NEW HAMPSHIRE FRESH DEFEATED BY ANDOVER 47-16 IN TRACK MEET

Donnelly Turns In Good Time In 300 As Blue Sweeps Event

INITIAL VICTORY OF YEAR

Watson Wins 1000 Without Horne In Thrilling Finish; Childs Third

The Blue trackmen scored their initial victory of the year 47 to 16 in a meet with the New Hampshire Freshmen Saturday afternoon at the Case Memorial Cage. The visitors gained but two first places, winning the 40-yard dash and the 600-yard run.

The 1000, the most spectacular event of the day, was won by Watson of Andover with Childs third. The race was distinguished by a thrilling finish in which Watson passed the New Hampshire runner, Irving, on the last turn to break the tape first; Childs too had to pass an opposing runner in the last lap to place.

Morse won the 600 for the Freshmen in the comparatively slow time of 1 min. 24 2-5 sec; Hinman and Healey came in second and third respectively. The race was characterized by crowding and pushing, and by a general shifting of positions in the last lap.

ANDOVER OUTING CLUB MEETS MONDAY EVENING

Schedule For Present Term And Future Plans Discussed

FLANDERS TO BE CAPTAIN WITH STEVENS MANAGER

An important meeting of the Andover Outing Club was held Monday night in Samuel Phillips Hall. Plans for the term were discussed, and the ski team's schedule was outlined. Robert Macartney Flanders of Lawrence was elected Captain of the team, with Robert Jacques Stevens of Larchmont, N. Y., manager.

Mr. Sanborn announced that all those out for skiing would be divided into two groups, an A and a B squad, according to their ability. The A squad will practice apart from the B squad and will represent the school in outside competition. Those on squad B, however, and for that matter anyone in the rest of the school, can get up to Squad A by performing well in the time trials to be held almost every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon.

In addition to this division into two squads, the whole group will be separated into six instruction classes. At least two A men will be in each class to help the

DEBATE TO BE HELD AT PEABODY HOUSE

Resolved: That Foreign Trade Is Harmful To Best Interests Of United States

Members of Philo and all others interested are urged to attend a debate in Peabody House tonight at 6:45. The subject will be, Resolved: that foreign trade in the aggregate is detrimental to the best interests of the United States. A Adams, Carey, and Twombly will take the affirmative while Harvey L. Murphy and R. P. Smith will uphold the negative. Mr. Higgins will judge and Reigeluth will preside.

This is the second debate of the winter term; others will be held every Wednesday evening in Peabody Union. All those wishing to debate should either form a team of three people and hand their names in any time at Bartlet 7, or if this is not convenient they should

ANDOVER HOCKEY TEAM DOWNS MIDDLESEX 5-3

Curtis, Davis, And Eames Do All Of The Scoring For Blue

P. A. PASSING IMPROVED

Second Period Almost Disastrous, Opponents Taking Three Goals In Succession

After losing a two-goal lead in the second period, the Andover hockey team came back in the third session to score three goals and defeat Middlesex School, 5-3. Throughout the game, even in the disastrous second period, Andover seemed to have the better team, and only hard luck and missed opportunities prevented the score from being more one-sided. The first forward line of Curtis, Davis, and Eames showed vast improvement since last Wednesday and accounted for all five goals.

When the first few minutes of the game produced no scoring, Coach Jackson ordered a five man attack which soon furnished results, Captain Davis taking a perfect pass from Curtis and driving the puck between the goalie's pads. With the Blue team continuing its aggressive policy, Davis scored again, this time on a pass from Gardner.

The Middlesex team came to life in the second period and by taking advantage of its opponent's defensive lapses managed to score three times on a very dazed Andover team.

This same team looked very different, however, when the third period began. Curtis tied up the

MEANS ESSAY CONTEST TO BE HELD IN FEB.

