BOOTERS DOWN WORCESTER, 1-0

Referee Voids McKinley Goal

Andover's soccer team kept its slate clean last Saturday when they defeated Worcester Academy 1-0. The team was weakened by the loss of George Ravenelle, Tuck Asbury and Alex Twombly, all of the first team, but even with this loss, they showed up very well. Much more passing and heading was done and thereby made Jim Ryley's team look just about as good as at any time this year.

Captain Poppy Bush was the mainstay of the forward line, playing at center. Al Stone and Lautie Sargent turned in good jobs at the insides. Jim Watson and "Lana" Turner held down the wings. Both these men were new in the starting lineup and deserve credit for a good job. Vasco Nunez started as the center half position and did a wonderful job both on the defense and the offense. Cliff Wright and Captain Ken Keuffel Dick Webb were the other two half backs. Skip McKinley and Shortly after this Ken Bixby played the whole game at the fullback positions, and while they danding up for Andover's did not get much business, what Ken converted they did get they handled very he only extra point of the well. Macintyre played goal keeper.

During the opening minutes of the game Andover missed several very close shots at the goal, but the team kept hammering, and before the half was over Captain Bush finally drove one home. Dramatic Club Play"Submerged"

Composite View Of Production Is Presented

Saturday last, as the hands of Samuel Phillips indicated seven o'clock, an alumnus, lost in the bewildering expanse of this modern Andover, stumbled upon one of those back doors of George Washington Hall that most students regard as existing rather for ornament than for utility. Seizing the handle, he pulled open the door and entered, then turned around and came out again. Inside was Hell in Andover, Why? Gentle reader, realize this: the most trying period of any play's production is that immediately preceding the curtain call, and our "Submerged" was no exception.

A large apertured lens might have stopped Messrs. Vuilleumier and Woolsey flashing about the set; but they could have been stopped by nothing else. All those inevitable last minute cares that must be dismissed were beginning to crop up "Mr. Vuilleumier, should the program boys stand inside or outside the door?" "Oh, Mr. Woolsey! Mr. Maynard says to collect all the movie tickets of the actors and stage crew or they'll get cuts." Naturally someone had forgotten his ticket and insisted on straightening the matter out right then and there. So it ran, as it always runs.

"One minute to go!"

The cry slides sandpaper down the spinal cord. Little things are suddenly remembered, and it is realized that they must be attended to-NOW! Where's the oil to grease up my body? Were the whiskey glasses washed out after the dress rehearsal? I can't remember what I say when he says.. Who's got a copy of the play?

"Everything set? Curtain!"

The show is on. To one backstage as an impression—of suspense, of anticipation, of confusion, of painful silence. Mr. Woolsey pacing with deliberation from one side of the stage to the other and back, over again and back, again and back. Mr. Vuilleumier nervously fingering his cigarette, then fingering his next cigarette, and his next. looking up at each faulter in the the unversed, as though each word omitted or misplaced in the dia-

INSTRUCTS MEMBERS The Woodworking Club is meet ing regularly every activities hour; generally about eight or ten members attend. On Monday, however, the first of three periods of instruction, which will undoubtedly increase the attendance, will take place. The instruction, given by Mr. James, will be on the use of the tools. Everyone who plans to use the tools should come, because use of the tools will only be given to those who know how to use them correctly and safely. This includes those who have not yet gotten the written consent of their parents to use the tools, but who plan to do so. Monday's instruction on the scroll and ban'd saw will be given by Mr. James, as will the others. On Tuesday the use of a drill press will be -Continued on Page 3 of a lathe will be considered.

Mirror Needs Contributions Offers One-Act For New Fall Term Cover

cover of the Mirror. The only requirements are that it must be in the proportion of $5\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$. As everyone knows, the drawing finally accepted for the cover of this term's issue will earn its artist a prize of \$10, awarded by Dr. Fuess. The deadline is November 15th, so all artists in the student body are urged to start right now in making up a drawing for the cover.

