MARGARET WIESSMAN, N. R. A. COUNCIL MEMBER, WILL LECTURE SUNDAY

Industrial Authority To Come
Here Under Auspices
Of S. Of I.

CHILD LABOR INVESTIGATOR

Prominent Student Of Massachusetts
Industrial Conditions, Secretary
Of Consumers' League

Miss Margaret Wiessman, a member of the Massachusetts Council of the N. R. A., will speak Sunday night at Peabody House under the auspices of the Society of Inquiry. She probably will speak on the things in our industrial system which demoralize the individual and society as a whole, and how the N. R. A. has affected these conditions.

For the past few years Miss Wiessman has been secretary of the Consumers' League, and in this capacity has been making studies and investigations of industrial conditions in Massachusetts, especially those concerning child labor and employment of women.

As a member of the Massachusetts executive council of the N. R. A., she has been assisting in working out codes for the Massachusetts industries.

INTERESTING RELICS ON VIEW IN LIBRARY

METALLIC SPECIMENS
ALSO ON EXHIBITION

Paul Shirley '34 has on exhibit in the library several cases of relics which he has found in the Bad Lands of South Dakota. All the items are well arranged, and each has a card giving detailed information about the exhibit in question.

On the top shelf of the case to the left are several samples of petrified wood, some highly colored, others completely black. There are also some samples of rock formations in Yellowstone Park, and a number of stalactites, the deposit that is formed when water drips from the ceiling of a cave for a long time. On the next shelf is a petrified turtle shell, some samples of porous volcanic rock, and chunks of gold bearing ores. One amazing specimen is said to contain traces of all metallic elements except radium. This remarkable piece looks like grayish coal with minute diamonds studded over it. On the bottom shelf are many types of sulphur and turquoise crystals, and some fragments of Indian pottery.

In the case to the right are many

FRENCH MOVIE "COLOMBA" ATTRACTS LARGE CROWD

Mr. Hagenbuckle Expresses Enthusiasm In Short
Phillipian Interview

In a short interview with Mr. Hagenbuckle yesterday concerning Colomba, he expressed himself as follows:

"The success of the French movie Colomba was evidenced by a full attendance and many expressions of interest and appreciation. For those who had travelled abroad, the preliminary scenes of Normandy and Brittany were a source of pleasant recollection in spite of the frequent unintelligibility of the heavily bearded spokesman in fisherman's garb. The contrast between the American and European film technique was immediately recognized in Colomba. Hollywood demands action to satisfy its American audience. The European, however, prefers to take his movies as he does his life, leisurely, studiously, with detailed attention to

REV. SIDNEY LOVETT

REV. SIDNEY LOVETT TO PREACH SUNDAY

Studied At Yale University
And Union Seminary;
Chaplain Of Yale

PROMINENT IN Y. M. C. A.
AND STUDENT WORK

Rev. Sidney Lovett, Chaplain of Yale University, will be the chapel speaker tomorrow. Mr. Lovett is by no means a stranger at Andover, having preached here last year. For many years he has been interested in student work, and at the present time he is working with the Yale Y. M. C. A. at Dwight Hall.

He was graduated from Yale in the class of 1913 and received his theological training at Union Seminary. Upon finishing this work, Mr. Lovett became pastor of the Mt. Vernon Church in Boston. In 1927-28 he spent a year's leave of absence in study at Oxford University. He was appointed Chaplain of Yale in 1932 to succeed Rev. Elmore McKee.

BLUE FACES MILTON ON MAT IN GYM TODAY

Line-up Shows Three Changes,
As Result Of Injuries
And Tryouts

The second meet of the wrestling team will take place this afternoon at three o'clock against Milton Academy in the gym. The Andover line-up has three changes. In the 118-lb. class Borough will fight in place of Haverfield, and in the 145-lb. class Gosline will take Captain Stevens's place. These changes are both because of injuries. The third change is a result of Wednesday's tryouts—in the 165-lb. class Woods defeated Porter. It was also in these tryouts that Gosline defeated Shirley and thus temporarily earned Stevens's position. On Thursday there were other tryouts, but all the other men succeeded in keeping their regular places on the team. In the 125-lb. class, however, Lederer's place was almost captured by Spencer in an overtime period which resulted in a second draw

MR. WATT DESCRIBES SUMMER IN GERMANY AT FRIDAY LECTURE

Two Andover Men, Underwent

"I am afraid that the attitude toward Germany in this country has been greatly affected by newspaper stories. Indeed, the power of propaganda is so great that newspapers can make their readers believe almost anything. One of the reasons, therefore, that this small trip was organized was to show Germany in its true colors. Other reasons were to learn German and to have a good time. The trip this year, the second of its kind, did much more good than its predecessor, as it came at a time when relations with Germany were more or less strained."

These were the first few words given by Mr. Donald Watt in his lecture last Friday night. The meeting was held in Morse Hall, and was attended by a sizable crowd.

"In a trip of this kind," Mr. Watt went on, "one gets familiar with the real Germany, and not just the thin veneer that is prepared especially for wealthy foreigners. We lived in small hotels, with a bed costing six to eight cents a

BLUE UPHOLDS RECORD BY DEFEATING LOWELL

Andover Quintet Practically
Doubles Visitors' Tallies
With 35-18 Score

TEAM MEETS CRIMSON
AT CAMBRIDGE TODAY

Andover won its second basketball game of the season on Wednesday with the team triumphing over Lowell High by the score of 35 to 18. Tucker and C. Kellogg were the stars of the game, accounting for 19 points between them.

Although Lowell had a strong defense, the Blue hoopers ran up a 17 to 6 lead during the first half. In the second half Andover continued its high scoring and collected 18 more points, while holding Lowell to 12 points.

