Wrestling Squad To Face Favored Harvard On Mat

Renewed Blue Line To Rely On Bird, Middlebrook,
And Garvan

LINE TO GRAPPLE 165

Spalding, Heywood, And Day
Temporarily Out

Andover has a distinct underdog for the time this season, the Andover wrestling squad journeys to Cambridge this afternoon to meet a highly-favored Harvard Freshman aggregation. It will be the first time that the Blue team has wrestled away from Andover.

The Crimson Yearlings boast an excellent record, being at this point undefeated and untied but have been scored upon. Numbered among their whitewashed victims are Brown Freshman and Tufts Freshman teams, the latter two weeks ago succumbing to Andover by a 26-6 score. It must be remembered in comparing the records, however, that at the time of its victory over the Andover team was at almost full strength, while today it will be weakened by the absence of three, possibly four regulars. The freshmen who face Harvard will have to be in top form in order to protect the team's undefeated record.

In the 118, the 126, and the 150-pound bouts that Andover lays claim to, Coach Knight hopes for victory. Garvan began the season in sub-berth, has been improving rapidly, and will as usual defend the 118-pound berth. Captain Middlebrook, who is undefeated so far, will attempt to protect his record in the 126-pound bout, and Bird, also undefeated, will be in quest of his first full victory as he grapples at 150 pounds. Sherman will again defend in the 175-pound division. During the week Lindsay has been over the weight limit for 145-pounders, but it is expected that he will come down to the correct poundage today. If he is not light enough, however, his position will be as it was against Tufts, by which time Heywood, who usually weighs in at 135 pounds, is now in the line and his place will probably be taken by Sommerville, who saw action against North Quincy. The second slot will for the second week be filled by Tine. The fact that Spalding, on his last action last Monday after two weeks because of a

Andover Mermen Face Worcester Swimmers

Exceptionally Strong Team To Face Blue; Opponents
Have Clean Slate

Andover swimmers will enjoy a bus ride to Worcester this afternoon where they will combat a strong group of mermen. Worcester Academy's unbeaten swimming team scored its fifth straight dual victory last Wednesday by sinking Brookline High School 45-21.

Gonzales, in the fifty, and Wilhelm in the 100 freestyle, are said to be the outstanding swimmers on the Worcester team. Wilhelm won the 220 at the Harvard Interscholastics. Gonzales, who swam the fifty against Brookline, was clocked at 25 2-5 seconds, which is 2-5 of a second slower than Wilson, the Yale man who took this event against the Blue swimmers last week.

Frackleton will not be able to take part in the dive this afternoon, but with this exception, there will be no change in the line-up. Mr. Dake believes that this will be a very close meet, as Worcester has an exceptionally strong squad this year.

Blue Fencers To Meet M. I. T. In Graves Hall

Fourth Bout Of Season To Be
Two Weapon Contest

In the fourth meet of the current season, which is scheduled to take place at 2:30 this afternoon in Graves Hall, the Andover fencing team will compete with a Freshman team from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It may possibly be a three weapon meet, although there is some doubt as to whether there will be any bouts in the sabre division.

The probable line-up in the nine foil bouts will include Captain Koch, Willets, and Jones, who was unable to take part in the meet last Saturday due to illness, with Dargan, Friedman, and Bixby as substitutes. Heintzelman, who up to this meet has been a substitute in the foils division, will compete in the epee matches. Otherwise, the epee men will remain the same: Katze, Boynton, and Walker.

In the meet held last Saturday with the Dartmouth Sword Club, the P. A. fencers were defeated by a score of 12-5, taking only the foils division. So far, they have been defeated twice: first by Y. M. C. U., and then by Dartmouth. In the first meet of the season, they defeated Brown by a one point margin.

Professor Hooton Feels Man To Be Degenerate

Lecturer Describes How Man Evolved From Beasts Of Low Intelligence

His wit and sarcasm not quite up to advance notices, but nevertheless presenting a fairly humorous and exceptionally interesting lecture, Professor Ernest Albert Hooton of Harvard University addressed a large gathering of students last evening in George Washington Hall. The lecture was on the subject of "The Higher Life of the Lower Primates," or "Our Poor Relations," because of having to do with "apes, monkeys and other disreputables."

