

HEY NEW STUDENTS, WELCOME TO ANDOVER

This special edition of The Phillipian contains advice from students, recent Andover news, information on Andover sports and arts, tips on navigating campus, and events to look forward to. We hope you enjoy.

Commentary, A2

Advice From Returning Students

Six students wrote to The Phillipian offering advice for new students.

News, A3

News Highlights From the 2023-2024 School Year

Read important news stories from last year.

Sports & Arts & The Eighth Page, A4 Sports and Arts and The Eighth Page

An overview of all things sports and arts and humor at Andover.

Guides A5-A6

Campus Guides & Events

Learn tips for your first year at Andover and events to look forward to this fall.

SUBSCRIBE/ADVERTISE

Email us with requests:
phillipian@phillipian.net
Subscribe online at:
phillipian.net/subscribe.

The Phillipian

Vol. CXLVII
The oldest preparatory newspaper in the United States. Founded 1857. Phillips Academy

Louisa S. Carter Editor in Chief	Arts Annabel Tu Sophie Tung Wendi Ying	Illustration Avery Lin Clariss Shin Kira Stepanova
Jacqueline J. Gordon Executive Editor	Commentary Leilani Glace Amy Oku	Layout Connor Gleason Daniel Seong Audrey Wan
Heyon Choi Executive Digital Editor	Copy Mia Burton Claire Cheng Thao Pham Kendra Tomala	Multilingual Sophia Geng Noel Kim
Tianyi Evans Y. Gu Managing Editor	Digital Christina Cho Nate Liang Kai Mafunga Kevin Niu	News Will Ge Cathy Ma
Alice He Managing Editor	Eighth Page Theo Sfikas Charles Vest	Photo Alex Lee Leena Rustum Albert Tsao
Valencia M. Zhang Chief Financial Officer	Graphic Design Claire Wang James Xiao Abby Zhu	Sports Sophia Cratty Angie Lucia Nabilah Nazar Henry Snow
	Finance Suvir Virmani	Video Edward Chen Leo Sim
	Outreach Jaceil Britton	Business Julia Fox Philip Meng

Associate Positions

Arts Adele Ciociola Stella Seong Penelope Tong	Eighth Page Piper Lasater David O'Neill	News Jeanne Kosciusko-Morizet Cade Rutkoske Prisha Shivani Bailey Xu
Business Sophia Lazar Angela Zhao	Graphic Design Lucille Heyd Kelvin Ma	Photo Ethan Liu Kelvin Ma Ishaan Padmawar
Commentary Micheal Kawooya Cleo Xu	Illustration Sophie Staii Nathan Wu	Sports Kate Rodgers David Siahaan Theo Wei Michael Williamson
Copy Hayden Fischer Sahana Manikandan Mira Phan Claire Tong	Layout Siona Chan Jess Jeon Gracie Aziabor	Video Mike Stout Nathan Egbuna
Digital Jay Jung Cam Manzo Andre Wu	Multilingual Abigail Kim

Staff Positions

Arts Emma Greenhut Hluma Mangucu	Business Sydney Jan Kai Wang	Commentary Grace Kim Shloak Shah	Eighth Page Kate Rodgers
Illustration Angela Guo Kara Horne	News Christian Estrada Niki Tavakoli	Sports Alex Dimnaku Ethan Ly	Video Morgan Hsu

Wisdom From Returning Students

Find Your Way to Stay Grounded

ADDISON DENG

COURTESY OF ADDISON DENG

I wish someone told me to take more photos. More photos of math formulas written on the board, of essay expectations due next class, of my friend slipping in front of a dozen people on the pool deck while being chased with a camera and pair of swim goggles, because within the fast-paced blur of Andover, photos were what kept me grounded from spiraling into what-ifs, grades, and classes of the future. So, my advice for you is to do the same in finding your method to remain in the present. In all honesty, Andover can get very overwhelming as I was constantly stressing about my next test, game, meet, essay, meeting, practice. By taking photos, I was able to capture and simply freeze each frame of my life, consequently stopping and pulling all rapid, complicated motion within my brain back to the focused present which mediated anxiety and burn-outs. So I hope that you, too, will find a method to help you take Andover one step at a time.