The Blue team had regained its shooting eye in this game and caged baskets from all angles. The scoring of C. Kellogg and Tucker alone would have been sufficient to defeat the Lowell quintet. E. Kellogg played his usual fine floor game, and as a whole the team showed a great improvement over last week.

Andover meets the Harvard '37 team at Cambridge today. Due to Andover was defeated in its third hockey game of the season Wednesday by the Belmont Hill sextet, 5-2, at the Belmont Hill rink. Scoring both of Andover's goals, Shean made the best performance of the day for the Blue. He shot the first goal on assists from Davis and Knowles and tallied the last on with the help of Gardner. TANKSTERS TO MEET GARDNER HIGH SCHOOL

Visitors Have Powerful Team;
Winning Championship
Last Year

The second swimming meet of the season will take place this afternoon with Gardner High School. Last year, the Gardner team won the schoolboy championship; however, this winter, although they have a very excellent diving squad, the visiting swimmers are not exceptional.

The line-up will be approximately the same as last week with a few exceptions. Bowers is in the infirmary. In his absence either Kipluth or DeWitt will swim. Phillips will take the place of Nye in the breaststroke, and Hook will dive in place of Burns.

There will also be a second team meet with Gardner. This will be the first time for many of the swimmers to compete in a meet. Coach Lake feels confident that

MOVIE PRE-VIEW

Tonight's movie is a humorous skit called Tillie and Gus. Alison Skipworth, as Tillie, is the proprietress of a run-down gambling house; W. C. Fields is Gus, a down-and-out Alaskan gambler. This pair are in the card-sharp game and no opposing player stands a chance against them. The height of hilarity is reached in a mad steamboat race between the ram-shackle Fairy Queen, owned by Tillie's niece (Jacqueline Wells), and the Keystone, a rival ship. The two do everything they can to favor the chances of the Fairy Queen. Before the race, Gus even puts on a diving suit in order to bore holes in the Keystone's hull. When wood runs out during the race he stokes the furnace with fire-crackers, roman candles, and rockets, which happen to be part of the cargo. The picture, a crazy farce, reminds one of Tugboat Annie.

NIKOLAI ORLOFF, FAMED IN MUSICAL CIRCLES, TO PLAY HERE JANUARY 30

Will Present Popular Program
Chosen For Its Appeal
To Students

MUSIC BY SCHUBERT, LISZT

Also Compositions By Rachmaninoff, Chopin, And Debussy To Be Rendered

Nikolai Orloff, the young Russian pianist who is playing in George Washington Hall on Tuesday evening, January 30th, is not as yet well known to Andover audiences. His unassuming avoidance of anything that smacks of the press-agent has confined his fame to musical circles, but there his reputation is of the highest. He possesses the virtuoso technique which is part of the stock in trade of every concert pianist today, and much more; his concerts are less an exhibition of skill than a sympathetic exposition of music. As will be seen from his program, Orloff is popular in the best sense of the word; it has been chosen particularly for its appeal to student audiences. Music by Schubert, Liszt, Chopin, Rachmaninoff, and Debussy is included, and the program closes with a concert arrangement of The Blue Danube which is always a favorite.

SECOND PHILO DEBATE HELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Reigeluth, Griffin, And Boswell
Declared Winners In Debate
On Military Training

NEGATIVE UPHELD BY VICTORIOUS TEAM

Before an audience of approximately twenty students a team composed of Griffin, Boswell, and Reigeluth was pronounced winner over Coursen, Sargent, and Chapin in the second debate of the Philo season. The subject was, "Resolved: that military training should be compulsory in public schools." The winners upholding the negative. Mr. Higgins, who acted as judge, supplemented the six four-minute speeches and two five-minute rebuttals with a critical analysis of each.

Reigeluth, speaking first, sounded the keynote for the negative, mentioning some of the chief arguments of his team. Among these and those later brought out were: parents and children are definitely opposed to military training; it would cost too much; it would take too much time; it would promote militarism; and the school curriculum is too overburdened already. The affirmative laid particular stress on the building of a reserve

J. V. TRACK TEAM MEETS TABOR TODAY

First Second-Team Meet Of Season
To Take Place At 3 O'clock
With Marion School

The Andover Junior Varsity track team will meet Tabor Academy of Marion, Massachusetts, at 3 o'clock today. Only those who are not first or second place men will participate for Andover in this meet which is the first ever held with Tabor and the first second team meet of the season.

The tentative line-up includes the following names—1000-yard run: Watson, Pierce, Childs, Fox, Hugo, and Hammer; 600-yard run: Bovard, Lynde, and Hubbard; 300-yard run (undecided); 40-yard dash: D. R. Knapp, Olds, Kibrick, Brownell, and MacNutt; hurdles: Day and Wilhelm. Other places are as yet undecided.

Mr. Heely Discusses Interesting Customs Of Oxford With Phillipian Reporters

"Oxford college life is not so intellectual as is commonly imagined. There are a great many students who come not so much to learn as to have a good time and make friends, or just because it is 'the thing to do.'" Thus spoke Mr. Heely, noted instructor of English at Phillips Academy, when asked to give a few impressions of the post graduate year he had spent at Oxford. "A distinction is made, however, between those who come to enjoy themselves and those who go to really learn. When the former graduate, they receive an ordinary degree, but the latter are awarded an 'honors' degree. An 'honors' degree means a great deal more in England than high standing in this country; the fortunate person who holds one of these degrees has little trouble finding employment."

"The method of teaching at Oxford," continued Mr. Heely, "is very different from that in this country. To be sure, there are many lectures, but they are not compulsory, and no examination is given on what is said. Instead, each student has a tutor, with whom he discusses his studies in a personal manner. Most of the learning is gotten from reading and original research. There is a great deal of specialization, so that after four years of intensive study one is pretty much of an authority on that subject."