Following his introduction by Mr. Paradise, Mr. Hooton proceeded with a brief explanation of what was to follow, and then, with the aid of slides projected on the screen, demonstrated how man has evolved from a beast of low intelligence to his present state. The chief means of demonstrating this progress were the slides showing the skulls of animals in various stages of development, how the nose gradually became less obtrusive and a forehead made itself evident as the animal gained in intelligence. He also traced the change which took place in the hands and feet, and the differences between arboreal animals and those which remain on the ground.

In conclusion he stated that man, from an evolutionary standpoint, is now degenerating instead of continuing to progress, and slipping backward. "It is my belief, and you may not agree with it," he said in closing, "that men today should de-

Andover Trackmen Face Harvard Frosh

Pole Vaulters To See Action
For First Time; Stinson
Leads Field

DONAHUE ON YEARLINGS

Plenty of opposition is in store for the Blue trackmen this Saturday, for at 2:30 in the Case Memorial Cage they meet a reputedly strong Harvard aggregation. Andover's opponents are strong and well-balanced, so the Blue performers will have to do their best if they are to win.

In the hurdles and dashes, our men will receive plenty of competition from Donahue, P. A. '37. Pirnie and Murphy, who have been doing most of the Blue's scoring in these events, will have to be in their best form to compete against this former Andover runner. Also, Harvard has a strong field in the longer runs, which will provide Keller, Lee, Falconer, and Coughlan with a great deal of opposition. Russel, last year's captain at Exeter, is one of Harvard's leaders in these events.

In this meet, there will be all the field meets of an indoor track meet. The pole vaulters will see action for the first time in a home meet. It is hoped that Stinson and his colleagues will do their best. The shot putters, who have done very well thus far, should once again collect some points; for one of Harvard's few weak places is the shot put. In the high jump and broad jump, Maurie Gould and Jackson are expected to again do some scoring.

Saxons Edge An 18-17 Victory Over Romans

Score Was 16 to 16 At Finish
When Saxons Sink Goal
During Overtime

Basketball competition among the Clubs hit a new high last Wednesday when the Saxons edged out an 18-17 victory over the Romans in the three minute overtime, which resulted from a 16-16 tie at the finish of the last half. Townson took advantage of this overtime to sink a basket for the Saxons, breaking the tie by two points. The Romans rallied strongly after this set-back but were only able to score one more point, which R. Fisher calmly made under pressure. From the very beginning, Lowell making the first basket for the Saxons, and Marshall following up with one for the Romans, the game was one of the closest this season. At the half the quintets were tied, and with two minutes to play toward the end of the game, the score being 14-12. Smith of the Romans got a basket, which brought the game to a tie; Townson got a free throw in next, and, with one second to play, R. Fisher sank a free shot for the Romans. This caused the above three minute overtime, which the Saxons used to advantage, winning the hardest fought game of the afternoon.

Greeks versus Gauls

The undefeated Greeks maintained their record in Wednesday's game with the Gauls by a 19-8 victory. The Greeks took the lead from the first, Jack Malo scoring the first basket, which was immediately followed by another from Dempsey. Luce and Bertucio started the scoring opposition for the Gauls. The score stood 14-4 in favor of the Greeks at the half. In the last half the Greeks kept their lead, Burnam sinking the last basket, which made the final score 19-8.

According to the point chart, the high score position is still held by Jack Malo, a Greek; however, Wednesday's games rendered a change in the following positions. Lowell, a Saxon, ranks second, leaving Marshall and Hobson tied for third place.

In Line-up

P. E. A. TEAM STRONG

Coach Knight Encouraged By Showing In Last Game

"The team got off to a slow start this year, but the last game with New Hampshire and the scrimmage that was held Tuesday afternoon have been very encouraging. If the team can play as well against Exeter as they did against Lawrence Academy, we won't have any trouble." So said Dick Knight, the hockey coach, when he was asked to express his opinion about today's Exeter game. He does not seem worried about a fast-skating Exeter team who have far surpassed the Blue team as far as statistics go.

