MARCEL DUPRÉ, WELL-KNOWN ORGANIST, GIVES RECITAL

DUPRÉ IS FAMED FOR HIS IMPROVISATIONS

Enthusiastic Ovation Forces Organist To Play Two Encores

PLAYS OWN COMPOSITIONS

Dupré Plays Improvisations On Any Themes Submitted To Him A Moment Before

Marcel Dupré, the distinguished organist of the Paris Conservatory, thrilled a fair-sized audience with a brilliant recital in the Academy Chapel on Wednesday evening, November 22. His program was enthusiastically received, and a long ovation brought two encores. The house consisted largely of townspeople, but a good number of students also attended.

The first number on the program was the Sinfonia from Cantata No. 29 of Bach. This prelude has a fast and rapid rhythm, but was played in such a way as to have a perfect smoothness and continuity. It was written in 1731, and is expressive of an exultant joy and thanksgiving to God.

The second group consisted of six short chorales, chosen from the book of Seventy-nine Chorales by Marcel Dupré himself, which, published in 1932, was based on the melodies used in the chorale preludes of Bach.

Then followed the Cantabile from the 7th Symphony of Charles M. Widor, a fanciful Fugue on B. A. C. H., the Symphonic Interlude from the Redemption by Cesar Franck and the well-known Scherzo from A Midsummer Night's Dream by Mendelssohn.

LIBRARY HOLDING BOOK EXHIBITION

Stages Of Printing And Binding Demonstrated; Very Interesting And Educational

An exhibition, showing the materials and processes used in printing and binding a book, has been placed in the two cases near the floor of the library. It is very interesting as well as educational.

On the bulletin boards and in the two upright cases are many brightly-colored jackets of the books recently added to the library. These are very useful, because, by the titles and pictures on the wrappers one may very easily pick out the book he wishes to read. On the table in front of the bookcase are a number of books about many different parts of the world. A ribbon extends from each book to the place on a globe about which the book tells. A group of good books that may be bought for only a dollar are placed on a table to the right of the card catalogue.

Current Loan Exhibition Represents Wide Range Of Subject Matter And Technique

(Mr. Sawyer, the curator of the Addison Art Gallery, has kindly consented to write the following criticism of the exhibit, Contemporary American Drawings, now on display there.)

Good drawings have a two-fold interest for the artist and the collector. They have the quality of their medium, a spontaneous form of expression which may convey a decided feeling of life and action. They also serve as an excellent introduction to the finished work of an artist, whether it be in sculpture or painting. Both of these interests may be found in the current drawing exhibition at the Addison

Jack Marchard To Play At Tea Dance Dec. 2nd

Jack Marchard and his orchestra will play at the tea dance on Saturday, December 2nd, in the Commons. The tea dance will begin at 4:00 P. M. rather than at 4:30 as has been the custom at previous dances. The prices will be $2.50 per couple, $2.00 for stags, and $1.50 for scholarship men.

MR. SCHOOLCRAFT OF EXETER GIVES TALK

Discusses Newly Developed House Plan And Round Table Classes

MR. HARKNESS MADE PROJECT POSSIBLE

Mr. Schoolcraft, a member of the faculty at Phillips Exeter Academy, gave a talk last night in the Peabody House on the subject of the house plan at that Academy. The talk was exceedingly interesting to the small but appreciative group which was present. The speaker was introduced to his audience by Mr. Dirk H. van der Stucken, faculty adviser to the Peabody Union. At the conclusion of Mr. Schoolcraft's speech, an informal discussion was held and questions were asked by his listeners.

