FOOTBALL SQUAD BEGINS PRACTICE

PROSPECTS PROMISING FOR SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Seventeen Lettermen Return;
1938 Jayvees Offer
Much Material

NEW MEN LOOK GOOD

Practice Is Light This Week;
First Scrimmage Today

Seventeen lettermen and a wealth of material from last year's jayvee squad were among those who reported to football coach Steve Sorota last Thursday afternoon for the first drill at which the squad was nearly at full strength. Practice started last Monday, continuing with morning and afternoon drills through Thursday, but until Thursday afternoon only a comparatively small number of candidates were in action.

Mr. Sorota, who is starting his first year as head mentor, feels fairly confident, stating that the backfield will be big and powerful. He says, however, that he would feel better if he were sure John Seekins, first-string center last year, would be in condition to play before the opening of the season. He has shifted Jack Fisher, last fall's second-string center, to end, but will have to use him in the middle of the line if Seekins is not ready.

Returning to strengthen the line are a number of veterans from last season. Butts Macomber, Gene Constantin, Bill Hart, Tuck Burnam, and Norm Feinberg are candidates for the guard and tackle positions; Tim Hoopes and Jack Brennan are back to bolster the wings. The backfield boasts a number of veterans, including Emory Harris, one of the heroes of last year's Andover-Exeter game; Jim Burke and Bill Arnold, both of whom saw considerable action at quarterback last season; Clayt Bond and Brooks Smith.

Of the new candidates, those who have been particularly outstanding to date are Bob McLaughry and "Swede" Anderson. McLaughry was captain of the Moses Brown

ALL ANDOVER STUDENTS TO TAKE EXAMINATIONS

Usual Aptitude Test For All Classes To Be Held Wednesday

Next Wednesday afternoon every member of the school will be required to take a special examination in the Cage. The name, Psychological Examination, is misleading because it is in reality an aptitude test, calculated to give in general terms a reliable estimate of each boy's capacity to do the work of the school and later of the college he plans to attend. It is a similar test to that which all boys will have to take before admission to college.

Although the oldest Senior and the youngest Junior will attempt the same questions, the classification of each boy will be based on the class of which he is a member and also according to his age. In this way every boy is competing with other members of his own group. The score on the examination will form a part of the per-

ENGLISH SUBWAY POSTERS ON EXHIBIT AT GALLERY

New England Scene Exhibition
Of Summer To Close
September 17

While continuing its summer exhibition, The New England Artist Interprets the New England Scene, the Addison Gallery is now also featuring a display of English Subway Posters which will continue until September 18. Another exhibit is of Early American Drawings from the permanent collection of the Gallery.

Ranging from advertisements of the zoo to those telling of the wonders of London, Cornwall, Norwich, and Ireland, the British Subway Posters were made mainly to attract tourist trade. Among the cathedrals pictured are Westminster Abbey and Southwark Cathedral. Others are merely pictorial, showing the beauties of the English countryside. Realizing that posters are popular with students for their rooms, the gallery has put these striking, colorful advertisements on sale at prices ranging from $.25 to $1.25.

The New England Artist Interprets the New England Scene is a display which the Addison Gallery has featured during the summer. It will close September 17.

Soccer Squad Reports For Early Practice

Captain Parker Heads Former Lettermen In Initial Workout

Soccer practice started early this week, and with the return of nine lettermen headed by Captain Joe Parker the team has a good start for the season. Coach Jim Ryley expects to form the squad around the returning players: Joe Parker, Anderson, Boynton, Moberly, Arnold, Upton, Dickson, MacCaffery, and Outerbridge.

Although practice so far has been light the team is progressing nicely, and with a few weeks of steady work should be in first class shape. Among the non-lettermen who have been out so far and who are showing up well are Winburn, Bush, Peterson, Stillwell, Masters, Baron, and Davidson.

Of course it must be realized that as yet no definite plans have been made although it is expected that most of the former lettermen will retain the positions they had last year. Jim Ryley does, however, plan to shift the members.