"An English University," he went on, "does not pretend to be democratic. The sons of noble-

Results

Finally, THE PHILLIPIAN may pat itself on the back and say that at least one of its suggestions set forth in the editorial column has been adopted. Early in the fall term an editorial appeared urging that more privileges be granted to the Honor Roll students. Following this, the editors received letters from parents urging that the matter be discussed more fully. Accordingly, the headmaster and the Senior Council were approached, and, as a result, the faculty is now considering the matter. The faculty committee was wise to go to the Honor Roll students themselves and to ask them what privileges they would desire as Honor Roll students.

It is our hope that the faculty will, after due considerations, grant Honor Roll students as many privileges as possible in recognition of their fine work.

Outside Debates

The Philo season has started auspiciously with its schedule of intra-school debates. THE PHILLIPIAN suggests that more debates be held with other preparatory schools near Andover. In previous years successful debates have been held with Exeter and with one or two other schools. It seems advisable to broaden the schedule in the interests of Philo itself and in the interest of better relationships with other preparatory schools.

Perhaps, as has already been suggested in THE PHILLIPIAN, a debate might be held between Abbot and Andover on the question of co-operation. As Andover affairs have already been broadcast on the radio this year, it might be possible to broadcast an Andover-Exeter debate.

A certain good-looking fellow of this school seems to have a very good opinion of himself as a lady-killer. "Darling, will you come to a prom," was the opening sentence of the passionate appeal which he sent to a girl he had not seen for two years in the form of a telegram, while a group of friends gave advice. The reply will probably be, "Darling, I am coming."

Fellows returning to their dormitories Thursday evening were treated to an unusual display. Through the windows of one of the buildings they could see members of the faculty having a few moments relaxation. They were tripping about the floor in what seemed to be a combination between a Virginia Reel and a Highland Fling.

Lucrezia Borgia's ghost is urgently requested to stay away from the Beanery now that the strange custom of removing the milk-bottle tops has been adopted. Also on the same line it is very interesting to watch the waiters, who formerly came into the dining room at a rapid trot, banking a tray of bottles on the curves, now come walking in very sedately and with great care.

ALUMNI COLUMN

Andover men at Harvard have received a letter from G. G. Benedict, assistant registrar, asking for a report on what they have been doing in college. His message follows:

"Dear P. A. Alumnus:
The School would like very much to know what you have been up to at college. To this end won't you be good enough to fill out the attached card and drop it in the nearest mail box?

If there is not enough room on it for your many activities and honors, won't you write a letter? Why not write a letter anyhow and blow off accumulated steam? If necessary, abbreviate on the card: I will do my best to interpret your symbols.

Even if you're not the biggest and busiest man in your class, please do send back the card that our files may be as complete as possible. Hoping for your co-operation, which I shall appreciate very much,

Yours sincerely,

G. G. Benedict,

Ass't. Registrar."

An overwhelming sense of the futility of it all has this column in its crib at this writing. This column has spent most of its time the last two years struggling to publicize the activities of Andover men at Harvard, and now the Andover men at Harvard en masse get a letter from Mr. G. G. Benedict wanting to know what the Andover men have been doing at Harvard. Yes, sir, it's pretty discouraging. Well, one thing. The Andover men at Harvard have gone in for Communism in a big way. Just to prove this, they have decided to reply to Mr. Benedict's query en masse, in one big communal letter, leaving the matter of what they have been doing up to this column for interpretation. The whole thing is more or less self-explanatory. The boys are so busy doing things that they haven't got time to write, and they are so groggy from doing what they have been doing that they don't remember what they have done.

Mr. Benedict is a Harvard man, and he knows what boys do at Harvard. As a matter of fact, it is a lot easier and sounds a lot better to tell what the boys have not been doing at Harvard. You write down what they have not been doing, then subtract that from Harvard, or something, and the result, or as it is sometimes known, the remainder, is what the Andover boys have been doing at Harvard. This sounds like adding peaches to apples, but that's what they are doing and getting away with at Washington, and what is good enough for Washington is bad enough for the rest of the country.

In the first place, no Andover men at Harvard, as far as this department can find out, have joined the Turnwaechter. The Turnwaechter are a group of Harvard boys that get together Wednesday evenings in the Lowell House tower and sing German songs. That ought to be plain enough. Secondly, no Andover men at Harvard since we got here have been on the football team, with the single exception of Frank Crane '30. Since it seemed to be too big a job even for him to bolster up the football team to the point of good performance, perhaps it's just as well that the P. A. men have given up the job. Then, so far, no Andover men have made the hockey team. So far, no Andover men at Harvard have married chorus girls, or former chorus girls, as they say, which is more than we can say for one or two graduates of other prep schools—the better prep schools. So far, one or two Andover men at Harvard have not even stayed at Harvard, a course of action which some of the men at Harvard think has something to be said for it. So far, Andover men at Harvard have made a very good record at not being elected to class officerships, although there have been one or two slips, where someone counted the ballots wrong, or maybe right, by mistake, and an Andover man found himself saddled with a class officership: as a whole, though, Mr. Chairman, we think it can be said without fear of successful contra-

GAULS AND ROMANS SWIMMING WINNERS

Second Club Meets Of Season Leave
All Teams Equal With One
Loss And One Win

The second club swimming meet of the year took place yesterday. There was a complete turn-around among the teams as the Gauls, losers in last week's competition, beat the Greeks 32-16, and the Romans, also on the low end a week ago, edged out the Saxons 25-24. The scores of the clubs are now all the same, and the next meet will really determine their relative strength.