The so-called Harkness house plan was really begun in 1931, explained the speaker. The project was made possible by the large gifts of money which were donated to the Academy by Mr. Harkness; it has had a great effect on the Exeter students already, and it is not yet entirely completed, for the growth of such a system takes a rather long time. In general the purposes of the plan are as follows: the school is to provide every facility for the complete education of the undergraduates. The classrooms have been changed and, in

MR. GRAY ADDED TO LACROSSE COACHES

Everyone Welcome To Join Up For Practice On The West Quadrangle

The Blue lacrosse team will have an additional coach this year in the person of Mr. Gray. Mr. James, the regular coach, states that everyone is still welcome to join up for lacrosse, and anyone so wishing is asked to report out at the field by Bishop and Taylor Halls. As yet, Mr. James refuses to predict any bright future for the team, but, judging from the practices, the best is to be expected.

LARGE TURNOUT FOR HOCKEY PRACTICE

Season's Outlook Cheerful; Schedule Indefinite As Yet

A group of about sixty-five boys, the largest turnout for many years, reported for hockey practice last Tuesday under Mr. Jackson. Practice was held on the perfect ice of the farthest duck pond in the Sanctuary. The only drawback to this new arrangement is the distance which the squad will have to hike each day until the regular rink is in condition. Due to the large number of returning letter-men and promising newcomers, the outlook for the coming season is particularly cheerful. The schedule is as yet tentative.

REV. W. B. BRYAN

The Reverend W. B. Bryan, an Andover graduate, will preach at the Sunday chapel service. He graduated from Princeton and entered the Princeton Theological Seminary. While at college he was a member of the crew, and, after he graduated from the Seminary, he coached the oarsmen. For many years Mr. Bryan worked with the Philadelphia Society, a student Christian Association. He now holds the office of Director of the Princeton Westminster Foundation, doing work among the students at Princeton.

The Society of Inquiry will have the pleasure of hearing Mr. Bryan talk in the evening. At tea or dinner he will meet the students who intend to go to Princeton next year.

The Reverend W. B. Bryan of Princeton will be the first of the Society of Inquiry's Sunday night speakers for this year. Dr. Bryan will talk informally on the top floor of Peabody House at 7 o'clock, and there will be the customary open forum for questions. The student body is cordially invited to attend.

7 LETTERMEN RETURN FOR SWIMMING TEAM

McDuff, Acting Captain, To Swim Freestyle In Spite Of Injured Leg

McBRIDE AND CATES SHOW PROMISE

The Blue swimming team started practice last Tuesday under the coaching of Mr. Dake. Although the schedule of at least seven meets is one of the hardest in recent years, the mermen have a good chance of coming through their season undefeated with seven returning letter-men and several promising new men. McDuff, who was appointed acting captain in the place of Tate Mason who did not return to school this year, will star in the freestyle events in spite of his bad leg. Hurlbutt has improved much over last season in the backstroke. Both Campion and Preston, letter-men of last year, will race for the Blue in the breaststroke.

McBride, a new man, has turned in good times in the freestyle events so far, and he may secure a regular position on the team. Cates, an old man who has not been out for swimming previously, is showing Janet Gaynor, though unpopular among the student body in previous pictures shown here, may redeem herself in Paddy, the Next Best Thing. To what admirers she has, Miss Gaynor is more likable as the eternal sweetheart than as the young wife as she was cast in The First Year, and in her latest movie, her part is of the former kind.

Following the saying that all's fair in love and war, she tells her sister's fiancé that she is marrying him for his money and then wins him for herself. She claims that her sister loves another man, but this excuse is not very convincing and one still suspects that Paddy is looking out for herself. However, Miss Gaynor manages to win forgiveness for the shortcomings of her character.

SPEECH ILLUSTRATED BY UNIQUE PICTURES

Alan Villiers To Give Talk On Voyage Of The "Grace Harwar"

NO ADMISSION CHARGE

"By Way Of Cape Horn," Title Of Speech On Glory Of The Sailing Ship

The citizens of Andover who have any love for the sea and the old wind driven ships will welcome the opportunity to hear Mr. Alan Villiers, and to see his remarkable motion pictures of life on a square rigged ship under sail. Mr. Villiers will speak at George Washington Hall on the evening of December 1st, at 8:15 P. M. Phillips Academy cordially invites Andover people to be present. There will be no charge for admission.