By Mr. Roger W. Higgins

During the winter and spring terms many opportunities for practice in public speaking, both formal and informal, are open to students interested in improving their speaking abilities. Furthermore, valuable money prizes are awarded in several of the contests, and the names and fame of prize-winners go down to posterity on the roster of previous "Prize Men" published in each year's program.

There are four formal speaking occasions held annually: the Means Essay Competition, to take place this year in February; the Draper Prize Speaking Contest, coming probably in March; the Robinson Prize Debate between two teams selected from Philo, in April or May; and the Potter Prize Essay

BLUE QUINTET DEFEATS TECH FRESHMEN 49-47

C. Kellogg Stars On Offense As Andover Gains Victory On Wednesday

NORTHEASTERN GAME TODAY

Final Period M. I. T. Rally Fails To Overcome Early Lead Compiled By Blue

Showing a complete reversal of form during most of the game, the Andover varsity basketball team defeated the M.I.T. Freshmen 49-47 Saturday in a game featured by the Blue's powerful first-half offense. This victory is the first one that the team has achieved during the current season.

C. Kellogg was outstanding for Andover in offensive play. He succeeded in amassing a total of 18 points. Cameron, who is replacing the injured captain, E. Kellogg, followed with nine points. For the visitors, Kangas, Hier, and Bullwinkle were outstanding, scoring 14, 16, and 15 points respectively.

To all those who had seen either the Lowell or the Haverhill game, the Andover all-around play in the first-half was a revelation. On the offensive the Blue team seemed to possess unerring accuracy; their defense was strong enough to hold back the advances of the Freshmen. The starting line-up was composed of Kellogg, Peelor, Cameron, Moody, and Lyford. This team speedily acquired a safe lead and was withdrawn during the second period. At that time, Dyess, Conant, Baker, and Reiter were sent in as replacements. The half ended

DR. T. Z. KOO LECTURES SUNDAY NIGHT BEFORE SOCIETY OF INQUIRY

Well-Known Chinaman Talks On Present Situation In Far East

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS

Political And Educational Phases In China And Japanese Invasion Three Topics

Dr. T. Z. Koo spoke before a large crowd of students and faculty members Sunday night in the first meeting of the Society of Inquiry held this term. The subject of his lecture was "The Present Situation in the Far East." The noted Chinese diplomat divided his talk into three parts: the political phase in China, the educational phase there, and finally the present Japanese situation.

On his first topic Dr. Koo pointed out the change in attitude of the Chinese people towards their government in the last 20 years. When he was young, he remarked, everybody was brought up to shun the national government and to hate its officials. Now, he said, people are beginning to want to take not only an interest but even an active part in it. He showed how the central government had steadily increased its power since its estab-

Green Contenders Shatter Two Pool Records Saturday

COMPETITION STRONG IN ALMOST ALL EVENTS

In the second swimming meet of the 1935 season, which was held last Saturday, the Dartmouth Freshmen, with a slight edge over Andover, ran up a score of 37 as compared with the Blue's 28.

This defeat was a decided let-down for P. A. swimming fans after the first meet with the Brown Freshmen when Coach Dake's men chalked up a 57 to 6 victory. The Andover squad, however, did show up well and offered plenty of competition for the Green team in all events with the possible exception of the backstroke and the breaststroke.

Cushman, speedy 200-yard freestyle man, proved himself to be one of the outstanding performers of the Blue team when he finished first in the above event far ahead of all competitors. The race for second place in the 200-yard was neck and neck, and cheering fans were brought to their feet when Mahoney of Andover defeated his opponent.

WALLACE ANDERSON LECTURES ON RUSSIA

Talks Before Social Problems Club Illustrated By Motion Pictures Taken Last Summer

Mr. Wallace Anderson of Springfield, Mass., entertained the Social Problems Club at their meeting Monday with a talk and moving pictures on Russia. The pictures were taken by Mr. Anderson and several companions on a half month tour there last summer under the direction of Sherwood Eddy.