In the Saxon-Roman competition the former won the breaststroke, the 50-yard free style, and the relay, while the latter took the 25-yard free style, the backstroke and the dive. The other meet, as shown by the score, was not nearly as close. The Gauls ran away with the show by taking four of the six first and second places, allowing the Greeks only the dive and the 50-yard breaststroke for a score of sixteen points.

diction that a pretty good target has been established for future generations to aim at.

Then there is the matter of the use of English, which the proposition at the end of the last sentence brought to mind. At Harvard, as Mr. Benedict knows, there is a so-called committee on the Use of English, which calls to account boys who forget that one of the greatest—yes, I think I may say the greatest book in the English language is Herriek and Damon (not to be confused with Damon and Pythias, the latter team having left vaudeville temporarily to make a few shorts in Hollywood). Anyway in this line, the Andover men at Harvard have set a wonderful record. Nearly all of them have not been called up before the committee. The exceptions, which mar this record are two or three individuals who consistently get up so late in the mornings that they find all the infinitives for the day have been sold by the early risers and there are none left for them to do.

Women's Republican Club Addressed By Dr. Fuess

Headmaster Claude M. Fuess was the guest of honor at a dinner tendered him Wednesday night by the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts. Following the dinner Dr. Fuess, speaking on "Youth and Its Relation to Government," urged the need of a greater emphasis on American history and contemporary government in the schools. If careers in politics and public life are to have their proper appeal for young men of education and ability seeking a choice of a vocation.

According to Dr. Fuess, parents also have their responsibility of inculcating a keen interest in government and a wholesome ideal of public service in the minds of youth.

"The time has come," Dr. Fuess said, "when, if we are going to bring these young men of promise into the Republican fold, we've got to show them a program, and we've got to show them leaders with a program and leaders with an idealism in their programs."

GAULS DEFEAT GREEKS; ROMANS BEAT SAXONS

First Basketball Games Show
All Teams Lacking
In Practice

The Gauls defeated the Greeks 16-9, and the Romans vanquished the Saxons 14-6, in last Wednesday's club basketball games. Both games were rather rough, but fast and interesting to watch. All teams showed lack of practice as these were the first games of the season. Among the more promising candidates were Shartenberg of the Gauls, Haviland of the Greeks, Robertson and Miller for the Romans, and Sharretts for the Saxons. Mr. Sanborn and Mr. Boyle were referees. The next club games will be played this coming Wednesday.

DEADLINE FEB. 1ST

Draper Prize Speaking Contest Set
For March 13; Robinson Debate
In Spring Term

The Means Essay competition will be closed to contestants on February 1. The subjects for these themes have been posted in the Reference Room of the library, and the librarians will gladly help any student look for information on his chosen topic. These themes may be left at the library. The declamations will take place February 27. Three prizes are awarded: first, twenty-five dollars; second, fifteen dollars; third, ten dollars.

The Draper Prize Speaking contest will be held Tuesday evening, March 13th, at George Washington Hall. Anybody in the entire school may participate in this contest. Mr. Higgins will coach those wishing to participate in the competition. There will be two prizes awarded: thirty dollars for first place, and twenty dollars for second place.

Competition for the Robinson Prize Debate is open only to a Philo team which has debated against Exeter or against another Philo team. The date of the debate has not yet been decided upon, but it will be sometime during the spring term. Sixty dollars will be given to the winning team.

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY EXHIBIT AT GALLERY

World Prominent Characters Of Old England On View In Present Showing

CONTAINS PAINTINGS OF LEADING ARTISTS

Portraits of actors, famous nobility, and other figures of the century make up the majority of the pictures now being shown at the Addison Gallery, in the exhibit, "English Portraits and Landscapes of the Eighteenth Century." While looking around at these portraits, one sees such notables as Lady Hamilton, George IV, and Benjamin West. Nearly all the paintings are quite well known, and, while in some cases not the best example of the artist's work, as in the Gilbert Stuart's, "Colonel Sir Edward Loftus," and George Romney's "Lady Hamilton," they are in general quite interesting and well done. Perhaps the best, from a connoisseur's point of view, is a portrait of Charles Dibdin by John Opie, or perhaps that of the Countess of Mexborough, by the Rev. M. W. Peters. Sr Joshua Reynolds's offering, a portrait of "Mrs. Yates," is attractive and yet nothing outstanding. William Owen's "Harvest Queen" is, as a whole, probably the most appealing to the casual observer. The artist has managed, in this portrayal of a country girl, to give a very lifelike appearance to the subject.

The landscapes, of which there are only five, are all good. In every case they are actual or imaginary scenes in England except in one instance, the "Italian Lake" of Richard Wilson. The most prominent artist of this group is doubtless Constable, who, however, is represented only by a small yet handsome view of Salisbury Cathedral. The largest in this group is a fine country scene, "Denham Church, W. Uxbridge," by Frederick W. Watts. This is a very pleasing picture and a good example of the school of which Watts was a member. George Morlan, noted mostly for his story telling pictures, has a good example of this type in the exhibit, titled "The Village Pump."

All in all, the showing is well worth seeing and will prove most interesting, especially to the English History students and Senior English students who are studying the same period now, or who will be in the near future. Mr. Sawyer has arranged to have the exhibit at this time with this fact in mind, and accordingly those who have not yet taken advantage of this opportunity still have some time in which to do so.

Arthur Murray Interviewed On "Prep-School Dancing"

"What is slightly referred to as 'this prep school dancing' is perfectly correct," declared Arthur Murray, one of America's most successful dancing instructors. "The boys like it and, unless they're held in awkward positions, the girls like it too. I appreciate a fellow who really dances for the fun of it, and I think he's the only one who really dances well." The instructor paused, then gave a Princeton Newspaper Association representative his opinion as to who are the best dancers.