DR. FUESS

To The Preps

To All New Andover Students:

Opening its one hundred sixty-second year, Phillips Academy greets its more than seven hundred students, old and new, from many states and countries. The situation in national and world affairs is one which encourages, indeed demands, unusual seriousness of purpose in young men. I am glad to welcome the new boys to a school which believes essentially in hard work; clean living, and high ambition, and which offers to every undergraduate an exceptional opportunity to develop self-reliance, enlarge his mental resources, and broaden his outlook. My best wish for every one of us is that he may employ his talents such as they are to the best advantage, and achieve during the school year a steady increasing maturity.

Schedule Of Lectures Partially Completed

List Will Include Journalists,
Authors, Musicians,
Policemen

For the coming year a fine variety of concerts and lectures has been partially arranged and many have already been dated. The first will take place September 27 when Mr. Howes, a noted organist, will give a recital in the Cochran church. Dr. Pfatteicher says that this is expected to be a most worthwhile performance.

On October 6 Cornelia O. Skinner, famed monologist, will present a play by herself called "Mansion on the Hudson." This will be followed by the Trapp Choir on October 24. This is one of a long series as the Trapps have visited the Hill annually for a number of years. Headmaster Hugh Lyon from Rugby will lecture on Friday, October 27. The title of his talk is not known as yet.

The "Seeing Eye" will be presented November 6. It will probably consist of a lecture and demonstration by Morris Frank aided by a demonstration of his dogs. A concert will follow that on November 24, given by Mr. Turek, who is to give a piano recital. On December 8, Paul Shinkman will lecture on "Journalism as a Career." January 23 Mr. Barera and his violin will be presented, and following that will be singer Bjorling on February 23. Sydney Montague of the Canadian Mounted Police will speak on April 19. His topic has not been stated, but will probably be on the lives and experiences of the mounted police. On May 17, Dr. Harlan Tarbell, a noted magician, will give a performance.

This list is by no means complete as there are several more lectures and concerts which will be arranged.

To Resume Teaching

Four former Andover students have joined the P. A. faculty for the coming year. One, Mr. John B. Hawes, 3rd, taught at Andover from 1933 to 1936. Mr. Guy Eaton is also back on the Hill, having returned from his sabbatical leave of one year.

Dr. Mitchell Gratwick will assist Dr. Gallagher in the Infirmary. Dr. Gratwick graduated from Andover in 1918, and received his A. B. from Harvard in 1922. Following this he taught at Milton and the Nichols School in Buffalo, where he was later headmaster. He left the Nichols School to study medicine at Johns Hopkins, where he completed his course and received his M. D. Last year he was a Fellow at Riggs Sanitarium in Stockbridge. While at Andover he was a member of the hockey team and the jayvee football team. He also played in the banjo and mandolin clubs. He will reside this year at the Woods house.

Mr. John B. Hawes, III, graduated from P. A. in 1928 and Harvard in 1932, where he was a well-known middle distance runner. Before coming to Andover in 1933 he studied at Cambridge, England. He remained at school for three years.

Solicitors

The following is a list of concessions and student agents operating on the school campus under the supervision of the Bureau of Self Help. This list is printed in THE PHILLIPPIAN for a two-fold purpose: (1) to bring to the attention of the student body the various concessions and the agents connected with them, and (2) to ask the student body to co-operate with the Bureau of Self Help in reporting persons operating on the campus illegally. Any person, not connected with the school, found entering any dormitory or school building or carrying on business on school property without a permit is liable for trespass and should be reported immediately to your housemaster, to Mr. White, the school police officer, or to the authorities in George Washington Hall.

Following the reception, the annual explanatory meeting will be held in George Washington Hall, where several members of the Senior class will address the preps on the various extra-curricular activities on the Hill. J. H. Cuthbertson, President of the Student Council; W. P. Arnold, President of the Society of Inquiry; R. C. McGiffert, Editor-in-Chief of THE PHILLIPPIAN; N. S. Bemis, President of the Musical Clubs; W. B. Macomber, President of Philo; J. B. Parker, a member of the Inter-fraternity Council; and A. R. Burnam, will speak on the various activities and functions of the Student Council, the Society of Inquiry, the four school publications, the choir and glee club, the debating organizations, the secret societies, and the many hobby clubs on the Hill.