Part of the story which Mr. Villiers will tell and illustrate by his unique pictures is that of the voyage of the Grace Harwar, 138 days from Australia to Ireland. In Mr. Villiers's own brief summary of the events of that voyage, he says: "We were driven at least a thousand miles out of our course, not to count the miles we lost by changing winds. We had one of us killed, another went overboard, a third was badly broken down and did not get better. We were short of food. The ship leaked. She had to fight hard for it more than once on the voyage. We were 138 days, land to land, and in all that time we saw nothing but a glimpse of New Zealand, a distant view of the heights of Staten Island off Cape Horn, not in New York Har-

HOOPSTERS BEGIN WINTER PRACTICE

Fifty-Two Men Report For The First Practice Of The Varsity Basketball Squad

Varsity basketball practice has begun with a very satisfactory turnout of fifty-two men. Coach Billhardt hopes that with this large group to pick from, he will be able to get into shape a final squad and team worthy of Phillips Academy.

So far there has been little else besides hard daily practice, with several scrimmages thrown in. In doing this, it is hoped that the better players will come to the fore, and show their ability. When there has been sufficient time for the players to be judged, Mr. Billhardt is going to cut the squad down to twenty-five so that there will be fewer men and more room to work in. After Christmas, there will be another cut of only five men, and after that the squad will be left intact.

Dr. Pfatteicher Writes On Marcel Dupré Concert; Lauds Artist's Genius And Skill

The comparative smallness of the audience at M. Dupré's recital in the chapel last Wednesday evening was one of those sharp reminders of the Phillistinism of much of our life. A few evenings ago there was standing-room only at a performance which could have been presented by any average graduate of any so-called college of dramatic art. At a performance of genius of the first order on an instrument of the first order, there were seats a plenty, though elsewhere great crowds have been turned away during the present tour of the artist in question.

The opening number was a transcription of the symphony of the Cantata which Bach wrote as a thanksgiving to God for the happy issue of the municipal elections at Leipzig. Even the recent defeat of Tammany has brought forth nothing comparable with this scintillating number which many a one has played in his youth in piano arrangement.

The six short chorals, taken from the "Seventy-Nine Chorals" which Dupré recently published—Choral Preludes on Protestant Chorals—written by a Catholic organist—confirm the remark of Max Reger, himself brought up in the Catholic communion, that Protestantism

The Red Cross Roll Call

Next Tuesday night, November 28, a member of the student body will call at your room and ask you to join the Red Cross. In past years the school to a man has supported the Red Cross. Phillips Academy believes in it. And its need and its appeal are this year perhaps greater than ever.

The Red Cross is a truly international organization, recognized by treaties, and in this country existing by an Act of Congress. When war comes, its nurses and its civilian workers of both sexes are at the front, their labors a godsend to the soldiers, their insignia honored wherever men are honorable. During times of peace, the Red Cross answers the call of disaster wherever in the world it rises, sending to the scene its corps of trained workers, pouring out its funds for the relief of the starving and the homeless, from chaos restoring order. Fire and flood and famine and drought it is permanently geared to meet. Through the Red Cross alone, in war and natural calamity, can most people give practical expression to an ideal of the brotherhood of man which transcends race and class and creed.

But the Red Cross does not function in emergencies alone. Every day, in towns and cities where its chapters and its branches exist, its nurses are visiting the homes of poor sick people; its social workers are relieving needs for food, clothing, or shelter; its clinics are caring for the health of children, sometimes sending them to sanitariums where they can be nursed back to normal vigor; its volunteer committees are making and distributing clothing wherever it is called for. In service of all kinds the Red Cross works heroically for the common good.

Andover has its own Red Cross Chapter, which, during the recent years of depression, has given time and money and expert care in the problems of unemployment and destitution which the town has had to meet. Its work in Andover is not duplicated by that of any other organization. Something of the security and the safety of Andover as a place to come to school in would be sacrificed if the Red Cross did not get the support of everyone who benefits from it.