"They dance easily and gracefully with an attractive swing to their shoulders and they look as if they were enjoying themselves," Mr. Murray explained as he turned on the radio and gave a demonstration of what he meant.

Still concentrating on the subject of enjoying one's dancing, Mr. Murray added, "Sometimes after I've finished a dance one of the teachers here will tell me that my form was bad, but that doesn't matter if I've enjoyed the dance myself and if my partner has. I like to see a fellow tearing up and down the floor having a good time. Showing off? Not at all. The ones who do the 1890 stuff for the benefit of the audience are showing off." Some latent modesty prevents Mr. Murray from approving of cheek-to-cheek dancing, but he does approve of forehead-to-forehead dancing which, he claims, leads to better balance.

Discussing the subject of athletes as dancers, Mr. Murray expressed the opinion that he had "never seen a football player who had played for more than three or four years dance at all well. They're awkward, muscle bound and always look stiff. Boxers and swimmers, yes; but not football players."

In response to a question concerning his favorite orchestras and songs, Mr. Murray named Meyer Davis's own band and Guy Lombardo's orchestra, while Enrique Madriguera is his favorite tango leader. As an all-time jazz selection, Mr. Murray prefers the "St. Louis Blues," and he considers "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking" one of the best modern hits.

Communication

To the Editor of THE PHILLIPIAN:

The school meetings in the Wednesday morning chapel have now become somewhat of a joke. The fellows enter the chapel with the pleasant anticipation of five minutes of ease, and they usually find something at which to laugh. This condition is not entirely the fault of the students, because often there is not much necessity for a meeting. It would be a great mistake to abolish the assembly entirely, however, because it serves a real purpose. Both the Senior Council and the student body have a chance to talk over different matters without the restraining presence of the faculty. So far, however, the time set aside for these meetings has been only partially utilized. There seem to be a number of solutions to the problem. The first and most obvious one would be to have the school meetings occur once every two or perhaps even three weeks. This would mean that all the time of every meeting would be used. Another solution, in line with what Mr. Harding said last Wednesday concerning singing in Saturday chapel, would be this: combine the music with the school meeting, using up as much time as necessary for business and devoting the remainder of the chapel period to singing. Still another solution would be to alternate with a school meeting one week and singing the next. These are three possible solutions to the problem.

Communication

To the Editor of THE PHILLIPIAN:

Andover students do not truly give Adolph Hitler a "square deal." He is often defended at the dormitory "bull sessions," but the majority of the fellows seem to think that he is trying to destroy all the established civilizations in the world. One should consider the problems that faced the young Germans of the 1920's. A career in the army was impossible, because Germany was permitted to accept only one hundred thousand of the several million applicants for twelve years of military service; the great industries of the Sarre and the Ruhr were in the hands of the French, or being run on "starvation" wages by German receivers, making a business career both pointless and unprofitable; and a professional career was also fruitless, because the people could not afford to employ doctors and lawyers when almost all their income was being paid in taxes. These young Germans had only one alternative: they were forced to become day laborers, which didn't appeal to them any more than it would to an Andover student.

Adolph Hitler was one of these young Germans; he knew all the hardships that these boys went through and he determined to figure out a way to free Germany from their imperialistic neighbors, the French. He studied the situation and realized that a weak nation never receives any concessions from a jealous neighbor, and therefore he naturally concluded that the only hope of the Germans was the "sword." Hitler, knowing that a nation can be raised to the greatest height of patriotism by a crusade, decided that the one logical crusade was against an unprotected race and therefore he started his attacks on the Jews.

This Anti-Semitic party spread like wildfire, because it was the only German party which gave any hope to the "Lost Generation." Their attempts to build a great army are justified, as it is the only way that they can stop the greedy depredations of the French. It is not a nation which is trying to destroy all established civilizations; it is only a nation which is trying to emancipate itself by the only possible means. Hitler is a young man of Germany who is trying to help his nation find its place in the sun once more; he is not, as many seem to think, one of the Apocalyptic horsemen.

American students should always consider the German side of the Hitlerite situation before they condemn the man who is the leader of the German people in their exit from the mediaeval Germany of the Junkers into a new and democratic Germany.

SKIERS FORM CLUB; PROFIT BY WEATHER

Club Holds First Meet With Brooks School; Prospect
For Outing Club

A group of eight men including Tellington, Flanders, D. Swihart, G. Thompson, Cleveland, Mullin, and J. Wallace have taken advantage of the conditions near Andover and formed a Ski Club. The members of the club have secured permission to go to North Andover in a bus any time there is good snow and ski on the hills there. On Wednesday last the club held a ski meet with Brooks School. They had intended to do some jumping, but the wind had blown most of the snow off the slide, so the meet was restricted to down hill racing. The club hopes to have competition with some of the nearby boarding schools like Groton, St. Mark's, and Noble and Greenough, where skiing is already a recognized winter sport. Anyone who can do a christiana, a telemark, and a gelandesprung and who has reasonable proficiency in running on skis is eligible for membership in this club. There are a number of good books on the art of skiing in the library where beginners can learn the fundamentals. Poms Pond, Prospect Hill, and the Bird Sanctuary are three good places to practice what has been learned. If there is enough interest shown, a professional will be obtained to teach the skiers. So much enthusiasm has already become apparent that an outing club may be formed a little later on. This club would include as its activities mountain climbing, canoeing, trail-blazing, hiking, and all other forms of outdoor camping activities in the spring and fall, and skiing and skating in the winter. Probably a trip will be made to New Hampshire on the snow train. Any information regarding this club may be obtained from either Mr. Hagenbuckle or Mr. Sanborn.