The reception and meeting were planned at the first meeting of the Society of Inquiry, held last Wednesday, at the home of Mr. A. Graham Baldwin. At this time officers of the Society were elected, W. P. Arnold, Jr., being named President; J. B. Parker, Vice-president; J. H. Cuthbertson, Secretary; and Dr. M. Cole, Treasurer. All thirteen members of the Society were present, and general plans for the coming year were discussed.

RARE BOOK COLLECTION ON DISPLAY IN LIBRARY

Articles Concerning Andover
History Share Upstairs
Showcases

This year the Library is adding to its many special features a collection and showing of the rare, valuable books and other various souvenirs of Andover. Mrs. Richardson, head of the Library, is planning to devote a whole room to the "Treasure Collection." It is hoped that in future years with the donation of other articles of interest the Library will be able to enlarge its present collection.

Among the many things on display on the second floor are a large group of medals of all sorts dating from 1776 to 1930. Included also are many "possessions of former headmasters and the founder of Phillips Academy. Other relics of life on the Hill which have to do with its many activities are also on display. For example, there are the name plates of an ambulance donated by the students of Andover, which saw service in the last World War.

Restatement

Last Spring, when the present board took over the administration of THE PHILLIPIAN, it printed a statement of a policy which it hoped to carry on throughout the next year. At that time we were extremely general in our statements, for we as yet had no really clear-cut idea of what we wanted to do with the paper while it was under our control. By this time we have gained a bit more experience, are a bit better organized, and are ready to restate our policy in more specific terms.

We said last spring that we would support all forms of extra-curricular activity to the utmost, but we failed to say in what manner we would do this. It is the purpose of THE PHILLIPIAN during the coming year to give space to articles on extra-curricular activity in more prominent positions than have been occupied formerly. We will support any new activity through the editorial columns and through the front-page news columns. In this way it is our hope that we may be able to bring the attention of the student body to the many worth while organizations which receive at best only mediocre undergraduate support. If the apathy towards this sort of activity which was in evidence all last year continues during the coming year, we will run a questionnaire, covering the entire student body, in an effort to find out why there is no more interest, and how interest could be stimulated.

Last spring we said that in the event of a European war we would support American neutrality. A few months of experience in running the paper has shown us, however, that it is not wise for us to attempt to make any statement whatsoever in regard to international affairs. We are therefore going to make an effort to refrain from commenting on the national or international scenes in the editorial column, leaving space in the "Here and There" column for a condensation of the main news of the day, but not for any expression of opinion on the part of the editors. We do, however, encourage communications commenting on the current situation, for in this way we may be able to receive conflicting opinions, and thus broaden the undergraduate view of events as they develop.

Otherwise we have no definite policy. We have a few plans for the coming year, which include one or two polls and questionnaires. It is our hope that in the near future THE PHILLIPIAN forum, which died such a lamentable death last year, can be revived in one form or another. Other school affairs we expect to deal with as they come up.

HERE and THERE

With what is now quite generally considered the "Second World War," turning great sections of Europe into battlefields, the news from abroad in the last few weeks has reached an almost record standard of unreliability. For this column, which attempts to tell at least in part what is really going on, to try at this time to sort out the Infinite number of conflicting reports into a really coherent story is as yet hopeless; in coming weeks some confirmation may come of the "facts" which are being thrown at us now, but until that confirmation comes, we have no right to represent to our readers as truth facts of which we are not sure ourselves.

There is only one question on which we may be fairly confident of getting something like the truth, and this is a question which is probably the most vital one posed by this whole war—the question of what America shall do in this crisis. Following in the wake of the President's speech of two weeks ago, most Americans believe that our safest course lies in neutrality; but many people, particularly in Congress, disagree violently on the definition of this neutrality and the method of carrying it out.