The Red and Gray will go into the Boston Arena at six o'clock a favorite in the annual struggle between these two teams which began in 1914. Most sports writers give Exeter the edge because of the excellent showing this year. At Lake Placid they walked away with all the honors, winning the invitation preparatory school tournament held there during the Christmas vacation. In their regular season the pucksters from New Hampshire have shown great form, winning most of their games. Their most significant victory of the year was over the Yale Freshmen, who up to that game had been undefeated. Andover on the other hand did not do so well at Lake Placid. The Blue team won one and lost two, dropping games to two schools that Exeter had previously beaten. In the regulation season which began the Wednesday after the start of the winter term, the Blue warriors have won three games and lost two.

Defense A Problem

At the beginning of the season Coach Knight was faced with the problem of building up a green team into an organized, fast-skating unit. Captain Furber, Pike, Davis, Foster, Blanchard, Seymour, and Adams were the returning letter-men. All of these were forwards, so the chief problem Mr. Knight had to face was building up a defense. Foster was moved back to the rear-guard, and Schwartz and Kittredge filled in at the other position. After the vacation the team received the services of Hunt, who had previously been out of the line-up with a broken arm. He was a valuable man on the blue line, and teaming with Pike, who was brought down from center, formed a good defense. However, he has since been lost to the team. Captain Furber and Harrison were then moved from the forward wall to the defense, and they

Professor Hooton Hopes Human Faults Will Be Corrected Before Becoming Inherent

There has been a slight interest in the modern generation of apes and morons!" declared Professor Ernest A. Hooton, in an exclusive interview to a PHILLIPPIAN reporter last night.

"Although our brains have grown larger than those of our 'poor relations,' we are not taking advantage of these organs," he declared in answer to a question on this matter.

Professor Hooton, who has been professor of Anthropology at Harvard University for five years, declared that the study of the evolution of man is attracting a larger number of students than ever before. He expressed the hope that we are beginning to take an interest in our progress, and that we will try to correct any faults or weaknesses before they become inherent.

In answer to a question about the much-referred-to "missing link," the professor replied that there are several breaks in the chain of evolution, but that gradually anthropologists are filling in the blanks.

"In closing," said the witty speaker, "let me repeat that the study of the evolution of man and other primates is as important a profession as law, finance, medicine, or any of the others. My only hope is that the future of man's progress will be readjusted before it is too late."

For The Prom

With the Winter Prom a mere six days distant, we wish to voice a slight disappointment felt because of the lack of activity on Andover Hill on the Saturday following the prom. We had hoped for some kind of winter festival comparable to that of Exeter's or of Lawrenceville's. However, we also wish to sympathize with the prom committee in their inability to do this, both because of a lack of interest on the part of the students and because circumstances force them to abandon plans for Saturday. Nevertheless, the advance sale of tickets indicates that they have fulfilled their desire to give a better winter promenade than any of their recent predecessors.

In view of the fact that they managed to have the prom delayed an hour, ending at three instead of the customary two, plans for a breakfast dance, that in the past has proved very unsuccessful, were dropped. A luncheon dance was proposed, but it was decided impractical since the Commons will that noon be accommodating the two hundred or more athletes entered in the Inter-scholastics. Very little enthusiasm has been shown for any kind of entertainment, although complaints, we fear, may be forthcoming. Furthermore, many boys have already arranged to have their girls leave the Hill early in the day, making an early tea dance impractical as well as a probable disappointment. Any small dance following the prom would be doomed to be rather disappointing, since it would be a feeble anti-climax and because most persons are not enthusiastic over dancing very early in the day.

Hence, under the circumstances, the prom committee has done a commendable task in devoting its time and expenses toward securing such a fine orchestra as Claude Hopkins for the Senior Prom. The popular acceptance of this orchestra by the students has been expressed by the gratifying way in which such a great number of students have bought their tickets or expressed their intention of attending the prom. Indicative of the prom's success is the fact that many more lower classmen are attending the prom this year, not to mention a large turnout of Seniors.