LIBRARY NEWS

The last volume of the U. S. Catalog, or Cumulative Book Index, listed all the books in print in the United States, January 1, 1928. Since then it has been necessary to hunt in the successive annual and monthly issues for the more recent books. Now the H. W. Wilson Company has brought out a supplement, covering the years from 1928 to the end of 1932. The editors have widened the scope of the work to include not only books published in the United States but all books published in the world in the English language. This means that there is now accessible an easy source of information about English publications which have hitherto been hard to find. It must be remembered, however, that in this volume are only books that have appeared between 1928 and 1933. For later books one must use the pamphlets which appear once a month. All these publications are kept in the Cataloguing Room.

In Vera Brittain's Testament of Youth the author gives a most intimate account of her childhood, of the aspirations of her adolescent years, of her hospital service, of the death of her fiancé. She makes no attempt to comprehend the effect of the war upon those already mature when the "mass murder" began, but she reveals the details of her life as typical of the way the war affected the young men and women of the countries engaged in the conflict.

Brazilian Adventure, by Peter Fleming, is a humorously written story of how a small group of young men travelled through the Brazilian Jungle to find some trace of Col. P. H. Fawcett's expedition, of which, at the time they began their adventure, nothing had been heard for ten years. The book differs from other books of this type in the fact that it is, as the author says, "absolutely truthful" and that it has a more human side.

Paul Shirley, '34, is arranging this week some geological material which he collected during a trip this summer to the National Parks and the Badlands of the Dakotas. This is the first of a series of exhibitions of student interests which the library is planning to display during the winter term. Anyone who has a coin or stamp collection, first editions of books, ship models, gliders, anything concerned with his special hobby, which he would like to show, is urged to leave his name at the desk, and plans can then be made in regard to the time of the exhibition and the amount of space required for each collection.

FENCERS ANTICIPATE DIFFICULT SCHEDULES

Team Of Seven To Oppose Loomis,
Harvard, M.I.T. Freshmen, And
Governor Dummer

The fencing team is working mainly on attack and is now equipped with new lunging targets which should make a big difference in the accuracy, speed, and control of the team. Seven men, Dimock, Guerin, C. Jones, Lindsay, W. Morgan, Randell and L. Wickwire are on the varsity squad.

Tryouts for the dueling sword team are now under way with Dimock, Guerin, W. Morgan and Lindsay competing for the positions. The dueling sword team was added to the regular foils team three years ago at the request of some of the other schools.

Manager Fox is working on a schedule which is expected to include the Harvard Freshmen, Loomis, Governor Dummer Academy, the Providence Y. M. C. A. Seconds, the Providence High School and the M. I. T. Freshmen.

Bookstore Closes Co-op;
Discounts Still Allowed

The Co-operative Branch of the Andover Bookstore has been removed from the Hill, since the business done there by the students was not enough to make its maintenance justifiable. Mr. Cole of the Andover Bookstore stated that the wages of the students employed at the branch exceeded the amount received there. The same discounts will be allowed at the store downtown as were allowed at the branch store. These discounts are: ten percent on all cash purchases, and five percent on charge purchases if the Bookstore bill is paid in full within fifteen days from the date. Bills are sent out about the first of each month.

The Co-operative Branch will be open again a few days after spring vacation. It will also be open the first week after school starts next fall. Whenever the Co-operative Branch is to be opened for several days after a vacation, it will be announced in THE PHILLIPIAN.

It is not idle talk to advise clothing purchases now. Raw materials, labor costs, in fact everything that goes into Suits and Coats will cost more in a very short time. For the sake of economy we offer this advice —BUY NOW—

Mr. Langrock has searched everywhere for cloths, new weaves, and new designs. We have assembled therefore a marvelous range, foreign and domestic, unsurpassed for beauty and color to choose from. Those who have viewed these materials express genuine admiration and approval.

Sam DeLuca Reveals That "Crew Cuts" Do Not Predominate Over Regular Haircuts

THE PHILLIPIAN has been fortunate enough to secure an interview from one who is able to observe Andover at his very fingertips, as it were. Sam DeLuca, barber-in-ordinary at the Inn, is genial and very modest. He was at first rather dubious about granting this interview; he cannot stand men who advertise themselves too much, and he wants it to be clearly understood that this is no advertisement of any kind.

Sam has been a barber for about twenty years, since the time when there were no barber colleges, which he holds in very low esteem. He learned to barber in a real shop, and the first shave he did, the interviewer was led to believe, was on a paying customer. It was a successful shave, too.

Sam has been in Andover for seven years, at the Inn for four, and during this time has found no fault with his surroundings. He knows of no other school better than Andover, and, contrary to some, thinks the boys as a whole are pretty nice.

It is Sam's experience that only about half the boys get a "crew cut"; strange as it may seem, this is fact. Some people still like to carry a lot of vegetation around with them, contrary as this may appear on the campus.

Sam's philosophy is that the best barber in the world can please only seventy-five percent of his customers. Though Sam does not place himself in this class, he agrees emphatically with the first person who said, "You can't please all of the people all of the time."

its showing in the last two games the Blue team has gained prestige and is rated at least on an equal with the Crimson hoopsters. This game will be Andover's first big test of the year, and a win over the Crimson will mean a lot. Since both teams have defeated the M. I. T. Frosh by almost the same scores, the feeling over today's game is keen.

RADIO CLUB ACQUIRES A NEW TRANSMITTER

S. Foster And Starks Install New Set; Victrola Connected On Stage To Screen Amplifiers

The Radio Club is operating over two new transmitters, great improvements over the old one. Both are of the duplex phone type; that is to say, conversation may be exchanged as over the telephone. With the old set the operator had to send his own message in code and then sign off the air to listen for an answer. One set, with a wave-length of five meters, is for sending and receiving within a radius of one hundred fifty miles, and the other one, with a hundred sixty meter wave-length, for longer distances.