The two opposing positions in this fight, which will probably last in the coming special session of Congress for several weeks, are roughly these: The first, supported by the President and apparently a majority of Congress, is that we should repeal the present Neutrality Law, and substitute for it one which would allow sales of arms and ammunition on a cash-and-carry basis. The effect foreseen from this change would be to make America a source of war materials for the "Allies," for Germany could not hope to defy the British navy to the extent of keeping German-American shipping lines open. This, according to the supporters of the plan, would be all to the good, since it would help us to "curb the aggressor" without endangering American neutrality or American ships by having them carrying contraband goods to Europe.

The opposing position is that occupied by Senator Nye, sponsor of the present Neutrality Act, Senator Borah, leader of the Senate Isolators, and many others. This opinion is that we should keep and perhaps strengthen our present neutrality laws, which forbid the sale of any arms, ammunition, or weapons of warfare to belligerents, and allow sale of any other commodities only on a cash-and-carry basis. Men holding this opinion state that only by thus keeping our commercial interest completely out of this war can we keep our country out of it too.

Those are the two positions—each of them is right or which of them will win out is impossible to say; but one fact is certain: that the next few weeks should see a hard fight in both houses of Congress, on which may depend such seemingly widely-separated issues as whether we stay out of war and whether our President will run for or receive a third term.

Bachelor Mother is, without a doubt, one of the most entertaining and amusing pictures that Hollywood has given the 88,000,000 weekly movie-goers in quite a spell. Its plot is simple almost to the point of being absolutely guileless, but in spite of this, the humor is so genuinely funny and everybody in the picture seems to be having such a good time that the high spirits become infectious. A sound and well-written scenario is aided and abetted no end by the performance of Miss Rogers and Messrs. Niven and Coburn. Ginger Rogers, who doesn't need Fred Astaire any more than a dog needs two tails, has never before been so good and so beautiful. She is probably the most decorative thing in California and she has never been shown to greater advantage.

In case you have forgotten already, David Niven is also in Bachelor Mother. Mr. Niven is one of the leading comedians of the so-called drawing-room school. In Bachelor Mother, Mr. Niven, who usually plays the man who doesn't get the girl, finds himself at last in the enviable position of being able to appear in the fadeout, and also elsewhere, in the arms of Ginger Rogers.

However, the man who deserves more credit than anyone else for the success of Bachelor Mother is the 26-year-old director, Garson Kanin, the gentleman who, with a comparatively unknown cast, and almost no money at all, turned out A Man To Remember and followed it by The Great Man Votes; two of last season's finer productions. In Bachelor Mother he brings his talents to the field of pure farce and finds it just as green. Already one of the foremost in his profession, Kanin, whose technique somewhat resembles Frank Capra's, has made an ordinary little tale into perhaps the best of the summer's store of amusement.

NOTICE

All preps must bring their Blue Books to the movies in George Washington Hall, tonight.

SPORT SHOTS

Football is once more in the air on Andover Hill, and with seventeen lettermen returning to the fold, head coach Steve Sorota is looking forward to a successful campaign during his first year as chief mentor. Captain-elect Maurie Gould, brilliant half-back of a year ago, has not returned, but on hand to take his place is a wealth of new backfield material which includes Bob McLaughry, brother of Brown's famed John McLaughry and son of Tuss McLaughry, present head coach at Brown. "Swede" Anderson is another newcomer who is showing promise of becoming Gould's successor as chief running back for the Blue. Of those who were here before, Emmy Harris, Jim Burke, Clay Bond, Bill Arnold, and Brooks Smith are the leading candidates for starting berths, with a number of last year's jayvee backs also on the squad.

The loss of Al Foster was a severe blow to the line, but here too there seems to be a large quantity of big newcomers in addition to the lettermen of last year. Tim Hoopes and Jack Brennan should be the leading candidates for the wing posts, while towards the center of the line we find many more veterans, including Bill Hart, Butts Macomber, Norm Feinberg, John Seekins, Tuck Burnam, and Gene Constantin. Jack Fisher, second-string center last season, is also back, but is being converted into an end to fill the gaps left by the departure of such stalwarts as Bill Barr, Paul Carroll, and Joe Paolon.