In his opening talk Mr. Anderson stressed the point that it would be unfair for him to give his opinion of Russia after a stay of half a month, spent mostly at Leningrad, Moscow, and on a communal farm 350 miles from Moscow. He admitted that, for the most part, they had probably seen only what it was intended that they should see: that Moscow and Leningrad

Commons Committee Of Five To Be Chosen By Senior Council To Improve Poor Food

This is an era of sensational and evolutionary planning. The U.S. R.R. has its Five Year Plan; Sinclair has his Epic Plan; a middle-aged California doctor has his Townsend Plan. Planning is evidently the vogue and quite the proper thing to do. At Andover, the Commons Plan, a new scintillating scheme to improve conditions and the general bill of fare at the "beanery," is rapidly sweeping down all opposition.

The Commons Plan, magnificent in its conception, is designed to correct all evils of the present system and to make possible the perfect meal three times a day, on a six day week. Although the plan as yet does not provide for Sundays, its sponsors believe that with a little experimentation it can be made to operate efficiently every day of the year.

To explain it briefly, the plan as conceived by its supporters depends upon the following simple but necessary procedure: A Commons Committee of five members to be chosen by the Senior Council, one member from each one of the three dining halls, another member to be chosen from the Senior Council, and the chairman ex officio to be Mrs. Cleveland. Members of the Commons Committee are to be named Commoners; their term of office to be one term. In order that the Plan may operate efficiently it is necessary that only true Epicures be chosen as Commoners. The office is extremely important and must be in no way political. (However, such matters may be left to the Senior Council.)

The duty of the Commons Committee is to receive all complaints about the food and about particular dishes that are disliked in their particular dining hall, and to present such as are basic and justified to the kitchen authorities so that all objectionable and unsavory dishes may be removed from the menu. Also, a few exceptionally good meals might be repeated more frequently.

The Commons Plan would end all bickerings on the subject of meals in school meetings, and would accomplish more actual improvement much more quickly than can

BLUE WRESTS 12½ PTS. IN HARD QUINCY MATCH

Cochran Makes Only Pinning, And Andover Loses By 1 Point

The Andover wrestling team opened its season Saturday with a defeat at the hands of North Quincy High School. The final score after the eight bouts was: North Quincy 13 1-2, Andover 12 1-2.

The whole match depended upon the results of the heavyweight class in which Adams of Andover and Assmus of North Quincy contended overtime to a draw.

Andover received some consolation in delivering the only fall of the afternoon. Cochran pinned his adversary of the 165-pound class in 6 min. 37 sec.

In the 115-pound class Burrows of Andover won a referee's decision over Scollin of North Quincy with a time advantage of 2 minutes and 35 seconds. The score was then Andover 3, North Quincy 0.

In the 125-pound class Patten of Quincy defeated Lederer by a referee's decision with an advantage

CLUB WRESTLING ENDED NOT ENOUGH MATERIAL

Meets Friday; Coach Carlson Forms Two Teams In Place Of Four

Club wrestling has started under Coach Carlson's direction with the lowest number of contenders in the history of the sport. Accustomed to anywhere from 35 to 60 boys, the sport has only 19 students out for it this year.

Due to the lack of material there will not be competition between the four clubs; instead, the coach will divide the boys into two teams and have weekly matches between them. The group that wins the most of these encounters will have numerals given to its members at the end of the term.

These weekly contests will probably be held every Friday, the first one taking place the day after tomorrow. The remainder of the week will be spent in tryouts for the matches and in instruction.

Although every class is represented up to 165 pounds, there are only two boys in some weight divisions. These will have to be

DR. KOO GIVES CONCERT AT VESPER SERVICE

Andover's Famed Week-End Guest Treats Small Group To Folk Songs

At the second Vespers Service of the term, Sunday night, Dr. T. Z. Koo, the Academy's famous guest for the week-end, entertained a small group of people by playing Chinese Folk songs on an unusual instrument called the Chinese flute. Made of just a hollow piece of bamboo with holes in one side and end, the sounds it produced were amazing.