The advantage of having two transmitters is that for close messages the blurred reception of the larger set is avoided by the use of a less powerful but clearer one.

S. W. Foster and J. P. Starks installed the new equipment. These men also arranged the hook-up that allows the school to hear a phonograph through the movie screen amplifiers before and after the performances.

night, and became acquainted with many of the natives. We traveled a good deal on bicycles, in boats, and even by foot, oftentimes camping along the way. And then, this sort of a trip is very inexpensive. The total cost for ten weeks abroad was only $400. The trip was considered a success by all members, and so we are going on another trip this summer, probably to France. Unfortunately, it will be somewhat more expensive this year, due to the depreciation of the dollar.

After this brief talk, Mr. Watt showed without further delay the movies taken of the trip. They were in color, and were excellent from the photographic standpoint as well as from that of personal enjoyment. The boat in which the party sailed docked at Hamburg, and after showing a few pictures of the famous zoo there and some picturesque buildings, the scene of action shifted to the countryside, showing the party bicycling, swimming, and hiking. Then ensued several scenes where the much famed Nazi brown shirts were drilling and practicing other military maneuvers. The next few shots showed the gallant expedition floating down the Danube in a folding boat, with gorgeous mountain scenery on all sides. Most of the food was carried along with them in watertight rubber bags and was eaten anywhere along the bank. One shot in particular showed several members drinking out of long bottles, the contents of which, Mr. Watt hastened to assure his audience, was only cold tea, adding that alcohol was much too tiring on a long trip. The final scenes were of the party climbing up a glacier, all roped together.

In conclusion, Mr. Watt urged everyone who possibly had a chance, to go abroad for a summer as soon as possible, as they might not have the chance again when older.

Mr. Heely Discusses Interesting Customs Of Oxford

men, dukes, and peers are all there, and they tend to be a rather snobbish lot. There are no fraternities as we know them, but there are exclusive drinking clubs whose members dine and drink together once or twice a week. There is much conventionality at Oxford, almost everything being determined by precedent. It is the custom to wear ragged and frayed black silk gowns to the lectures, and it has been carried to such an extreme that when a new gown is bought it is usually deliberately torn and soiled before wearing.

"Oxford has at times been criticized," resumed Mr. Heely, "because it is so removed from real life. There is a delightful, almost medieval, atmosphere about the place. One reason why the standards at English Universities are so high is that such a relatively small percentage of the total population attends. Whereas practically all those graduating from preparatory school in this country go to college, this is not true in England, as over half go out immediately to earn their living."

"What do you think about College Boards, Mr. Heely?" next asked the interviewer. "College Boards," he said, "once served a very useful purpose, setting a uniform standard for entering college, at the time when preparatory schools were vastly different from each other. But now all preparatory schools are more or less standardized, and the boards have outgrown their utility. I think the individual's previous school record, and his former headmaster's recommendation should count much more than grades on any examination. In my estimation, the new plan, whereby a senior planning to enter college takes examinations only in the subjects he is studying that year, is much fairer and easier. The grades are not divulged, so that a college may use its discretion in deciding whether to accept or refuse a man's entrance application. This plan also eliminates the bother of taking examinations every year."

In conclusion Mr. Heely stated, "Educational standards in this country have been improving steadily for the last ten years, and I have every reason to believe that they will continue to do so."

background, and with a keen appreciation for subtlety and the psychological development of a situation. For those who are familiar with the story and were aware of the slower tempo of presentation the excellent photography and the character portrayal were fully appreciated."

Preceding the play, the French club entertained at dinner in the Commons. Their guests included Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Blackmer, Mrs. Benedict, and Mrs. Hayes.