Right now, with over a hundred candidates still on the squad, the team is showing promise of being big and powerful. Just how far it will go in competition we hesitate to say until things have shaken down more, but it has plenty of potential power, and may very possibly go places during the coming campaign.

MOVIE PRE-VIEW

For the first movie of the new season, Mr. Cook has arranged for an unusually entertaining program to be presented. There will be a Walt Disney cartoon, a March of Time, and a sport reel; and as the feature attraction, Ginger Rogers in one of her most successful pictures, Bachelor Mother.

Bachelor Mother is the scenario writer's idea of what happens to a shop girl when she sees a baby lying deserted on the steps of a children's home and is thoughtful enough to take it inside. This happens to Miss Rogers but she is unfortunately suspected by the authorities of being the baby's mother. When she denies the whole thing, the authorities probe deeper and attempt to find out who the father of the child was. Through plot machinations too deep for the average man to follow, the audience is led to David Niven, who is suspected of being the father for apparently no reason at all and who is, by a very strange combination of circumstances, the wealthy, eligible, and handsome son of Miss Rogers' boss, and, incidentally, the man of her dreams.

However, the baby is, quite naturally, a distinct surprise to Mr. Niven and to his father, Charles Coburn. There are several very amusing scenes showing Mr. Niven carrying on his role as father in an extremely incompetent way enjoyed neither by sire nor by sired. But to finally top off the picture with chocolate sauce, Mr. Niven discovers that Miss Rogers is the girl of his dreams and everybody lives happily ever after.

Mr. van der Stucken Says Possibility Of Long War Is Very Strong At Present

"There is a possibility of a long, drawn out war, due largely to the strong fortifications and the determination on the part of both sides," stated Mr. van der Stucken who has just returned from summering in Germany.

"There are two certainties. If the French break through the German west wall, which is most unlikely, the war might be a short one with France holding the Rhineland and Germany taking Poland. If the French don't break through, there will be a long war. The two lines, if not impenetrable, are extremely strong; so that a war of position might last indefinitely. The Germans will conquer Poland with or without Russian help, and may proceed into Rumania.

"The blockade may not be effective because of Russia. Russia is not interested in helping the Germans, but their idea is to bring about a fight between the other powers, and then regain parts of Poland which she lost in the last war.

"Whether, in case of actual aggression against Poland on the part of Russia, England and France will have to declare war against Russia, is a matter of conjecture. If an actual military alliance between Germany and Russia were to become effective, the result might be very serious for the allied powers.

"The position of Italy at the present time is very ambiguous. She may have deserted her ally or she may be acting in concert with Hitler because for the time being she is of greater use as a neutral power than as a belligerent power. Her present status will have to be clarified, and possibly England and France may force Italy to show her hand, perhaps by an ultimatum, but the time for that is not yet.

"For the time being Germany is concentrating nearly all her forces on the eastern front hoping to conquer Poland quickly, and then to make peace with the Allied Powers. If the peace proposals are rejected, as they are almost certain to be, the Germans will unleash all their strength, and horrible methods of destruction will be used on both sides. If the war lasts a long time, we may be drawn into it through circumstances which brought about our entry into the last war."

Mr. van der Stucken's trip abroad proved to be most interesting. He left New York July 6 for Hamburg, remaining there until August 11. It was apparent to him that trouble was brewing with August 15 set as the blow-off date. The crops were late, however, although unusually fine, thus delaying matters about three weeks pending the harvest. On the 11th he left for Antwerp to visit

Choir And Glee Club Organization Begins

Good Season Foreseen, With Usual Concerts, Other Activities

The Combined Musical Clubs started organization this week with every prospect of a successful season. The musical clubs, which include the choir, the glee club, the orchestra, and the band, will carry on most of their last year's activities and many new ones, under the leadership of Dr. Pfatteicher and Mr. Clark, both of the Music Department.

Tryouts for the new men interested in the choir and glee club have been going on since the opening of school on Monday. As a result, the first meeting of the new members on Thursday evening produced a large number of interested singers. Friday evening's meeting of last year's members also turned out quite a few men to form the backbone of the musical clubs this year.