Despite the lack of a winter festival, the Senior class is giving a prom that will approach that of the spring prom in popularity and success. It should be a dance that few would want to miss.

Selecting The Students

Andover is a democratic school. Its student body is not selected through social position according to the school's principles. In the world of today when good minds and not well developed social graces are needed, this basis is an exceptionally sound one. Andover is also a popular school and there are many who are refused admission. Scholarship, then, is what candidates are judged on; yet quite a few facts exist which would seem to deny this.

Of the first forty-two occupants of Rockwell House, only twenty-one are now in school. Of this number only sixteen have been able to keep from dropping back a grade. Last fall there were almost one hundred and fifty students on the no-excuse list. About twenty more were included in the Warning and Probation lists. These two examples may be exceptions, but they are there just the same. From this, the conclusion follows that only one out of every two juniors survives the first two years. Just about every sixth student fails to pass twelve hours. Quite a few new students fail to pass the entrance exams which are not exceptionally hard, but are admitted on condition.

If the cases above are not too exceptional, there is something vitally wrong with our selective system. If there are many applying for admission, why aren't the scholarship standards higher? Character, of course, must play some part in choosing candidates, yet character is seldom found without industry or intelligence. The studies here are not too hard. Perhaps there should be some way of making us do more work. But why is it that only one out of every two lasts but two years? The facts above cry out for a more careful method of selection or else a smaller number of newcomers who are capable of doing the work.

A Resting Place Of Beauty

With the nation about us in a troubled turmoil, the people engaged in the mad whirl of political, social, business, and labor activities, we at Andover have not only a resting place but a beautiful one. We are not altogether free from troubles and confusion as we seriously bend to our educational tasks, but in comparison with the outside turbulence ours are negligible. Nevertheless, we seem so occupied with our ceaseless work that we seldom are able to gain the opportunity of glancing about ourselves and observing our delightful surroundings.

The Andover campus has not the reputation of being one of the most beautiful in New England for nothing. The vista as seen from Samuel Phillips Hall might be taken right from a painting with the straight rows of trees bordering the flat stretches of grass. For a background, mountains loom purple in the distance, and add to that a sunset of wonderfully blended colors such as has been seen in the last week and you have something seldom found. Looking back up the vista at Samuel Phillips Hall an equally imposing picture is discovered. Looking across the campus from the Memorial Tower to the Cochran Chapel and vice versa, one sees some of the most beautiful buildings here.

Furthermore, there are such picturesque and attractive buildings as Hayward House, Park House, Clement House, the Headmaster's house, Stowe House, some of which have a unique colonial style. And our dormitories are not great ugly bulks, but rather are ivied and mellow in appearance. Newer dorms like Paul Revere are also extremely pleasant in appearance. The new cluster of little faculty houses set back in a quiet atmosphere are themselves attractive. There are other spots on the campus which might be worth observing.

At any rate, perhaps the monotony of the same sights day in and day out causes a lack of appreciation for the beauty of our campus. It is definitely there free from outside turbulence. Consider for a moment the turmoil going on in the nation, and perhaps you will realize how Andover is a resting place of quiet atmosphere and beautiful surroundings which ought to be appreciated.

SPORT SHOTS

By TOWER

Once more the efforts of our illustrious athletic mentors have boomeranged, thereby throwing for a loss the contemporary pupils who are striving to carry out their teachings. Our P. A. grads seem to take special delight in subduing their former playmates—or is it just an extra effort to keep the younger generation from getting too chesty? First it was the football eleven which took the count at the hands of Messrs. Anderson, Zilly, Burnam, et al. Then Bowdoin and Ray Huling (or vice versa, if you wish) gave the track team its worst trimming in many a year. And now they have done it again. The basketball team was the first to fall last Saturday before the onslaughts of the Eli fresh, with Cobb, Anderson and Zilly providing the local color in the visiting line-up. These three alone should make any freshman outfit click, yet as a team the Elis did not look too potent; in fact, Johnny Cobb was the only member of the ex-Andover trio to live up to his reputation. John managed to hang up sixteen points, which was almost half of his team's total score, and in doing so he was "hotter" than when he was racing around the court for us last year. The home team deserves plenty of credit, however, for it was a close battle all the way, and a Cobbless Freshman five would have been outplayed.

