall made two more goals for the Blue in the third quarter. Both were clean shots. The Tufts net was bombarded steadily, but Tietlebaum's clever work succeeded in keeping all but these two out. Henry and Francis both scored for Andover in the last period. They were followed by Braken, who made the only goal for the visitors in the whole game. McLean made the final score of the game 8 to 1 when he netted a shot in the latter part of the quarter.

Woolsey brought up the credulity placed by the consumer in the statements made by the advertiser and the fact that he must rely on the producer as an authority in technical matters. A good point which Woolsey introduced was that to say advertising is detrimental does not mean in the least that it should be done away with.

The judges, Mr. Philip R. French, Rev. Charles W. Henry, and Mr. Frank W. McLanathan, all of Andover, gave the decision to the negative. The prize is sixty dollars, twenty to each man.

Captain John Badman got a fourth in the running broad jump, distance 20 feet 2 3-8 inches. Robert B. Palmer threw the javelin 157 feet 9 inches and rated a fourth. In the pole vault, Wirt R. Cates tied for third with four other men at 11 feet 4 inches. William G. Dwyer threw the discus 125 feet 11 inches for a second. Ray A. Graham came in fourth with 120 feet 10 inches. Anthony Geniawicz obtained his second first in this event as he was only entered in the shot put and the discus.

J. Donovan of Exeter was only 1-5 of a second away from the record in the high hurdles and took but one leap in the broad jump to collect a total of ten points. He cleared 22 feet 3 1-2 inches in the latter event. Another double place winner was Larry Scanlon of St. John's Prep. He stepped the 100 in 10 flat to equal the record and missed the 220 record by a fifth of second.

This was Andover's 11th Interscholastic meet in the past 13 years. St. John's was a close third with 34 1-2, and Worcester Academy was fourth with 23 2-5. Then came Bridgton with 20, Milton Academy with 14, Clark School, thanks to two firsts by Tony Geniawicz, with 10; Moses Brown of Providence with 6 7-10, New Prep of Cambridge and St. Paul's tied with 4. New Hampton got 3, and Huntington 2.

In Class B. Lynn English was victorious. The Roxbury Memorial team is the champion of Class

Cruise Up Maine Coast Planned For Early July

Mr. Hagenbuckle is looking for about ten boys to take on a cruise the two weeks followingthe College Boards. The cruise is open preferably to boys in the two upper classes who have had sailing experience. This year he plans to go up the Maine coast on a seventy foot schooner which has been commissioned. All fellows who are interested should meet in Bancroft immediately after lunch today.

Here Mr. Wile remarked that the United States is run by three men, Roosevelt, Howe and Moley, the latter being Assistant Secretary of State. "These three." he emphasized, "are the most powerful men in the nation today, Howe and Moley having more power than the heads. Miller has probably the whole cabinet." ing. Having daily access to the library, I was able to attend meetings of the council or the various commissions of the league.

Among the teachers at the Institute were Professor W. E. Rappard, member of the Permanent Mandates Commission and one of the foremost authorities on international affairs; Professor Paul Mantoux, former director of the political section of the League of Nations secretariat; Dr. Hans Wehborg, Authority on International Law: and Professor Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago.

The courses of the institution were conducted as lectures and seminars in French or English. There were about seventy-five regular students and about fifty special students. I was a regular student, counting my work toward a degree. The students represented most of the important nations of the world, especially America, France, Switzerland, Germany, Italy and Britain. When I asked the secretary for a list of the students, he had to get permission from the director of the school in order to grant my request. This brought up a big problem, because lists were never given out. The reason given for such precautions troversies.

was that they had to guard against agitators calling meetings of mutiny against the faculty. Having been a teacher myself for fifteen years, the director decided that I was a safe person to be intrusted with the list.

Here are the names, with the nationality, of some of my fellow students: Avni, Turkey; Chai, China: Cotaru, Rumania; Dalla Costa, Italy; Quelfate, Palestine; Hu, China; Kawakami, United States: Paunesco, Rumania; Poortenaar, Holland; Djeme, Persia: Shankar, India; Sato, Japan.

A few word pictures will give some idea of the varied types of students. The girl from Nancy. France, a Joan of Arc, was "neat, good-looking, fair haired. She was spunky and talked back to her professor if he was at all anti-French in point of view. She became angry at one professor and ceased to attend his lectures. (Attendance at these was not required.)

One of the most valuable features of the Institute were the weekly dinners at some cafe or at the International Club. There was usually some speaker of world importance, like Briand or Arthur Henderson. The guest generally gave a short talk, and then the meeting was open for discussion.