Although the orchestral section of the clubs has not got under way yet, an organization meeting for the band and orchestra will be held next week. Wednesday evening the orchestra will meet to hold its first rehearsal of the year in the basement of the Chapel. The band will organize Thursday evening, and expects to play at one of the early football games. Monday night there will also be a meeting of any old men interested in joining the choir and glee club.

The schedule of plans for the glee club and the orchestra includes all of last year's concerts and perhaps a few others. First concert of the year will be with Rogers Hall School of Lowell, in the early part of December. The winter term will feature the annual concert and dance with Bradford Junior College of Haverhill, which will be held this year at Andover. There is also the possibility of a concert and dance during this term with Abbot Academy. After the Easter vacation will come the annual concert of the Musical Clubs of Andover and Exeter and later in the same term a concert and dance with the Beaver Country Day School near Boston.

The concerts, however, will form only part of the clubs' activities for the year. Dr. Pfatteicher is already planning a small group of twenty voices from the choir to sing special numbers in chapel and in the various concerts. More zest is added to the idea of small groups by the recent donation to the Music Department of a prize of forty dollars a year, which will be given on the basis of a combination of attendance record and a quartet competition to be held near the end of the year.

A new feature of the orchestra's program this year is a violin instructor, who has been hired by the school to give free lessons to any members of the orchestra who desire them. It is hoped that this system will be of service to the individual members of the orchestra, and will improve the standard of the ensemble.

The biggest sports news of the past few weeks has undoubtedly been the amazing comeback made by the Australian Davis Cup tennis team in the challenge round against the United States at the Merion Cricket Club a fortnight ago. Trailing, 2-0, at the end of the first day, the boys from down under came back from the stunning upsets administered by Bobby Riggs and Frank Parker to take three matches in a row and earn the right to return to Australia with the Cup. Tragedy, too, was mixed in the atmosphere as Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich won the famed trophy, for it is likely that they, Jack Crawford, and Harry Hopman, other players on the squad, will soon be called to fight in Europe. It looks as though the Cup may remain in Australia for a long time to come.

(against everything except loss or intentional damage).

We're using more than 250 college papers to tell students of the 5 devastating and devastating tests recently performed by the Parker Vacuumatic to prove it will last for life. No other pen we know has ever faced such torture. Yet the Parker Vacuumatic did it—can do it any time—and come forth in perfect working order.

1st—Filled with Acid (strong ferric chloride solution which ate away a railroad spike) instead of with ink, this incredible pen wrote a 5-mile line with the acid on a revolving paper-covered drum and finished in perfect working order.

2nd—"Bomb" Test: Parker's Diaphragm filler encased in an oxygen bomb FOR WEEKS, where a single day equals 6 months' normal age—to prove its long life.

3rd—"Electrocution": Every Parker Diaphragm proved 100% leak-proof by exposing it to 5,000 volts of electricity which flashes a red light if there's even a pinhole leak.

4th—"Drip Test": Pens filled and hung points down for hours in frigid temperature, then in torrid temperature.

5th—Dropped 3,000 ft. from an airplane to prove the lovely laminated pearl barrel and cap are Non-Breakable.

You never saw such a pen. You never owned one. A sacless pen that holds far more ink than ordinary rubber sac pens—shows the ink level at all times, hence won't run dry without warning, in classes or exams. So go and see it now and get it for college and for life.

Rare Books, Medals On Display In Upstairs Room In Library

But of equal interest are the rare old books in the "Treasure Room." Not only is the Bancroft collection of English translations of Vergil shown, but also the famous Forbes collection of Vergiliana. In the same case is shown a book printed in 1499 called the "Cento." This book was printed in the 15th century, and as far as is known it is the only copy in existence. It was printed in Paris by a woman who is believed to be the first female ever to print a book.