In the swimming meet it was the same story, with four former Andover natators doing their bit for Old Eli. Tom Mahony, despite the unscheduled aid rendered our divers by a member of the basketball team, won his event handily, and Metcalf contributed his bit to the visitors by breaking his old pool record in the backstroke. Seth Heywood, ex-captain of the Blue, splashed through for a second in the two hundred yard freestyle. Vaughan Kendall provided the only real satisfaction for the home forces by his flashy victory in the hundred.

The feature event on today's card is the annual hockey encounter with Exeter. Without being charged with undue pessimism, we can state that the outlook is none too good. Exeter, despite a few unexpected setbacks, has had a good season, aided and abetted by the experience of the five or six Albany Academy boys who decided two years ago to complete their preparatory work in New Hampshire. The Blue skaters, on the other hand, have only a fair season behind them and have really clicked in only one game.

A Knight-coached team has yet to lose to our traditional rivals and perhaps we are justified in placing a little faith in this as a jinx. Two years ago in his debut as Andover skating coach, Mr. Knight developed the first good hockey team since Brothers Field was a swamp—at least, it seemed that long. We doubt if Exeter has recovered yet from that eight to two beating. Last year Chuck Rounds kept the wolf from the door of the Andover net by some terrific goal tending, and once again we upset the Red and Gray applectart.

Speaking of records, we note that a young giant from Governor Dummer has been throwing a thirty-five pound weight all around the Case Memorial Cage. Reliable sources have it that the aforesaid giant slings his little plaything forty-nine or fifty feet with the greatest of ease, or in other words he tosses it about eight feet farther than our own school record. The collegiate record, by the way, is about fifty-one feet.

This item is getting monotonous, but we must mention that Joe Burns shaved another tenth of a second off his backstroke mark down at Yale.

Means Essay Tryouts To Continue Monday

First tryouts for the Means Essay Contest were held last Thursday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock in Bulfinch Hall. Because of growing interest in the contest, there was a large group of boys at the meeting. Although the tryouts lasted for three hours, they were not completed; so they are to be continued Monday night at 7 o'clock in Bulfinch.

After this meeting Monday evening, the judges will pick eight men to meet in the finals, which are set for February 24. However, before these men compete they will be coached for about ten days by Mr. Higgins. It is hoped that Dr. Fuess will preside over this meeting. When the judges decide the winners of the three prizes their judgment will be based two-thirds on substance and style, and one-third on delivery.

P. A. Quintet Favored Over Harvard Frosh

Although so far the basketball season hasn't been too successful, Mr. Di Clementi is confident that the team will be in the winning column tomorrow after today's contest with the Harvard Freshmen. The contest will take place in the Crimson gym at 4:00 this afternoon.

During the week Coach Di Clementi has worked on the offense. Monday and Thursday the first five was excused from practice as it is believed that they are rapidly developing into a real ball club. As Smith is in the scholastic doldrums, Kranichfeld will be in the starting line-up. As has been the case in previous contests, Dudan, Kubie, and Mayo will form the forward wall with Hearne and Kranichfeld under the basket. Phelan, Cuthbertson, and Bemis, who have showed excellent form, will see a great deal of action.

Harvard is supposed to have a fast team. Chessman and Lyford are the only Andover men who are playing for Harvard. Exeter managed to edge out the Crimson though by a small margin.

Prom Week-end Regulation

Students who plan to take week-end excuses this week-end will be allowed to leave Friday when their classes are over. Classes that ordinarily are held at 4:22 and 5:22 will be moved forward to 2:07 and 3:07, classes being finished at four.

Boys who attend the Prom must not leave on any excuse until after 8 A. M. Saturday.