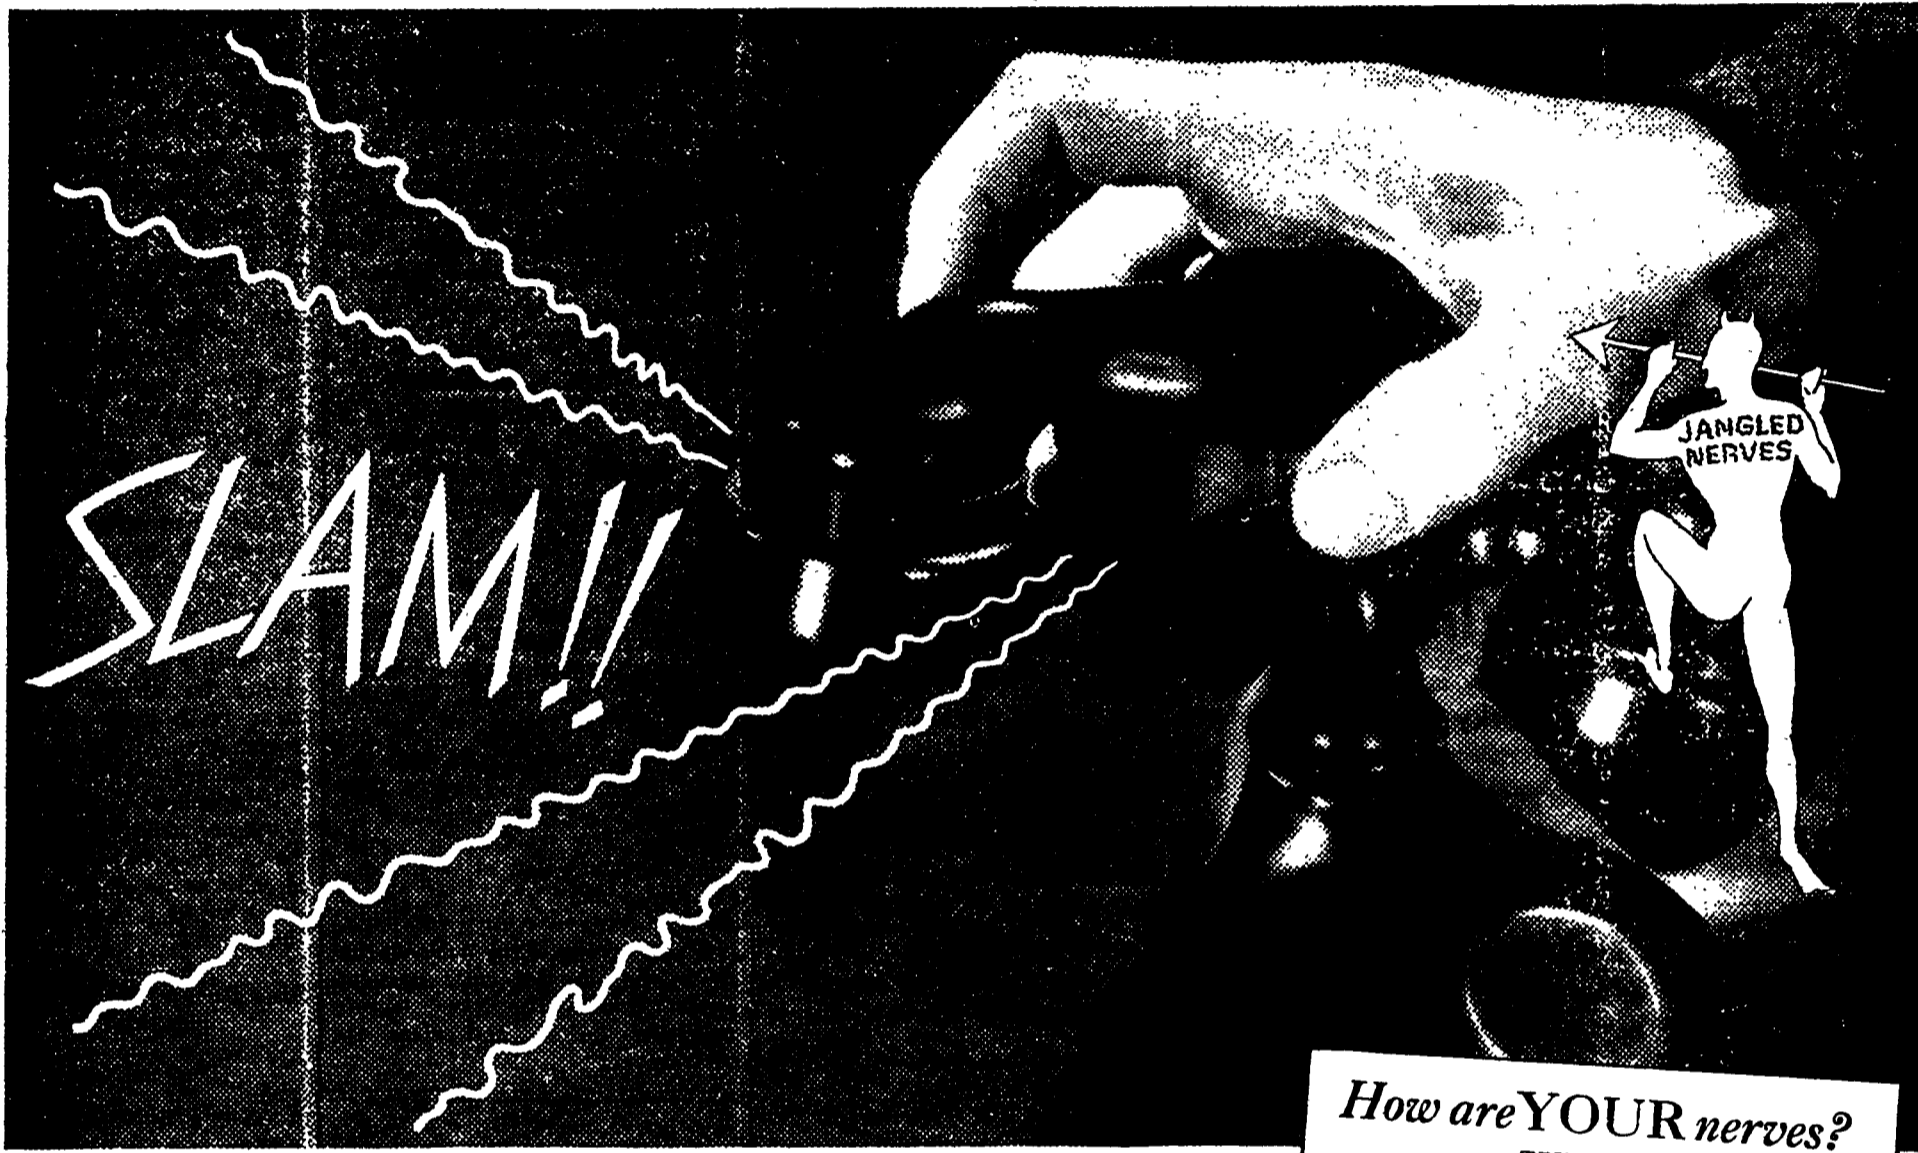

Mr. Hagenbuckle added that he considered the experiment a fine success and that possibly there will be more foreign talkies at Andover later in the term.

army for the nation's safety, quoting numerous current articles to prove their point. Reigeluth and Sargent handled the rebuttals, each seeking to tear down the other's arguments.

At the conclusion of these Mr. Higgins criticised the debate in general, bringing out the fact that the various speeches were not well connected and that the selection of important facts had not been good. He also made several suggestions concerning posture and debating in general. The decision was announced in favor of the negative chiefly on their superior presentation.