The inside pages, too, require the services of these artists. There however, the cartoon will be the principal feature, and the Mirror plans to have more of them this year than ever before. If there be any in the school who aspire to some day guide the destinies of a comic character such as Smilin' Jack or Terry, he has a wonderful chance now to let the world see his proficiency in the art of drawing cartoons, by having his work printed in the Mirror.

There is still plenty of room for literary contributions, in which field there is also a cash prize awarded. The gentlemen of the English Department are cooperating splendidly in the Mirror drive for material, and the Mirror staff wishes to here express their thanks. However, the student body is urged to write directly for the magazine, besides handing in their themes. This is the best way for those who aspire to a position on the literary board to fulfill their ambitions.

Contributions may be left in the Library or handed to any hoard member.

Besides a new cover, the Mirror is planning several other new feafures to be instituted. Photographs and cartoons are to be used as well "lively character." as an entirely new approach to the associates. LIBRARY OFFERS NEW EXHIBIT

There are two new exhibits on in the library, one on cartoons on the library's sports section.

The former includes such toons as appear in "Low on the War," by the famous English cartoonist, dealing with World War II.; also caricatures of the American Civil War, showing cartooning at its more primitive stages; and drawings of the Spanish War by Luis Quintanilla from the book entitled "All the Brave."

In the collection is also "Mr. Punch's History of the Great War," with cartoons by men such as Bernard Partridge; as well as drawing from Albert Bigelow Paine's The Nast: His Period and His Pictures." In the sports exhibit can be found drawings and photographs from such books as "The Happy Fisherman," by Stephen Gwynn, and illustrated by Roy Beddington; "American Polo," by Newell Bent: a collection of photographs by Alfred F. Loomis from his book, "Yachts Under Sail"; "Scotland's Gift - Golf," reminiscences by Charles Blair Macdonald (1872-1927); "Mr. Romford's Hounds," by R. S. Sourtees, with many colond team 20 to 0. CIRCLE A MEETS TO DISCUSS PLANS

Last Thursday Circle A met at the Log Cabin and discussed plans for the near future. They planned for next week-end an outing for some Lawrence boys. The boys to be entertained are all members of the Lawrence Boys' Club. It is expected that, if weather conditions are favorable, the boys will sleep out at the Log Cabin with several Circle A members

Also plans for a magazine drive some time soon were discussed: the Circle A men hope to coHect a large number of magazines for distribution where they are most needed. Although the members don't know the exact destination of the magazines yet, it is fairly certain that they will be distributed to hospitals and various penal institutions. Please don't throw away any magazines you have now; if you wait a little while for the drive, the Circle A would appreciate it.

P.A. Alumni Day Draws Numerous Graduates To Hill

Colonel Stimson Visits Andover For Gathering

Last Saturday Phillips Academy was pleased to welcome back to its campus the trustees and returning alumni. The school did its best to give its guests a full and eventful day, which included a tea and the football game with Harvard '45. from which we emerged victorious Everyone was pleased that Colonel Stimson found himself able to come up to Andover for the meeting of the trustees.

As one of the three or four reunions of Alumni throughout the year, the October reunion was planned to coincide with the first meeting of the trustees of Phillips Academy. One saw about the grounds men of the classes of the 1900's, and graduates of the class of '41, up from Cambridge or New Haven for the week-end to see whether last year's upper class was keeping up the standard of the school. One and all they were received cordially and, although the institution might have changed some since their time, they were made to feel that they were still a part of their alma mater.

The alumni were kept busy all the time they were here. Peabody House was turned over to them for informal class meetings and the like, while they were given lunch at the Commons and tea at the home of Dr. Fuess after the football game. Then they were given a short talk by school president Elly Vose about the spirit, of the undergraduate body. The brush with the Harvard Freshmen, in which Captain Keuffel's men beat the visitors by a 19:6 score, and the news of the victory of Captain Bush's soccer team over Worcester Academy, added to the general high spirits. Those that stayed for the evening were able to witness the first product of the Dramatic Club this season, the one-act play "Submerged," which was followed by a first-rate action movie with Clark Gable.