In another case books of particular interest because of the handsome French bindings and excellent printing are to be found, while near them are examples of the books taken from the Phillips Academy Library of 1819. The "Treasure Room" then completes its collection with a first edition of "Arrow-smith" by Sinclair Lewis, and a group of six first editions all written by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

All Andover Students To Take Aptitude Examination Soon

manent record of each boy and for this reason it is important that he make every effort to make the best score possible. At some later date this result will have a direct bearing on his admission to college and on other decisions which may be helpful to him. He will also profit from the experience because it gives him practice for the College Entrance Examination Board test, which requires three or more hours to complete. Boys who have taken both examinations say that the familiarity gained by giving their best efforts to our examination has been most helpful when taking the C. E. E. B. test. The examination which will be given will require only about one hour to complete.

In order that every one may be familiar with the character of the test, pages from last year's examination will be posted by next Monday on the various bulletin boards in George Washington Hall, the Commons, Williams Hall, Rockwell House, and, if possible, in other convenient places. This year's test differs from the one you will see in arrangement and content, but in general the work to be done is of the same type.

Many preparatory schools in the East have used this particular examination regularly and this is the seventh consecutive year in which it has been given here.

Mr. van der Stucken Says War Will Possibly Last Long Time

relatives. Then he went to Paris and waited for the trouble to blow over, but the situation increased in tenseness. He had planned to return on the Bremen, but he went back to Hamburg on the last plane from Paris. He then made reservations on the German liner Hansa, leaving August 24.

Mr. van der Stucken continued, "There was some doubt about the Hansa's leaving, but it finally left at noon on the 24th, heading into the North Sea. When we awoke the next morning, we found that the boat was headed back to Germany. It had been ordered by the German government to cruise about in the North Sea awaiting developments. At 11 a.m. it turned about and headed full speed for Southampton on its regular route. At 12 o'clock, it turned again and started back for Hamburg. It was a very harassing trip for the American, English, and German Jew passengers on board, especially the German Jews who had waited months and years for their passports out of Germany, and found that, after their dreams had been realized, they were headed back to Germany.

"We arrived in Hamburg the next noon. I took the night ferry to Denmark and proceeded to Copenhagen. The only ship available was the Norwegian liner Bergensfjord, leaving the 30th. I obtained a third class passage, the only berth available, and we left Oslo and proceeded north of the British Isles. We passed over the exact spot at which the Athenia was sunk just 24 hours later. We were practically alone on the Atlantic, since there were no other liners within a thousand miles. It is a curious coincidence that when I crossed on the Hindenburg in 1936, the Bergensfjord was the only ship we saw on the entire crossing. Earlier, a British destroyer had stopped the Bergensfjord, and the next day, two British cruisers looked the boat over."

Mr. van der Stucken's arrival in Brooklyn marked the 58th time he has crossed the Atlantic.

English Subway Poster Display Now On Exhibition At Gallery

Perhaps the most striking of the pictures on display in the exhibit is Walt Killiam's Destruction No. 2. Although there is supposed to be no one main picture in the 96 submitted to the exhibition, Mr. Killiam's work is the first to catch the visitor's eye, both because of its position in the display and because of its impressive coloring.

Andover Dramatic Club Announces Year's Plans

Under the leadership of President Brad Murphy and Vice-president Frank Soule, the Dramatic Club is this year looking forward to another successful season.

This year, instead of putting on only one master production, the club may give two or three shows. Among the plays already being considered are, "Road to Glory," "Night Must Fall," "The Bishop Misbehaves," and "Journey's End." All new boys interested in the dramatic club are urged to go to the "prep" meeting tomorrow night in George Washington Hall, where Norman Bemis will talk about the club's activities.

eleven last fall, and is the son of Tuss McLaughry, head coach at Brown. Anderson hails from Maine where he built up quite a reputation last year, and is big, fast, and powerful.

Most of this week has been spent in conditioning the candidates little heavy work having been done to date. The backs have been running through a few fundamental plays, engaging in passing drills and working on the shoulder and cross-body blocks. Contact work for the linemen started in the middle of the week with two-on-one blocking drills, and began for the back yesterday. The initial scrimmage scheduled to take place today.
