Day of Prayer for Colleges.

Dr. Moxom of Boston gave a most interesting address at Chapel Thursday afternoon, it being day of prayer for schools and colleges. The speaker's personal appearance was striking. His delivery was pleasing and his voice and gesture were strong and cultured. His whole discourse was full and informal and spoken directly to the fellows. After a happy introduction, he spoke of soldier element in practical life, and in carrying out his thoughts, he set forth the three essentials of a soldier, viz—courage, obedience, and discipline.

In the opening of his discourse he gave many reminiscences of his career in the war. Speaking of war, he said, "War is revolting, but there is something in the capacity man has for war which must remain after flags have been unfurled and wars have ceased. There are certain terms indicated by the word soldier which are the best in man's nature."

Obedience. "Boys," he said, "do not like to obey, especially when they are told. It is something to learn the worth of obedience. I am glad of my army training, for I learned there to do what I was told." He spoke of the "Charge of the Light Brigade," and paid a feeling tribute to that act of courageous obedience. He finally spoke of discipline. He said, "It is that which takes one from the circumference of life and puts him at the centre. These are the qualities which make life full and manly. To such life I invite you to-day."

The address was remarkably interesting throughout, and was enjoyed by all the fellows.

New Literary Magazine.

For several months the project of starting a literary magazine in the school has been thoroughly discussed. Without doubt there is sufficient material here to maintain such a publication, but the question arises; will that material come forward and give its firm support to the paper. Another and even more serious difficulty confronts us when we consider the financial department, but after careful consideration by those most interested, it has been decided that this obstacle may be overcome. In gauging the value of such a publication, it is necessary for the school to have in mind not so much the actual intrinsic value, as the benefit that will accrue from having such an organ for literary advancement in the academy. Before voting to start this magazine every member of the school ought to consider very carefully whether or not he will support the editors elected both by contributions and subscriptions; for it will require the backing of the entire school to bring any marked degree of success to the enterprise. The members of the faculty have given the subject much consideration and have decided that the plan is feasible. It is necessary for the school to understand that, by appointing a board of editors to publish a literary magazine, it morally binds itself to support them in every way and to forward the interests of the magazine. The conditions under which the paper may be established can be briefly summed up in the following words. Philo will give the Mirror over to the school with the understanding that if ever published less than six times a year, it shall again come under the control of the Philo Society. In place of the Mirror, an annual will be published by Philo. The new magazine will be substantially called The Mirror, and, at first, will be published at the beginning, middle and end of the first term, and at the middle and end of the other terms.

Henry Grew.

Mr. Henry Grew, one of our oldest alumni, has recently died in Boston, at the age of 84 years. His parents came from England at the beginning of the century, and, settling in Boston, placed young Grew in the Academy in 1819, where he remained until 1822. By the death of his father he was obliged to give up school and begin to work in order to support his widowed mother, who was left almost penniless with a number of young children. At 16 years of age he was clerk in a prominent Boston dry goods house, but soon went into business for himself, where he succeeded so well that in 1845 he retired and established a home in Hyde Park.

Although Mr. Grew was in the Academy but a short time, yet his interest in the school was very great, and during the last few years he has been a prominent worker in the re-endowment scheme, giving very generously to the cause. Notwithstanding his age, he attended all of the public occasions here, as well as the alumni re-unions in New York and Boston.

Among his schoolmates at Andover were lawyers like Robert Rantoul, James C. Alvord, who afterwards married his sister Ann, Judge Seth Ames, and Nathaniel J. Lord; clergymen like President Stearns of Amherst, Bishop Howe, Dr. Alexander H. Vinton, Dr. Silas Aiken; physicians like Dr. Isaac Ray of Philadelphia and Dr. Bradford L. Wales of Randolph; poets like Nathaniel P. Willis, and Isaac McLellan; essayists like Edmund Quincy and Wilson Flagg; Gov. Hoppin of Rhode Island, Hon. Samuel H. Wesley, William Phillips, Samuel Hopkins, the historian, Samuel F. Haven, LL.D., the antiquarian, and Theodore Weld, the reformer, his life-long friend, and for many years his neighbor in Hyde Park.

Athletics in Universities and Colleges.

We have often been obliged to confess, though it sometimes requires some courage to do so, that we are of the number of those who are skeptical in regard to the great benefits to result to society and to the state from the great modern revival, if it be really such, of athletics in schools and colleges. That a liberal proportion of vigorous physical exercise is indispensable to the student of every degree goes, of course, without saying.