Give Yourself Time and Space to Grow

MICHEAL KAWOOYA

C. BARBIE/THE PHILLIPIAN

My biggest piece to incoming students would be to allow yourself time and space to grow and adjust to Andover. When I came to PA, I was interested in biology, had never sung in an acapella group before, and was terrified at the idea of being away from home for longer than a few weeks. However, as the months passed, and I explored and became familiar with my new environment, my interests grew and evolved as well. In hindsight, it is often simple for me to forget that I didn't magically arrive at the person and Andover student I am today, without venturing outside of my comfort zone. As new members of the PA community, you will acclimate to the ins and outs of boarding school, and concurrently grow as a person. Don't be hard on yourself if this process is difficult, awkward, and most importantly—long.

Try Anything and Everything

SARAYA ANGBAZO

COURTESY OF SARAYA ANGBAZO

When people tell you to “try anything and everything”, seriously, try anything and everything! Andover is all about giving you new experiences and opportunities to branch out in all aspects of student life: academically with teachers, socially with peers, and even internally with yourself. Regardless of what you do on campus, everything you do here teaches you more about yourself. You learn about what you truly love most, and the ability to do that at Andover from even the young age of 14 is inspiring to me. Try it all, because you'll never know what it'll lead you to!

Be Kind, Remember Who You Are, and Adventure

NAIMA REID

COURTESY OF NAIMA REID

Be kind to everyone. This will be your home for the foreseeable future, so don't close yourself off. Your best friend—or your future teammate or classmate or teacher—could be anyone. Kindness goes a long way and will only help you during your time here. Secondly, remember who you are. I know people say “be yourself” all the time, and it can sound meaningless, but changing yourself just to fit in is miserable. Everyone worthwhile will like you for who you are. Also, just because your parents aren't here doesn't mean you should abandon their expectations. Values and good decision-making are just as important—if not more so—than being agreeable. Act in a way you'd like to be remembered. Lastly, be adventurous. It's okay to gravitate toward more comfortable settings, but give yourself a chance with the unfamiliar—whether it's people, places, or activities—because things can grow on you over time.

Keep Yourself Open

GIULIANA CARDINALE

COURTESY OF GIULIANA CARDINALE

Come in with no expectations and be curious about everything — go to every event, don't cement yourself into one friend group because by the end of the year it will probably change, and have fun with the fact that you are completely new. Andover can feel really big coming in and imposter syndrome really does impact everyone, so keep yourself open with friend groups and clubs. Meet as many people as you can and try everything because the club or group of people you end up really sticking with over your Andover career is sometimes not the one you came into Andover wanting to pursue.

Reach Out, Ask For Help

JONATHAN OH

COURTESY OF JONATHAN OH

Asking for help is the best thing you can do for yourself during your first year at Andover. For me, classes only got harder as each term passed, and coming from a middle school where I could get by with not asking any questions and still be at the top of my class, I struggled to ask for help in my classes, even when the courseload started to get overwhelming. Acknowledging that I couldn't push through the Andover workload alone did take vulnerability and a hit on my ego, but once I realized how accepting and welcoming the teachers, faculty, and my peers were, I saw so many different opportunities open up for me to grow and fully take advantage of everything Andover provides. So ask as many questions as you need, use conference period to bring things up to your teacher (even if hitting the Den for a smoothie might seem like the better idea), and sign up for a peer tutor! It really helps!

The Phillipian welcomes all letters to the Editor. We try to print all letters, but because of space limitations, we enforce a 500-word limit. We reserve the right to edit all submitted letters. Letters must be responses to articles already published by The Phillipian. We will not publish any anonymous letters. Please submit letters by the Monday of each week to phillipian@phillipian.net or to our newsroom in the basement of Morse Hall.