The meeting of the Trustees was a success, largely due to the presence of Colonel Stimson, its head, who was able to break away from

SCARCITY OF MOTORS THREATENS MODEL MEET

A hitch has arisen in the Airplane-Club's plan for a meet on the twenty-sixth (next Sunday). The hitch is that the motors for the gas models haven't come yet, and it they don't come before Sunday, the meet, may have to be called off. Even if they don't come before Sunday, there is some chance that the meet will be held for the other models.

There are a number of planes. gas models and otherwise, now nearing completion Some of the gas models will attain amazingly high speeds, so say the builders, the "Fireball" in particular, is supposed to be very fast reaching a maximum speed of around 80 miles per hour. Several of these are under construction now. I am informed that this by now means a high speed for a gas model plane and that speeds in excess of one hundred miles have been obtained.

Congratulations

WELL, let's all sit down at this time and as a group take a true pride in the job which the undergraduate body, likewise as a unit, performed last Saturday here on the Hill. The Alumni were back as a whole to renew every element of their happiest days in undergraduate life. Some were young, some were old, but all were here for the very same purpose. They wanted to see the school which they had represented physically and in the world over a period of many years and judge for themselves the exact place that it was making for itself in education today. They were for one day to be the judges on the success of a great project which for so many years has been building itself up into great game and position in the country and among all the people of all races and all creeds in the nation over a period of many years. For this one day the students as a group were on exhibition. Their show was to determine in a great part the steadfastness and depth of the loyalty of the audience in their wanderings and contacts throughout the nation. In the end it resulted that only old Mother Nature was to intrude upon the general and complete success of the day.

Several hundred old graduates braved overhanging clouds to attend regularly scheduled activities. Captain Ken Keuffel did a beautiful job of entertainment, as did Chappie Arnold and his dance band. Later at the many scheduled meetings of Societies, etc., every element proved very successful and the alumni emerged with the sincere feeling that we of the present generation in Phillips Academy are indeed worthily upholding the ideals and standards which they established as institutions many years ago. The whole day seemed to run off in flawless fashion. Everywhere the earmark of all behaviour was absolute cooperation. Goodwill marked the coming and going of all on the campus. Students did not move as students, nor did graduates move as graduates with a definite air of sectional independence. A complete intermingling of ideals and of purpose was in order during the complete period of this migration.

So by the very successful completion of a very important task in Andover's progressive policy, the undergraduates of Phillips Academy have done a job, the final results of which in the field of national goodwill and support for the school are limitless. For, the impression which those men carried away with them last Saturday night is the opinion upon which the enthusiasm of their support for the school is fundamentally based. With a loyal group of alumni, the heights to which a school can soar are unknown. This height is completely determined by the degree of response. Andover has thus secured itself by the job accomplished by the undergraduates last Saturday, if response to concerted effort is the judging basis. The student body deserves overwhelming credit for the task which they accomplished, and they certainly deserve a hearty "congratulations."

This Andover

The biggest boner pulled as yet in World War II, we believe, was pulled right here in Andover a short time ago. It seems that a Messerschmidt on a secret mission was forced down in the bird sanctuary last week. The bird-bander on duty (the club keeps sentries out there 24 hours a day) thought it was a strange bird, put a band on it, and sent it off. He then ran back to report. When President Jack Raymond heard his description of the "bird" he was furious.

"Arrest this man," he said in a calm, executive tone. He realized immediately what had happened.

"This is precisely the type of inefficiency we are trying to avoid," said General Marshall, Chief of Staff.

"Don't let it happen again," said the president.