It costs a dollar to join. Half of your dollar goes to Washington to carry on the work of the national organization. The other half stays in Andover. Anything over a dollar stays here too. If the local work is to go on without crippling, many subscriptions of more than the minimum dollar must be received.

Give what you can. The student body is proverbially generous. Here is an object worthy of your generosity. JOIN NOW!

The squad now consists of approximately sixty men. The first and final cut will come soon after Thanksgiving at which time the number will be reduced to forty-five.

There is no meet scheduled until after the Christmas vacation. The first competition for the mermen will probably be with the Brown Freshmen on January 20th. The last three meets of the season will all take place away from Andover. The Blue mermen will conclude their campaign when they meet the swimmers from Exeter on the 10th of March.

The tentative schedule is as follows:

- January 13—Open
- January 20—Brown Freshmen
- January 27—Gardner High School
- February 3—Boston Boys' Club
- February 10—Huntington
- February 17—Harvard Freshmen (away)
- March 3—Worcester (away)
- March 10—Exeter (away)

order that no member of the faculty may have more than 14 students in a class, that body has been increased. Another part of the plan is to reduce the number of advisers to each faculty adviser. Many fine buildings have been erected in conjunction with the plan and several old ones have been completely remodeled. One of the new buildings Phillips Hall, besides containing forty classrooms is elaborately equipped with a miniature court for debates, etc., and various other rooms, each for its special purpose.

Widor again sounded saccharine, and again raised the question how much of his music will live. At the risk of one more pro-Teutonism one wonders whether the little-played Reger may not outlive the much-played Widor.

Had the Germans not called B flat "b", and b natural "h", there could have been no fugues on B-A-C-H whether for better or for worse depends upon the listener's appreciation of the 4-note fugue theme, or his admiration of the development of that theme.

The Symphonic Interlude of Cesar Franck seemed a bit disjointed and diffuse on first hearing though one hesitates to allow one's self a criticism of the venerable master. The Scherzo from "A Midsummer Night's Dream," by

It is the acting of Walter Connolly, though, that is the finest in the picture. As Paddy's father, who is a debt-ridden old gentleman, his substantial talent makes his scene with his creditors a gem, and his death is well done, though it might be considered a trifle too sentimental. Warner Baxter makes the most of his secondary role.

The added attractions of Margaret Lindsay, Harvey Stephens, and the unusual beauty of the Irish scenery, go to make up a pretty good movie.

Marcel Dupré, Organist, Gives Brilliant Recital

The last but one on the program was a form of climax to all that had gone before. It was the Fantasy on the hymn Ad nos ad salutarem undam, For us, towards the Fountain of Salvation. Lasting twenty-seven minutes, it was a short symphony in itself, and called forth the utmost resources of the organ and technique of the player.

Finally, Dupré performed the feat for which he is so famed. He improvised with wonderful ingenuity a fugue on a hymn based on the French chorale, Ainsi que la Biche Rée, submitted by Dr. Pffatteicher a moment before.

In response to the great applause, Marcel Dupré rendered two encores, The Flight of the Bumblebee by Rimsky-Korsakov, and Finale by Dupré himself.

Dr. Pffatteicher Writes On Marcel Dupré Concert

Mendelssohn gave occasion for interesting registration, though, of course, it raises the perennial question as to the desirability of organ transcriptions, at any rate where good orchestras may be heard.

The Fantasy on "Ad nos ad salutarem undam" by Liszt has been heard on numerous occasions, having been played by Germani and the organist loci.

We gave Dupré the French Choral "Ainsi que la Biche rée" as a subject for improvisation. Again M. Dupré astounded his public by his versatility in this field, especially as revealed in the concluding fugue. There were two encores—alas! the "Bumble Bee" by Rimsky-Korsakov, and an interesting Finale by Dupré.

After the recital, when asked for a few additional choral-preludes,

M. Dupré said: "It has become a tradition at Andover: I do it nowhere else," whereupon he again seated himself at the organ, and played for those who had tarried, with lowered lights, five Choral-Preludes.