To subscribe, email subscribe@phillipian.net, or write to The Phillipian, 180 Main Street, Andover, Ma, 01810.

All contents of The Phillipian copyright © 2017, The Trustees of Phillips Academy, Inc. Reproduction of any material herein without the expressed written consent of The Trustees of Phillips Academy, Inc. and the Editorial Board of The Phillipian is strictly prohibited.

CORRECTIONS:

Nate Liang '25 and Saraya Angbazo '25 Elected 2024-2025 Student Body Co-Presidents

LOUISA CARTER & JACQUELINE GORDON

Following the Co-Presidential debate during the All-School Meeting (ASM) on March 22, Nate Liang '25 and Saraya Angbazo '25 were elected as the 2024-2025 Student Body Co-Presidents. Throughout Spring Term, they will transition into their roles as the previous Co-Presidents, Eleanor DeHoog '24 and Ryan Lam '24, complete their tenure.

The pair initially met on registration day during their Junior Year. Over the years they found their own paths through Andover, before deciding to run for Co-President together in Upper Year. Liang noted how their different experiences have helped shape their platform and campaign.

"We met each other on the first day, on registration day, and we went off to do different things [Junior] and Lower Year. But when it came down to figuring out who to run with, we realized we each have done so many different things and met so many different people. [We have] the perspectives that Andover is looking for and the drive to get down what we say we will," said Liang.

During their campaign, the pair met with faculty and students to discuss their four initiatives: creating recreational spaces, ASM reform, sleepover visitations, and introducing a club bulletin. A week after the election, the pair has already begun to plan the upcoming year. Looking forward, Liang highlighted the importance of planning and building connections.

"Our first plan as co-presidents is to establish a timeline and foster strong, open relationships with the Deans/faculty team that we will be working with [during] our tenure. We want to maximize the time we can put towards our initiatives, so we will begin setting up meetings and creating a timeline for them in the coming days. We know that ASMs are planned months in advance, so it is our goal to meet with the ASM committee this Spring in order to ensure the feasibility of ASM Reform. Club Bulletin and Rec Spaces are two of our smaller initiatives, so we hope to push those as well during our meetings so that they are ready for September. We see Sleepover Visitations as a long-term goal, which is why we'll tackle this later next year. Right now, we can't wait to kick off class rep elections in forming the 2024-2025 Student Council!" said Liang in an email to The Phillipian.

Angbazo continued, "We've achieved our first accomplishment: meeting with Nor and Ryan to hear feedback and better understand the role of co-presidents ahead of us! In our meeting, we discussed takeaways from the 23-24 school year and goals for the 24-25 school year, regarding specific initiative work, student council and Dean's team collaboration, and the general, day-to-day tasks."

Directly after receiving the news about being elected Co-Presidents, Angbazo and Liang reflected on the campaign process and shared their gratitude for all of the support throughout their election.

"When we found out we felt so in awe and so lucky and appreciative of the Andover community and our friends who, throughout this process, have stuck by us and supported us and rooted for us, and ultimately helped bring us to where we are," said Angbazo.

Liang continued, "Thank you, from the bottom of our hearts. We are so grateful that you have given us the opportunity to make Andover a better place. We have met so many of you throughout the process, and we are so happy that we will be getting to work with the rest of the student council, but more specifically with every single one of you to address the things you think need to be addressed at Andover."

Editor's Note: Nate Liang is a Digital Editor for The Phillipian.

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Meet Your Blue Key Heads 2024-2025!

Marcela Hernandez:
"Go Big Blue! I'm so excited to get started!"

Ginny Marshall:
"Surreal! Surreal!"

Max Herbison: "I am looking forward to a great school year with Jaylen Daley: "I love y'all! We love y'all! We're so excited to sup-

Meg Stinemen: "Best day of my life! I am so excited and grateful."

Margot Furman:
"This is the best day ever."

Jaciel Britton: "I'm excited, and I have the best [BKH] Mom. I'm so

Serafina Shin-von Nordendlycht: "Thank you so much, I'm so excited!"