This week-end will count as one of the regular allowance.

No one who is on No Excuse Warning, or Probation may leave for this holiday.

Boys must get their week-end excuses from Mr. Maynard, the Registrar's Office at the following times:

- Wednesday: 9 a. m. — 12 noon
- Thursday: 10 a. m. — 11 a. m. — 3 p. m. — 4:30 p. m.
- Friday: 10 a. m. — 11 a. m. — 2 p. m. — 4:30 p. m.

Day excuses for Saturday and Sunday may be obtained at the above times and also at the Registrar's Office between 8 and Saturday morning.

All boys must check in on the return from week-end or Sunday excuses with Mr. Maynard at Registrar's Office between 6 and 8 Sunday evening.

MOVIE PRE-VIEW

The movie tonight will be "The Prisoner of Zenda," starring Edward Colman and Madeleine Carroll. From the day of its publication forty-three years ago, Arthur Conan Doyle's story was a dramatic success. Since then "The Prisoner of Zenda" has acted on the stages of the English-speaking world.

In a revival of the silent version of 1922, Selznick has given the story the finest treatment it has received. The film is well-cast, acted, and beautifully staged. Edward Colman, who can pick his way through melodrama with a fancy dress as no other star can, shows his swashbuckling, devil care attitude in this picture. In the movie's close, in a few sequences with Madeleine Carroll, he proves himself to be as fine a romantic star as he is a hero. He shows that he is an expert at playing with tables, and he acquires himself very well in a brisk swordplay with Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

The short subjects will be a reel, a Walt Disney cartoon, "Hawaiian Holiday," an M. G. M. reel, and a sports shot called "Picking Pets."

Notice

Another W. P. A. ensemble will play tomorrow afternoon the Vesper Service at 4:45 in the Chapel. The Forum String Quartet, which has become quite known around Boston, will play a Brahms and a Mozart. The String quartet music is generally considered to be the highest of music.

Armament Policy Rejected In Debate

ford And Mintz Defeated By Broderick-Mayo Wednesday

THE HIGHEST SCORE RECORDED IN CONTEST

In some of the best speaking this term in Philo Broderick Mayo, upholding the negative question, "Resolved: that the rearmament policy of the United States should be immediately curtailed," defeated Lyford Lyford, the first speaker for the affirmative, by a score of 545-510. Lyford, the first speaker for the affirmative, emphasized the fact that the United States did not need to increase its forces. He firmly held that the proposed increase in aggressive move, yet he Admiral Leahy as saying the force could, by no stretch of imagination, be considered excessive one, for in several instances Leahy had, within one or two paragraphs, directly contradicted his own statements. In closing Lyford said that the fleet was planned for the Pacific, which meant that the United States is concerned with the western sector.

In a constructive speech for the negative Mr. Broderick said that he based his contention on four facts: first, that the United States needs the naval power to support the protests of her diplomatic department; second, that the United States has unsuccessfully tried to set the example for the world by scrapping her four ships; third, that our defenses are not now sufficient to protect both the Atlantic and the Pacific coastlines; and lastly, that the United States will be left high and dry unless it joins in the armament race in which all the other countries are taking part.

In the question period, there was the matter of the validity of the arguments by Admiral Leahy, the negative had quoted several times. The negative of the affirmative was that as he was Chief of Operations he should be an authority on the subject, while the affirmative maintained that he naturally favor his bill, and should show only the favorability of the matter. Another issue brought to light by Mr. Lyford was that the Japanese building a navy for the purpose of taking the Philippine Islands.

In the rebuttal for the negative, Lyford restressed the fact that the Japanese was for purely defensive purposes. He emphasized the situation in which the world is, that it needs larger and better forces, and declared that the United States should follow suit or it would be defeated.

In the final rebuttal of the evening, Lyford tried to break the arguments of the negative. He said that the country was in a state of official protests at the time of the provocation, as proven by the fact that the tabloids had given the slapping of an American consul by a Japanese sentry. In regard to the negative's statement that the U. S. had scrapped two ships in an attempt to lead disarmament, he declared that the ships had been old models which had been replaced by new ones. He quoted the book "Billions for Defense" as saying that the present navy was sufficient to protect America. Finally, he stated that this country cannot be responsible for those people who remain in warring nations, against the advice of the consuls.