It is, we suppose, quite in accordance with the tendency of mankind to be always in extremes, that we have now alighted upon a time when in many a university athletics have usurped the place of honor, and the highest ambition of the average student is to get a place in some team of players or rowers. A slight indication of a change for the better is, we may hope, to be found in the fact that the two oldest universities in America, Harvard and Yale, which have hitherto found their only means of contact in their athletic contests, are now devising opportunities of comparing themselves with each other intellectually, and arrangements have been completed, we are told, for a series of intercollegiate contests on the debating floor. We cannot but regard it as a distinct step toward elevating the character of intercollegiate contests when a meeting in the intellectual instead of the physical arena has been arranged for.—Toronto Week.

The Joint Debate.

Word has been received from Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, '56, that he will preside at the second joint debate between the Yale and Harvard Unions. The debate will be held at the Hyperion, probably on March 25, although the date has not yet been definitely fixed upon. Owing to some dissatisfaction on the part of Harvard, it has been decided to change the question, and accordingly four questions have been sent by the Yale Union, from which Harvard will select one. The original question read, "Resolved, That a college education unfits a man for business life." Yale had the negative. There will be three speakers on each side and each will be limited to fifteen minutes.

THE ANDOVER PRESS, PRINTERS.

By the death of Charles F. Loring, P.A. '74, of Melrose, the Academy loses one of its ablest alumni and also an excellent friend. After his graduation from Phillips, Mr. Loring took up the study of law and having been admitted to the Suffolk bar, at once rose to distinction and popularity. An ardent Republican, he held many prominent offices in and about Boston, where he will be missed by a large number of friends. He was about 40 years of age and leaves a widow and two small children.

We are glad to note the increasing interest that is manifest in the class for systematic exercise at the gymnasium. Already it has been necessary to form two divisions as the class was too large to instruct properly at one time. And since it is necessary to take the class in two divisions, we would like to suggest, if the idea has not yet been put into practice, that these divisions be made up so that the stronger men and those who are able to take up a heavier system of exercise be formed into one class. We would also recommend such a class to those who expect to try for the baseball team when such an invitation is given after which special arrangements will be made for their training.

Owing to the lack of room at the gymnasium, it is now asked how the men preparing for the winter tournament are going to get any special training. But if they avail themselves of the present opportunities for general training, there doubtless will be some plan devised whereby they may have plenty of room and time for all the necessary special preparations that are needed for the in-door meeting.

We desire to call the attention of every student to the article in another column concerning the founding of a literary monthly. Philo has given her consent and is willing that an annual take the place of the Mirror. Now, since every obstacle has been removed, the question will soon come before the school for final action, and, as the above mentioned article explains the conditions upon which the new magazine may be started, and clearly sets forth the school's responsibility regarding contributions and financial support, we urge every one to read it carefully and to be prepared to act intelligently and with some degree of interest.

When the committee gave its last report to the school very little interest seemed to be taken in it; and on the other hand, there has been apparent for some time a strong tendency to adopt the suggestions that were first made, without stopping to consider their importance. Neither condition ought to exist at any time in a school meeting and especially so when an important matter is brought up for action. Therefore, we hope that when a school meeting is called to consider the question of starting the monthly, every man will try to understand what he is asked to vote for, and then to show his individuality by voting as he thinks best, whether it be in favor of the motion or not.

SIS! BANG! BOOM!

These are the words to properly express the great boom that Hannon's tailoring stock has taken with the students of Phillips Academy. This remarkable rise in the favor and estimation of the students is due to square dealing, impartial treatment and a large and varied exhibit of the styles of clothes the students wear. Do not forget that Hannon's is the place to buy, and do not forget that it is his studious aim to please the members of the academy and give them just the articles they want. I have ready for distribution a very handsome calendar and will gladly furnish one to every student. The subject of the headpiece is a photogravure of an earnest, exciting, resolute scrimmage. The illustration is singularly realistic and it is just the kind of calendar every student should have on his desk. Come in and get one.

A Leap Year Chance.

We are on the carpet still grinding at the old problem, how best to cater to the wants of our customers, and give them the best that can be got, at the lowest possible price consistent therewith. In our efforts to please our patrons this fall we unconsciously overstocked ourselves, and this is the reason we are offering such bargains in winter suits and overcoats. But such is the fact, and, moreover, it appears the public are alive to the fact, and are taking advantage of the low prices. This is mutually beneficial, for it gives us a chance to show those who never have had their work done here the quality of our goods and the kind of garments we produce, and this is just what we want. These special prices will be seen during the month of February.

that position, being a steady player

Farrell will play centre-field, short other positions have not been decided

To the Students.

The improvement in the laundry service has gone into effect. The Broadway Steam Laundry of Lawrence is doing general washing and mending, both in the most finished and satisfactory manner, at the rate of 60 cents a dozen.

It is to be noticed THAT THIS RATE AP-PLIES REGARDLESS OF THE NUMBER OF PIECES SENT. All general washing should be accompanied by a WHITE list; all starched goods by a BLUE list.

We have made this change at the request of a large number of the students, and trust that it will meet with the approval of all our customers. For further information and upon any cause for complaint please consult our agent,