Byron Johnson: "I just want to have a great time. Looking forward to the chanting, to the pep rallies."

Andrew Massicotte:
"I am most looking forward to Big Blue passoon, freedom, and dreams"

A. LEE/THE PHILLIPIAN

Students Seek More Education on Israel and Palestine

JONATHAN OH & BAILEY XU

More than 75 percent of Andover students do not feel the school has adequately educated them about Israel and Palestine, according to The Phillipian's 2024 State of the Academy (SOTA).

SOTA is the annual anonymous survey sent out to Andover's student body containing 146 questions regarding aspects of student life on campus, politics and worldview, education, and more.

After Hamas launched an attack on Israel on October 7, 2023, The Phillipian published an editorial on October 13 calling for the school to provide education on the matter. Later that morning during All-School Meeting, Head of School Raynard Kington spoke briefly on conflict in the Middle East, noting that educational programming would be available soon. Seven weeks later, on December 6, Frank Tipton, former Instructor in History at Andover, delivered a 75-minute introduction to the history of Israel and Palestine, entitled "Israel-Palestine 101." As of May 2024, the school has not organized another educational opportunity intended for the full campus community.

Sami Tokat '26, Co-Head of the Muslim Student Association (MSU) and upcoming Co-President of Southwest Asian and North African Society (SWANA), viewed Tipton's presentation as a relatively neutral explanation of the history between Israel and Palestine. However, he noted the pause in Andover's efforts to bring light to the situation, despite the conflict's continued development.

"We wanted something more unbiased, and that's what we got with [Tipton's presentation]. But after that, nothing really came afterward, and that's really important because this situation is changing, it's an active situation. The attacks happened on October 7. This conflict didn't end on October 8, it's still going on, and it's still ever-changing, and it's still dynamic," said Tokat.

Prior to Tipton's talk, the Office of Community and Multicultural Development (CaMD) hosted a conversation between the members of the Muslim Student Association (MSA), SWANA, and Jewish Student Union (JSU) to better understand how the conflict was affecting students, according to an email statement to The Phillipian from Kington. Subsequently, Co-Heads of MSA, JSU, and SWANA published a Letter to the Editor on November 3 declaring their unity and mutual solidarity. CaMD also invited educators from the Fig Tree Alliance to meet with members from the chaplaincy and students from the JSU, MSA, and SWANA.

Ella Kowal '25, President of the JSU, commended these initial efforts but spoke on the importance of having continued efforts that address the ongoing conflict, noting the risks of having it fall into the background.

"We started off really strong, having Tipton come speak, and then we kind of just forgot about it. Obviously, the conflict is still going on and obviously, anti-Semitism in the United States is rising, so there needs to be more to address both, whether that's consistently bringing speakers in talking about anti-Semitism in our institution [or] understanding what's going on recently. It's definitely something that's going on. It seems like other things have just taken precedence and we've just stopped having these conversations. That's the danger," said Kowal.

Regarding the SOTA statistic, Rabbi Joshua Greenberg, Andover's Jewish Chaplain, applauded students for recognizing their incomplete knowledge, noting that Andover is the place to learn.

"Specifically for our community here, based on the resources that have been available, while not exhaustive and not perfect, [organizing Tipton's talk] was better than nothing. I find it very inspiring that students here are humble enough to admit that they don't know everything, are honest enough about that, and display a sense of curiosity to learn more," said Greenberg.

He continued, "My message to students at Andover, or the 76 percent of students who don't know enough is, good for you for acknowledging that you don't know enough. That's not on the students. In fact, I mean, obviously, it's cliché, but we're a school. This is a high school. What's a better place to learn about something?"

Kington confirmed future initiatives to continue conversations on the campus both this and next year. He connected this programming to the broader goal of fostering civil discourse for difficult topics.