The straw vote from the audience proved to be of the same opinion as the judge. In announcing his decision, Mr. Higgins said that the speaking in this debate had improved, and that the score was the highest to be attained.

Andover Wrestlers To Oppose Favored Harvard Team Today

A shoulder injury suffered against North Quincy, received a deep gash over his eye, which will keep him off the mat for an indefinite period. Coach Carlson does not feel that this will handicap the team to any great extent, however, because of the great improvement which Tine has showed during recent workouts. With Day still in the infirmary, Art Horwitz, a previously untried man, will make his initial varsity appearance as he faces the Crimson heavyweight in the final bout.

Only one man has thus far advanced from the club to the varsity squad, C. H. Henry, ace Roman 126-pounder, recently making the jump.

Club Competition

As the club teams enter the second half of the season, the Greeks are leading the pack, having won three meets and lost none; the Gauls and the Romans are deadlocked in second place, each with one victory, one tie, and one defeat; while the Saxons are at present occupying the cellar with three defeats marked against no victories. In Friday's meets the Greeks were to have met the Romans with the Gauls opposing the Saxons. The line-ups for the two meets:

Greeks vs. Romans

135-pound class: Ziegler (G) vs. Northrup.

145-pound class: Murray (G) vs. Lowell.

155-pound class: Burnam (G) vs. Cleveland.

175-pound class: Hood (G) vs. Spitz.

Gauls vs. Saxons

90-pound class: King (S) vs. Joy.

126-pound class: Lillard (S) vs. Manslach.

135-pound class: Chapin (S) vs. McGiffert.

145-pound class: Bell (S) vs. Storrs.

155-pound class: Schueler (S) vs. Waters.

Andover Jay Vees Edge Out Lawrence

Coles Leads Andover's Scorers By Collecting 8 Points In The Two Dashes

Lawrence High, who previously defeated our track team this year, were beaten last Saturday 35-33 by Andover's second team. However, the coaches stated that it was the most successful meet thus far. This showing is a great encouragement to the squad, for next Saturday they meet one of their strongest opponents, the Harvard Freshmen.

The first event of the day, the 40-yard low hurdles, was run in two heats. The first one was won by Crispell, while two Lawrence men placed behind him. After the second heat took place, in which no Andover men placed, the finals were run. Calabrese had a good start with the crack of the gun, which enabled him to beat Crispell to the tape in the time of 5 1-5 seconds. The 40-yard dash was run in a like manner, and Andover was as unsuccessful in this event as the preceding one. After the two preliminary heats, Hatfield of Lawrence, winner two weeks ago in this run, edged out Coles to take first place. The 300 was also run in two heats, but this time the winner was picked by his time. In the first trial run, Hatfield led at the sound of the gun and stayed in front throughout the whole race. However, Coles came through to win the second heat in 1-5 of a second better time than Hatfield had previously done, so he was awarded first place. Larry Lee gave the best performance he has ever done to win the 600 in the fast time of 1:21 3-5. Lee, after being pressed once or twice in the first lap or two, stepped out in front and then he was never in danger of losing his position.

1000 Close

The 1000 was the most exciting event of the day, because the lead was exchanged throughout the whole race. For the first four laps Dick led the way with Sadewicz and Coughlan several yards behind. Then Coughlan attempted to take the lead, but Sadewicz came up and passed him. With but half a lap to go Coughlan started to sprint, and Sadewicz could no longer keep up with him.