"We won't," said Jack Raymond, and thousands of people listening in as this momentous statement was made, felt their confidence restored. They knew that no more Messerschmidts would be mistaken for birds by Bird Banding Club rookies.

Insect life is increasing in Foxcroft Hall. "If the present rate of increase continues," estimates Prof. J. Glycogen Spoon, the famous entomologist, the human inhabitants will have to move out.

A few days ago Reginald made his appearance on the North Side. Reginald was a medium sized Tarantula. He was befriended by some of the North Side residents, and a saucer of milk was set out for him every evening. He was useful in destroying flies, ants, etc., the real plague of the building.

Last Saturday, however, Reginald disappeared and has not been seen since. The Student Council stated that he was not at the Tea Dance, and he was not seen at the football game.

At week's end, Foxcroft inhabitants were frantic as to the whereabouts of Reginald. It is at present suspected by your correspondent that a foul plot, perhaps a kidnapping or even an assassination, was carried out by the combined forces of flies and ants.

This Andover is commencing an investigation of Reginald's fate, and will attempt to devise a system for extermination of the insect danger. We will report to our readers.

The results of our survey have been tabulated. Only 650 students responded to the question, "What is the greatest influence in your life."

Here are the results:

Jane Russel, 604.

Light wines and beers, 25.

This Andover, 10.

The Senior Fence, 5.

The Bird-Banding Club, 5.

Sels McMorris, 1.

We find it amusing and enlightening to get the school's opinions on various topics, and from time to time we will try to run other surveys.

Sport Shots

A glimpse into last Saturday's football games shows no shocking upsets but several interesting results. Big game of the day was Michigan's 14-7 victory over Northwestern. The Wildcats were way on top on first downs, pushing the Wolverines all over the field, but Michigan led in the all-important scoring column 14-7, to take the honors. As was expected, it was Kuzma who sparked Michigan to the win, firing a beautiful 46-yard touchdown pass late in the final period to win the game. Michigan's triumph makes her clash this Saturday with the mighty undefeated Minnesota Gophers look all the more promising. Over eighty thousand fans are expected to view this great spectacle. Northwestern will try to rebound against the powerful Buckeyes of Ohio State in another major clash.

Army's triumph over Yale must have been interesting to these experts who considered this year's Army eleven one of the feeblest ever. Army has been very much underrated by many football observers. It has the finest coaching staff in its history, with Red Blaik, formerly of Dartmouth, as head coach and able Harry Ellinger as line coach. Hank Mazur is one of the finest running passers in the business, a spark plug, who forms the spearhead of Army's attack. Mazur is ably assisted by powerful line-plunger Johnny Hatch, a steady dependable player. Unlike many college teams, Army elevens are always in the prime of physical condition; they can play sixty minutes of real, hard football. Army showed that it had what it takes when it came back, after Yale had scored in the first few minutes of play on a blocked kick, to score three touchdowns and hold the furious Bulldog at bay. No doubt Army will drop one or two games as the season goes on, but Navy better watch out, for the Army is nobody's pushover.

Harvard displayed a powerful line and great punting to upset favored Dartmouth 7-0. Mr. Mc-Turney, the Crimson end, can really boot the pigskin and he's no slouch on those end-arounds, either. Howard has a lineman named Dick Fisher, who put on a one-man show against the G men. He's certainly living up to the high standard of play that was predicted for him last year. Dartmouth flashed plenty of new power, but the Green didn't have the experience to capitalize on it. The Indian ought to finish strong this year, and since Dartmouth will lose only four prominent players and has a very powerful freshman eleven, the Green looks to be headed for some great seasons in the near future. Penn was stalemated for two quarters by a stubborn Princeton team, but in the second half Quaker power threw the Tiger for a 23-0 loss. It looks as if Penn is going to dominate the Ivy League in even more convincing fashion than last season, unless the Quakers are upset by the Big Red of Cornell, a possibility that is not at all unlikely. That Penn-Navy clash about two and a half weeks from now ought to be a lulu.