"Looking ahead, CaMD, the Dean of Students Office, College Counseling, and [Rebecca M.] Sykes Wellness Center are planning an opportunity for Seniors to discuss the protests on college campuses and the impact this will have on their entrance into college. And for all of us returning to campus in the fall, I look forward to introducing programming aimed at building our capacity for civil discourse and respectful discussions. This initiative will be broadly framed and not only applicable to discussion around the Middle East conflict," wrote Kington in an email to The Phillipian on May 22.

Andover by the Numbers

Data provided by Andover Admissions Office

Newly Admitted Students

Overall Admit Rate: 13%

3322 applications were completed in total

New Students Are From:

32 states
*The Admissions Office received applications from 50 states.

27 foreign countries
*The Admissions Office received applications from 112 foreign countries.

Boarding vs. Day Students

74.0%
of enrolled students are boarding students.

26.0%
of enrolled students are day students.

A 83%
of admitted students matriculated

Newly Admitted Underrepresented Students of Color

80%
of underrepresented students of color matriculated

26%
of newly enrolled students are underrepresented students of color.

H. CHOI/THE PHILLIPIAN

All About Arts

A.LEE/THE PHILLIPIAN
Mink-Khue Doba '24, Mia Pao '24, and Adele Ciociola '25 dance at Grasshopper.

Winter

Winter Term is filled with performances and events from the musical to the annual holiday ASM. Students gather for the Abbot Cabaret, Andover's winter talent show, to watch their peers perform in a cappella groups, bands, and more.

A.CHINN/THE PHILLIPIAN
Jacob Kaiser '24 leaps into the air in Andover's rendition of The Nutcracker

A.LEE/THE PHILLIPIAN
Kelly Yang '24 showcases her piece "Eternal Return" at the Art 600 show.

Fall

During Fall Term, Andover welcomes the year with a host of arts events. Highlights include Grasshopper - the talent show on Family Weekend - and the pep rally where dance groups such as Blue Strut, JVNE, and Slam perform.

Spring

Arts continue to thrive in Spring Term with senior recitals and performances at the Earth Festival. Independent Projects conclude with showcases and the Art 600 show spotlights the year-long cumulation of Senior artwork.

Campus Music Ensembles

- Keynotes
- Yorkies
- Azure
- Fidelio
- Concert
- Jazz
- Symphony
- Orchestra
- Chamber
- Amadeus
- Gospel Choir
- Handbell Choir

A.LEE/THE PHILLIPIAN

Campus Dance Groups

- Blue Strut
- SLAM
- JVNE
- Fusion
- Hypnotiq
- Footnotes
- Bollywood Dance Club
- Asian Performing Arts Club (APAC)
- Photon

A.LEE/THE PHILLIPIAN

All About Sports

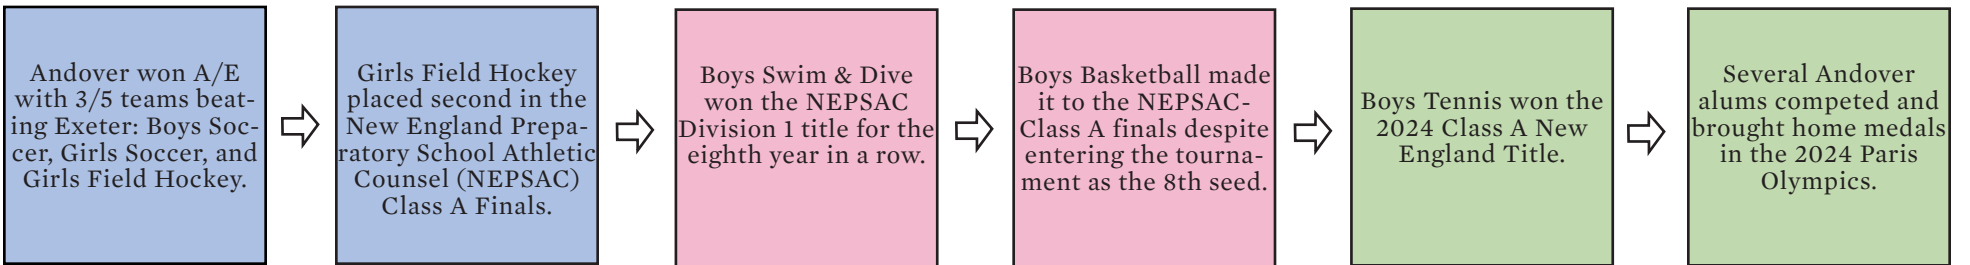

Fall A/E

At the end of Fall Term, Andover and Exeter compete in the historic A/E rivalry, which alternates between schools each year. This year, Andover will host Fall A/E and will have the annual pep rally the Friday night before.