The only two field events of the day were the shot put and high jump. In the shot, Andover continued to keep its good record by once again sweeping all three places. Cutler, who made a toss of 44 feet 9 inches, placed first, while Hagedorn and Kausel came close behind. Stevenson of Lawrence, who won

High Schools To Participate In Annual Event At Andover

TRACK RECORDS REVISED

Three Indoor Records Broken In 1938 Season

Competition in the fourteenth annual Andover Indoor Interscholastic Track Meet will begin next Saturday in the Case Memorial Cage. Doors will open for spectators about 1:30; admission, 50 cents. The following have signified their intention to participate: Arlington, Beverly, Boston Commerce, Boston English, Boston Latin, Boston Trade, Brookline, Chelsea, Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn Classical, Lynn English, Malden, Medford, Middleboro, Newton, Quincy, Roxbury Memorial, Somerville, Saugus, Winthrop, Worcester North.

Of the above schools, there are several that established interscholastic records here last year. Donovan, Lawrence H. S., ran the 40-yard low hurdles in 5 seconds. Wittens of Newton H. S. did the 300-yard run in 33 2-5 seconds. Bova succeeded in making the 1000 yard run in 2 minutes and 26 seconds, making a record for Lowell H. S. Newton H. S. also holds the interscholastic record in the two lap relay, with a time of 2 minutes and 23 1-5 seconds. Robinson of Lawrence holds one for high-jumping 5 feet 11 1-4 inches. T. Plotkin of Brookline H. S. holds the World's Indoor Interscholastic record in the standing broad jump, which he established by a 10 foot 9 3-8 inch jump.

Professor Hooton Considers Man To Be Slipping Backward

vote less time to external matters and pay more attention to the study of man's organisms, and possible ways of improving them. It may then so happen that the sciences of law, religion, finance, and all the others will take care of themselves." Mr. Hooton was born in Clementsville, Wisconsin, in 1887, and in 1907 graduated Phi Beta Kappa.

from Lawrence College. The following year he received his M. A. degree from the University of Wisconsin, and in 1911 was awarded his Ph. D. from the same institution. He was an Oxford Rhodes scholar from 1910 to 1913, and in the latter year earned his Litt. B. and became instructor in anthropology at Harvard. In 1915 he was married to Miss Mary Beidler Camp. Six years after he became Assistant Professor, in 1927 advanced to Associate Professor, and received full Professorship in 1930. He has written several books, among which are "Ancient Inhabitants of the Canary Islands," which was published in 1925; "The Indians of Pecos," 1930; "Up From the Ape," 1931; and more recently the best known of his works, "Apes, Men, and Morons."

P. A. To Meet Red And Gray In Hockey Battle In Boston

form the starting combination. Seymour and Kittredge make up the second defense. Mr. Knight had less trouble finding two fast-skating lines as he had an ample supply of material to work with. At Lake Placid the first line consisted of Pike at center, Davis at right wing, and Blanchard at left. The second line was made up of Harrison, Arnold, and O'Brien. When Captain Furber recovered from a broken ankle he was moved to center, and Pike played defense. Foster soon moved up to left wing, the position he held last year. The starting line for the game this afternoon will be Pike at center, Davis at right wing, and Foster at left wing. The second line will be made up of Arnold at center, and O'Brien and Carter on the wings. Dearborn has been the starting goalie all season.

Exeter has a fast-skating first line consisting of Stuckey at center and the Sloane twins on the wings. Stuckey is noted for his long distance shooting, and the Andover team will have to keep an eye on him all through the game. At defense they have Thompson and Dryer. The latest reports from Exeter say that they have moved Captain Bill Saunders from defense to center on the second line, thus forming two lines of about equal strength. Cleveland will probably start in the goal for the Red and Gray.

Mr. Knight prophesies a close game this evening. Practically all the tickets have been sold out for the game, and the school has had to order more from the Arena officials. Andover's chances of winning are far from small. The first Blue line of Pike, Foster and Davis is certainly the equal of the Sloane-Stuckey-Sloane combination, and will undoubtedly give the Exeter goalie a great deal of trouble. The second line is also well organized.

and while it may not have the fire of the first line, it can be counted on in the pinches. Mr. Knight has a third line of Blanchard, Ren and Adams ready to shove the game. The defense combination of Furber and Harrison is unsteady, but both of them are steady, reliable players. Dearborn in the goal is steady, and has shown flashes of brilliance throughout the season.