Dr. Koo's first song was a fairly modern one, supposedly showing the feelings of a man as he gazed at a beautiful sunset and thought of his youth.

His second presentation is known to be old, and it describes a very arid part of China as having a heavy rain. It was about the farewell party of a man about to leave on a long journey, by his friends. The playing ended with a sharp note, which is the Chinese way of calling the wind to bring good luck to a traveller.

Democracy In America

In the last decade a marked change has come over the attitude of the American people toward the government of the United States. For years before this it was generally agreed by everyone that the form of government which the patriots of Revolutionary times had set up in the land was vastly superior to that of any other nation, but in recent years the thinking classes of the land have begun to question the success of democracy. These people ask if it has lived up to the great expectations which it aroused and if it has justified the faith put in it by the men who drew up the Constitution. They express doubt that, in a country of such great area and resources as ours, it can be as successful as a strong dictatorship and monarchy. If it can, then why should the so-called "land of the free and home of the brave" suffer from such a wave of crime and corruption as has been sweeping from coast to coast since the turn of the century? Why should incompetence and political dishonesty be so prevalent among the officials of the American government, both local and national.

The answer, it seems to us, can be found not by an examination of the democratic methods of administration, but by a close scrutiny of the ideas of the great American public regarding the administration of governmental affairs. The fault lies not in democracy itself but in the average American's indifference toward and lack of interest in the government which makes the laws by which he must abide. Indeed little does the normal person in the United States care if the officials are using their offices merely for their own interests or if they fail to recognize the threatening problems of the day and to meet them with competent legislation. The only time when this average man begins to take an interest in the national administration is when some law which is passed becomes a direct blow at his business or his way of living. Then only does he grow irate at the administration and denounce democracy as a stupid failure.

Obviously, the only conditions under which democracy has a chance to prove successful are those in which the people of a nation are willing to take an active interest in their government and will take the trouble to weigh the merits of all candidates for public office before voting and thus select the right man to hold the position. They must be open-minded enough to vote, regardless of party prejudice, for the man who can fulfill his duties most efficiently. As it is now, many citizens do not even cast ballots in important elections, and a large majority of those who do vote support their party's candidate regardless of his capability.

The fickleness of the average American and his gullibility make it easy for party bosses and party-controlled newspapers to sway him in favor of any man whom they want elected. Thousands of voters are dictated to by cheap politicians, who never seek for anything but their own advantage, and vote according to the latter's wish, without even considering other candidates. Then, if some act of the administration is harmful to their interests, these same people are easily persuaded that the very officials whom they have elected are dishonest and disgraceful scoundrels. Instead of giving the matter due consideration before an election and being farsighted enough to see that the men whom they elect are the most capable for office, they wait until after the election and then pounce upon the administration at the first chance offered them. The American people as a whole want not a good, well-managed government but rather the chastisement of some exponent of bad government. And certainly democracy can be successful only when the people are eager for an efficient, honest administration of governmental affairs and are willing to work to attain it.

Hazing Alternative

Grinnel College—Paddle hazing for freshmen was abandoned this year at Grinnel college, in favor of a plan by which each first year man appeared at dinner in the college dining halls on a set date accompanied by a young woman. This was to teach table manners and social finesse. (Extract from the Syracuse Daily Orange.)

We personally think that the Board of Trustees ought to consider the above suggestion. All the preps would certainly be delighted, and we know that we ourselves, when we were preps, would have gladly forsaken the sweet sorrow of lugging trunks up three flights of stairs, if we could only have had the pleasure of sitting down to dinner "accompanied by a young woman." Incidentally, teaching table manners would involve holding hands, and as for social finesse... Hmmm, come to think about it, it had better be made a Senior privilege, along with smoking and roistering around on Saturday night until the wee, small hours.

The Scketchc Kloubbe, so we hear, intends to expend fifty cents (50c) per hour on any young gentleman willing to act as a model. We could have taken the offer ourselves but we were afraid that some budding (very) Raphael would mutilate our classic features on canvas and then label the thing: "The Biggest Ape In Capacity."