The football powers of the nation line up something like this right now. On the Pacific coast Santa Clara is tops; in the Midwest it's Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio State, and Notre Dame; in the East, Fordham, Navy, and Pennsylvania; down South, Duke, Texas, Texas A & M, and Clemson. Other teams worth watching are Rice, Tulane, Georgia, Vanderbilt, Temple, Washington, Oregon, and Duquesne. No doubt there'll be an entirely new lineup after next Saturday.

Incidentally, speaking of football games, our boys certainly did all right last Saturday, n'est-ce pas?

Splatter

Biology is daily taking its toll of the upper middle class. Mr. Shields told us the other day about a boy in one of his classes who gave the following definition of regeneration: "Regeneration is the generation of things that have already been generated."

We think Mr. Kinsolving and his automobile outfit should be investigated by some committee or other. According to the "Phillipian," "by 6:30 on Saturday last, they had removed the body, and were nearly ready for the removal of the car." What a bunch of cutthroats!

If either Captain Marvin of the golf team or Hank See will get in touch with us, we'll see what we can do about raising enough money for a few golf balls so that they can play off the final round of the fall tournament. The deposits on a few milk bottles snitched from the beanery might do the trick.

To our mind, Morrissey's Taxi Service has the best ad in the "Phillipian." "Weddings, Funerals, and Baggage Transfer" seems to cover just about every emergency we can think of.

Sunday Preacher

The preacher in the Cochran Chapel this coming Sunday will be the Rev. James Gordon Gilkey of Springfield. The Rev. Mr. Gilkey has preached here on many occasions in the past.

Tex Furse's' knee is still in bad shape. Last week it was doubtful whether he'd start against Harvard, but his knee healed quickly, and he saw plenty of action. He might possibly he rested on Saturday next.

The Cubs completed only one pass, by the way, and that was the one on which they scored.

With a punt average of 39, 1-4 vards, the Blue reached a new high this season. The record had previously been 37 1-2 yards in the Northeastern game.

Jack Fisher, who will long be remembered as last year's great leader, played his last game of his career on Brothers Field-the gridiron where he rose to fame as-one of the greatest prep school centers in the country.

missed many close ones. The second half was much the same as the first with Andover threatening continually but never getting any goals. Skip McKinley had a free shot in the fourth quarter which he handled very well, in fact it was so close that almost everyone but the referee thought that it went right in the goal, but as there were no nets on the goals nobody was sure and the referee called it over The game ended soon after this with Captain Bush's team adding another victory to their chain.

The most outstanding players on the first string are the two guards, Captain Ted Escholz and Cliff Stevens. Playing well are also the two tackles, Jerry Twoomey and Sherwood Stockwell. The ends are Dave Toll and eiher Hall or Boechenstein, and the first string center is Whitney. Midgley is an outstanding blocking back, and Skip Reed is playing well. Machaj is an excellent passer, runner and kicker, and he and Jim Conroy play at the halfback position. Stu Arnold is also one of the best players.

Coaches Green, for the line, and Follansbee, for the backfield, predict great things for Jack Pidgeon, who recently converted from tackle. Jack Morris and Wideline are promising backs.

Targets Arrive For Archery Club

With the arrival of the target purchased by the Outing Club, the Archery Club at last began its first season at Andover. The group is, however, still handicapped by the lack of bows and arrows, which, in has been named, will enlarge its many cases, are being sent from the boys' homes, or are being purchased by Mr. Paradise.

Up to date the main activity has been trying out different distances from the target, which has been placed either thirty, sixty, or a hundred yards from the shooter.

As the members of the newly-established club will begin to improve, parties will set out for the forests and fields to rove. With each such group there will be an instructor who will point out to the boys natural targets, which had been placed there before.