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

2023-2024 Highlights

An Eighth Page Welcome

“This will be year I get boyfriend.”

“Senior fall is gonna be light. My dad’s college roommate’s cousin’s dogsitter’s mom knows the Dean of Admissions at Harvard so I’m basically in.”

“What was your SSAT score?”

“I did some light reading this summer, Hillbilly Elegy and Becoming. Just the classics.”

“I hear you get +10000 aura points for being on The Phillipian.”

“I’m pretty sure Dr. Kington knows my name.”

“Promise we will be friends past freshman fall?”

“Does the lanyard go with my outfit?”

OVERHEARD ON THE PATHS

Weeks Top Headlines

- Peacock Releases First Episode of “Love Island: Freshman Fall Edition”
- PGs on Why They are Thrilled for Another Year of High School
- CVS Employees Ecstatic to See Their Favorite Upper-Class Kleptos Return

Andover Slang

- "A/E" Andover/Exeter, the sports competition that happens between Andover and Phillips Exeter at the end of every fall and winter term
- "ASM" All-School Meeting, a Friday meeting that all students must attend every week
- "The Den" & "Den Run" When students make a trip to buy snacks at the Den (a colloquial name for Susie's)
- "G-Hop" Grasshopper, the fall term student talent show that occurs over Family Weekend
- "Junior/Lower/Upper" Formal terms for ninth, tenth, and eleventh grade students (note: generally, juniors are just referred to as freshmen)
- "The Knoll" Pine Knoll cluster
- "Lawning" Hanging out or studying on a grassy area, commonly the Great Lawn
- "PACS" Phillips Academy Campus Safety (978-749-4444 - save this to your phone!)
- "Plip" The Phillipian
- "The Quads" West Quad North and West Quad South clusters
- "RayK" Andover's current Head of School, Dr. Raynard Kington
- "Sam Phil" Samuel Phillips Hall, the large building at the center of campus that houses history and language classrooms
- "Silent" Garver Room in the OWHL: an entirely silent study space for independent work
- "Sliding" When students choose not to participate in an athletic activity for one term (only available to Uppers and Seniors)

Campus Guide: Study Spots

- 1. George Washington Hall (GW)
First floor lobby features fun and vibrant seating. GW also houses Andover's mailroom, performance theaters, day student lockers, and administrative offices.
- 2. Addison Gallery of American Art
Quiet study environment amongst shelves of art history books. Need a break? Stroll through the Addison's traveling exhibitions and permanent collections. Limited hours.
- 3. Morse Hall
Math, computer science, and statistics help offered on most weeknights. Connected to Morse is the Community and Multicultural Diversity (CaMD) office that offers spaces for various clubs, affinity groups, and collaborative study.
- 4. Pearson Hall
Chalkboards and wooden desks – home to Andover's historic classical language classrooms. Pearson also houses the Academic Skills Center (ASC) that offers accessibility services, study help, and quiet rooms for working.
- 5. Oliver Wendell Holmes Library (OWHL)
A wide variety of study spaces. Ask for research help from librarians at the front desk, reserve a study room, or craft projects in the Makerspace.
- 6. Gelb Science Center
Science help offered on most weeknights. Large whiteboards and seating can be found in the Gelb hallways for collaborative study.
- 7. Paresky Commons
Contains four main seating areas; sit anywhere you'd like with anyone you want. The bottom-left quadrant of the building, nicknamed "Lower Left," is the quietest and often the most studious. Work on a group project over food and drinks.
- 8. Pan Athletic Center
Colorful booth-style and table seating in an open environment. Stop by the newly-built pool, dance studios, and wrestling facilities in the Pan if you have the chance!
- 9. Snyder Center
Second floor offers modern seating while overlooking the indoor track, squash courts, and Phelps stadium.