Many of you, no doubt, have noticed that mysterious green bottle of gargantuan dimensions which, concealed inside a prosaic crate, sits stolidly at the corner of the corridor in the gym basement and, like a malevolent turtle, thrusts out its wood-capped head and glimmers evilly at the passers-by. As a matter of fact, it contains neither pre-repeal gin nor needle beer, but a mild, mellow blend of muriatic acid for cleansing the swimming pool of the little animals which accumulate in it after a week or so.

If you were ignorant of the facts of life, you should have seen the "sex" movie given by the Biology Department. Imagine! we saw an amoeba reproducing! Tsk, tsk.

ishment in 1918. From only controlling three provinces in 1928, it now has domination over all but three. Lastly he stated that China would have a constitution in a very short time, under which the common people will be able to vote for their public officials for the first time.

To the second part of his speech Dr. Koo devoted probably the most time. He told about the tremendous progress that had been made in educational principles during his lifetime, relating that when he was young the only way one could educate himself was by attending a family school, namely the home of a rich man who permitted others to be taught by his children's instructor. Only about one million went to schools then, since the government offered no means of education. But now, due to the introduction of public schools in 1907, over fifteen million children are being taught throughout the great country. While this is but a little of the total of sixty million children there, he added, it shows a great advancement in educational facilities in China. Up to a short time ago, Dr. Koo stated, the purpose of the Chinese was to train the mind thoroughly and not give the slightest attention to the body. But today great stress is placed on physical education, he concluded, and already two national meets, in which about four thousand youths have participated, have been held.

Concerning the Japanese situation the noted statesman was quite certain of trouble in the near future. He stated that while everything appeared calm on the surface, uneasiness was brewing underneath. He constantly mentioned the consequences of war between Russia and Japan and seemed to regard the conflict as a probable event. He described the unfair acts the Japanese have inflicted upon the Chinese in Manchuria, and explained the reasons for the latter's constant rebellions. Taking the soy bean raisers there as an example, he pointed out how they, accustomed to two dollars a bushel for their products, were forced to sell the beans to the Japanese for twenty-four cents per bushel. Of course that the farmers would go bank-score on a bullet-like drive from the blue line. Curtis, Davis, and Eames kept up a relentless offensive, and even the defence men, Gardner and Hazeltine, aided in the attack. Eames finally picked up Davis's pass in front of the goal and put Andover in the lead again. Curtis made the final goal of the game on a pretty individual play. Andover's improvement over the game of the Wednesday before was very encouraging, especially in the passing attack of the first line. The second line has yet to live up to the promise it has shown in practice, but strong hope is held that it too will start to click. Gardner and Hazeltine, playing their second complete game without a rest, were an effective defence pair.

The second half saw the Blue team completely collapse on the defense. The Andover lead which had at one time seemed like a perfectly safe margin slowly diminished until it was a question of whether or not M. I. T. might still pull through with the victory. However, protecting a two point lead, the Blue team staved off the final Tech rally and took the game 49-47.

After the game Coach Billhardt remarked that both teams' defenses were ragged and that the Blue needed much drilling in that particular department. rupt and fight their oppressors was his implied answer to the situation. He mentioned many other Japanese faults, including their methods of making countries recognize Manchuria as a free state and of trying to league China with them against Russia.

To use his own expression Dr. Koo hoped that he had "explained the skeleton of the present circumstances in the Far East" to his audience. Other opportunities for public speaking are afforded during the winter term by the informal weekly Philo debates, and during both winter and spring terms by the several public debates with other schools, such as Middlesex, Gov. Dummer, Groton, and Exeter, and with the Freshman teams of Harvard and Dartmouth. It is hoped also that a public debate may be arranged with Abbot. Several of these contests will be held away from home. The Exeter debate, coming probably early in the spring term, will take place this year at Andover.