Concerning the organ M. Dupré said before going over to the chapel: "I have heard much of it from my colleagues in Paris." After playing on it he repeatedly said: "Superb! Superb!" With such words from Dupré of the Conservatory, from Vierne of Notre Dame, and Ramin of St. Thomas, Leipzig, Andover may well feel proud of its organ!

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BREAK RECORDS IN THE AIR!

HE FLEW AROUND THE WORLD ALONE! Willey Post climbs out of the Winnie Mae at Floyd Bennett Field as the whole world applauds his skill and marvelous physical endurance. "Smoking Camels as I have for so long," says Post, "I never worry about healthy nerves."

FLYING EIGHT DAYS AND NIGHTS without a stop, Frances Marsalis and Louise Thaden set the world's endurance flight record for women. Miss Thaden says, "For some years I've smoked Camels. They taste better." Also a Camel fan, Miss Marsalis says, "I've never changed because I can't afford to take chances with my nerves."

RACING ACROSS AMERICA in 10 hours and 5½ minutes, Col. Roscoe Turner recently added a new West-East transcontinental speed record to the East-West record he won earlier this year. "Like most pilots I smoke a lot," says Col. Turner. "I smoke Camels for the sake of healthy nerves, and I enjoy them more."

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Men and women who are famous for their brilliant flying agree about smoking and healthy nerves. "I never worry about healthy nerves," they say, "because I smoke Camels."

They cannot afford to make a mistake in choosing their cigarette. They have to know. And it is more fun to know, because of the greater smoking pleasure they find in Camels. Camels are milder... better in taste. They leave no "cigaretty" aftertaste.

bor!), and a steamer or two. We had to change our destination right at the end. We nearly came to grief on the last night. . . . Other things occurred that surely were 'eventful'

And again he says: "And through the whole of the long voyage, oppressed by heavy wind, so weighed down by the maddened sea that she could scarcely stay afloat, shortened down until but a rag or two was all she could show to the wind, dallying in tropic calm, driven out of her course hundreds of miles by unfriendly winds, the lovely old ship responded to all that was asked of her; she came through. She brought us to port. There had been occasions when we thought she could not do it, especially when she was assailed by the serious factor of that leak. -But she did not break faith. Unlit, running before a Cape Horn sea in an ocean shrouded by fog, littered with ice, haunted by the wraiths of a thousand of her sister ships which had sailed that way and never come in from the sea again, to any port—she ran on. Lovely old ship!"

Mr. Villiers's lecture, "By Way of Cape Horn", is more than the story of a single voyage of one ship. It is an authentic portrayal of the glory of sail with all the beauty and romance, hardship and grief, toil and gaiety that has ever made these ships so appealing to sailor and landsman alike.

The drawings of Bernard Kariol are another group which appeal to your reviewer in quite a different way. In his work we find interest in the quality of the drawing, the technique, rather than the subject matter. His "Miss B. N." has a simplicity and solidity which give it a distinction far above the general run of figure drawings. On the same wall, we find an exceptionally rich landscape drawing by Adolph Dehn, which is almost oriental in its simple, effective arrangement.

Would you bid game
 on this hand?

No one bid four spades

Another tournament hand. All contestants made Four Spades. All stopped the bidding at Three Spades. Had they known Seven-Eleven, all would have bid Four Spades.

The holder of the hand shown would open the bidding with One Spade; his partner (holding Spades, Q-6-5-2, Hearts, A-8-5, Diamonds, A-7-6-5, Clubs, 7-4) would respond with Two Spades; the opening bidder would bid Three Spades and the partner Four Spades; both using the simple but accurate Count of Seven-Eleven.

HELPS REACH SLAMS
 Whatever system you play, Seven-Eleven will improve your bidding—help you reach slams when you hold them.
 Seven-Eleven can be mastered in an evening and once learned is easily remembered.