Follow us on social media!

@thephillipian

The Phillipian

State of the Academy (SOTA)

The State of the Academy (SOTA) is an annual survey conducted independently by The Phillipian that serves to gain a better understanding of the student body. This anonymous survey asks a comprehensive set of questions comprising of nine sections: General, Politics & Worldview, Education, Wellness, Drugs & Alcohol, Sex, Campus Culture, Community Diversity, and Discipline.

Scan the QR code above or visit sota.phillipian.net to view the most recent edition of SOTA, which was done in the spring of 2024 with a participation rate of 74.4% (859 students).

Downtown Delights!

Go-to spots for students in downtown Andover

Restaurants

Kokoro Craft Udon - hearty udon bowls and Japanese-style appetizers + side dishes (978-783-3920)

UBurger - burgers, fries, shakes, and other fast food (978-809-3338)

OTTO - rustic pizza (617-588-6910)

La Rosa's - Italian specialties, gourmet sandwiches, fresh pasta and salads (978-475-1777)

Pazzo Pizza Co. - Neopolitan style pizza and pasta (978-409-2268)

Casa Blanca - classic Mexican eats (978-289-4165)

ShoYu - Chinese and Japanese restaurant serving sushi and other pan-Asian favorites (978-409-1494)

Akita Ramen - Japanese ramen and rice bowls (978-409-1077)

Perry's Plate - classic American brunch (978-409-1814)

Karma - sushi and Chinese, Korean, and Thai cuisine (978-809-3075)

Brooksy's - wood-fired pizza straight from the brick oven and signature American fare (978-783-3654)

Coffee

Dunkin' Donuts

Ultimate Perk - cash only!

Starbucks

Perfecto's Caffe - bagels, pastries, coffee, sandwiches, and salads (20 minute walk from campus, most students typically order: 978-749-7022)

Caffe Nero - popular study spot with pastries, coffee, and quick bites

Sweet Treats

Sweet Mimi's - quaint chocolate and candy shop

Cup 89 - gelato and bubble tea

J.P. Lick's - classic ice cream and other frozen treats (a student favorite!)

HOW TO JOIN THE PHILLIPIAN

The Phillipian is Phillips Academy's weekly student-run newspaper that has been publishing since 1857. We strive to represent all voices of the student body through journalism, and with a board composed of Editorial, Digital, and Business sections, we have a place for any of your passions and skills. No prior experience necessary! If you have questions or concerns, feel free to email Upper Management at um@phillipian.net.

I want to get involved! I'm interested in...

Business

Business: manage finances of The Phillipian, handle advertisements and funding

Digital/Visual Media

Digital: upload articles online, web development and coding

Illustration: draw and create illustrations for articles

Writing

Arts: write about performances and exhibits, fashion features

News: write about current events at Andover

Scan this QR code to join!

Graphic Design: create visual graphics, major role in creating SOTA (State of the Academy)

Photo: take photos to supplement articles in all sections, provide additional visual content

Commentary: contribute your opinions, hot takes, or shower thoughts

Sports: write game coverage, team features, sports opinion

Layout: configure articles and visual content on InDesign for print

Video: event coverage, create both short-form and long-form original content

8th Page: all you need is a sense of humor :)

Multilingual: translate or write articles in another language

Copy: check for grammar, mechanics, and styling consistencies

FALL EVENTS

GRASSHOPPER

R. NASSERZADEH/THE PHILLIPIAN

A. TSAO/THE PHILLIPIAN

PHILLIPS ACADEMY AND COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

A. LEE/THE PHILLIPIAN

A. LEE/THE PHILLIPIAN

A/E

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

COURTESY OF PHILLIPS ACADEMY

SPIRIT WEEK