The Means Essay Competition, to be held in February, is open to all members of the school. Prizes of $25, $15, and $10 will be awarded for the three best essays delivered from memory. The eight finalists for the competition will be selected at tryouts to be held early in February, and will then be coached for the finals by Mr. Higgins. For the tryouts, the essays will be read and need not be memorized.

Philo will continue to hold weekly debates through the winter term. Membership is open to all students in the school, the only requirements being attendance at two-thirds of the meetings, participation in one debate during the year and payment of the annual dues of fifty cents. Students interested in membership should sign up with R. S. Reigeluth at the next meeting of Philo.

Commons Committee Of Five To Be Chosen By Senior Council

be brought about by the present system. It would relieve the Senior Council of this burdensome task, and would allow the student body to take part in the affair. Individual students would make their complaints directly and specifically to the Commoner in their dining hall, and any complaints or suggestions that are at all general would be followed by swift action.

By the Commons Plan, it is believed that such disgusting foods as the half-cooked, leathery frankfurters that are served every Sunday night may be avoided. Cauliflower, squash, and the everlasting buttered kale might also be done away with. The statistical member of the Commons Committee might even go around after meals and find what foods are left untouched on the dishes. Such delicacies as club sandwiches might be prepared more often.

Let it be known that the Commons Plan is no panacea and may be accomplished only by hard work. If it is followed faithfully, however, its sponsors and supporters feel sure that it will bring about untold improvement in the dining hall fare and will mean a new deal for the poor unfortunates now starving on breakfast food.

are show places, much better than the typical Russian city, and the communal farm was one of the best and far superior to the average rural conditions; but he protested that it is only natural to present the best things to people visiting for only a short time. He said that it is unfair to compare Russia with any modern European country or with America because of the vastly different background and the immensity of the country itself. Russia covers one-sixth of the earth's surface and comprises 185 different nationalities; and it is interesting to note that out of its 165,000,000 people there are only 3,000,000 Communists.

The moving pictures presented covered scenes in Moscow and on the communal farm. Included were pictures of a service in one of the hundred churches still open in Moscow, scenes in a government park, and pictures of the National Sports Day parade of 120,000 young men and women dressed in sports clothes.

others correct their form. In this way the work can be split up into smaller groups, and more can be accomplished. Also these classes can meet at different places, thus eliminating the crowding of one hill. Notice where to report and the standing on the team will be posted on the middle bulletin board in the basement of the gym.

The Club voted to have an outing club emblem, an AOC, to be worn on the shirt. This is not an award and any member of the Outing Club will be entitled to wear it. Also it was voted to assess one dollar as dues from every member of the club to cover several expenditures which have become necessary. Since the Club receives no aid from the Athletic Council this year, that is the only way to cover the cost of membership in the

This one dollar dues will include membership in the Outing Club, the Ski team and all the privileges that the club offers. In matters of trips the practice is for each man to pay his own expenses.

On February 2nd and 3rd the ski team will go to Berlin, N. H., to compete in the National Interscholastic Championship Meet. On Feb. 22, it will take part in the Interscholastic Meet at Cushing. A dual meet with Tilton Academy is scheduled to take place on Feb. 9. Also there are possibilities of meets with Lebanon High School, one of the best New Hampshire school teams, and with Exeter.

In his third piece Dr. Koo demonstrated a particular note that no other kind of musical instrument can produce. The air was a chant that women tea pickers sing as they go about their work.

His fourth selection was a lament, Ten Cups of Wine. He said that he believed the melody suggested all the pathos the composer had in mind when writing it.

The difference between the northern China folk songs and those of the south was shown in his fifth group. He spoke of the southern airs as light and quick while those of the north as dull and heavy. He stated that the people from the two sections were like the songs and prided himself in coming from the south. He clearly showed the difference in his two pieces.

Lastly Dr. Koo played two types of religious music, one from the Buddhist and another from the Confucian temples. The first piece was the chant Buddhist monks sing after their meals, while the latter was an invitation to the spirits to bless the sacrifices of the confession.