During the winter term the organization's members will use the Outing Club's shop to make their

It is hoped that with the joining of more boys for the club, several targets will be purchased and perhaps even an Archery Club hut

J. A. TO PLAY OUTSIDE GAME

F Picked Teams To Face Gov. Dummer

This afternoon the Junior Athletic six-man football and soccer teams will have their first outside games. Governor Dummer will see the first teams of the Romans and Gauls descend upon them, while Brooks School meets the J. A. booters. It is yet too early in the season for either teams to be working at maximum efficiency, but some fine playing may well be expected.

The Romans who lead the J. A. league, and the Gauls who trail, will each play one half of the game against Governor Dummer. The lineups will be:

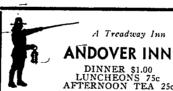

ROMANS GAULS Ward, c c, Crehor Homer, re re, Bell Dixon, le le, Munsil rhb, Miller McCracken, rhb . Ward, lhb lhb. Ryan Sper, qb qb, Eastham In the near future the other two teams, the Saxons and Greeks, who are in second and third place, will give the Dummer boys a return game. The plan of having each club play separately eliminates the complications of picking an all-star team. It would take more time to develop new plays than it would be worth if this were done.

The soccer men, however, have had to pick one squad from all the clubs because this afternoon's game will be eleven man and not seven man as they are accustomed to. The starting lineup picked from all clubs this afternoon will be: Fuller, g; H. P. Hayden, rfb; Kohler, rhb; Page, chb; Homer, lfb; Dake, lhb; Wirtz, rof; Chance, rif; Keeler, lof; Gerlach, lif; Bergstrom. cf.

This team has been practicing together, and, although there is yet room for improvement, it is showing up very well. Particularly outstanding are Keeler and Gerlach on the forward line.

Last Monday the Gaul six-man team downed the Greek aggregation by the convincing score of 19 to 6. The first Gaul touchdown and

With the Saxons still in the lead, the Intra-Club tennis competitions are slowly coming to an end. This afternoon the last doubles matches are expected to be played.

Spot Light

On Thursday afternoon, October 16, a new field of exploration was The American Foundation of the Blind invited a select group of dramatic critics to be present at the first hearing of a "talking book" record of a play. The production chosen for the premiere recording was Maxwell Anderson's Elizabeth, the Queen," with the main parts taken by Mady Christians as the Queen, and Wesley Addy as Essex.

One of the distinguished guests it the gathering was Helen Keller and her secretary, Polly Thompson. Miss Keller, although familiar with the play through reading history and essays, was tremendously excited with the presentation, as were most of the other blind persons who had had no previous experience with the drama.

The records are made in the studios of The American Foundation o fthe Blind in New York City, and from here 150 copies are shipped to 27 blind libraries throughout the country. Other plays that have been recorded are 'Our Town," "Ah Wilderness," and King Richard II."

An item from Hollywood that has created somewhat of a ripple in the daily doings of the film colony is the suspension of Deanna Durthe cup of victory. Upheld by such bin by her studio, Universal, for refusing to act in her latest picture unless the studio bosses agreed to accept her requests for changes in both the script and cast. We feel genuinely sorry not as lucky in their winnings, about this development in Miss Perhaps holding themselves in Durban's career, for up until now restraint, the teams have not yet she had given every indication of becoming, at no late date, one of the most versatile comediennes in filmland. Let's hope that these silly differences are ironed out as quickly as possible.

The latest occupant of the Radio City Musical Hall is R. K. O's production of Stephen Vincent Benet's story of the New England Hills, The Devil and Daniel Webster." The title has been changed to That Money Can Buy," but this is as far as the alterations go. Still remaining intact is the saga of Jabez Stone, and how, in return for seven years of wealth and riches, he sold his soul to the devil.

Of course the story is a tall one, out it is one that truly mirrors the characer of a died-in-the-wool New Englander. Walter Huston as the Devil, Edward Arnold as Daniel Webster, together with excellent photography and a superb supporting cast help make the picture one of the more intelligent presentations of the current year.
