CLASS SWIMMING MEETS

'16 and '17 Win

Last Wednesday at four o'clock there were two class swimming meets, one between '15 and '16, the other between '17 and '18. '16 won the first meet.

'16 won the plunge. Strout went 54 ft. and Horde 44 ft., while Stokes went 42 ft. In the 100-yard, R. T. Burnham won first for '16, while Sharp and Stokes made a close second and third. In the 50-yard race, M. Gould, '16, came in first, followed closely by Pike, '15, and Allen, '15. Williams won the 200-yard from G. Cook. The relay team for '16 composed of Morton, M. Gould, Trueman, and R. T. Burnham, defeated Pike, Allen, Stokes and Williams, the team for '15 in a 200-yard race. Gould won the dive for '16, slightly defeating Conroy and Stokes.

In the second meet '17 defeated '18.

The plunge between the two was even as both Mills and Hines plunged 47 ft. Lunt won the 100-yard for '17, closely defeating Spencer. The 50-yard race was very close as Fish and Boulton finished in a dead heat, winning for '17. Hinds won the 200-yard race for '18. Lunt, Craine, Wolley and Eaton, who formed '17's relay team, defeated '18's relay team which was composed of Rock, Hinds, L. Davis, and Spencer. Craine won the dive for '18. He was followed by Lunt, Rock, and Davis.

Philo vs. The School

On Friday morning in the chapel, R. T. Bushnell, the secretary of Philo, gave to the school the challenge to a debate for the H. S. Robinson prizes. Forum having having ceased to be a debating society the responsibility now rests upon the only other organization in school, for debating, to get men for the Andover team which is to meet Exeter the latter part of this term. Philo has taken this way of bringing debating before the school because she thinks it ought not to die out in a school of this size where undoubtedly there is the material.

The question for debate is:

Resolved: That the condition of affairs in California warranted that state's action in regard to the Japanese.

And it has been arranged that any work a man puts in on this debate will be so much towards the Exeter debate, for the questions will be essentially the same.

JANUARY MIRROR

The January Mirror will not appear until next week, because of delay in securing material. The first story is by Fitts, and is called "Tommy, Dimmy and the Fairy." In spite of the title, it is the best work the writer has done this year. The next story is "The Belated Banshee," a story of Irish superstition, interesting, and well written. After this comes "The Library Shelf," a new, and purely experimental, department. It is made up of the list of books recommended by the Librarian for the fellows to read, and a few selected reviews. The usual Editorials and Exchange department complete the number. All material for the February issue must be in before February 1.

Forum Is Still Active Organization

At a meeting of Forum at the beginning of the fall term, the following proposition was laid before the members of that body: Shall Forum continue as a debating society or instead become a literary organization?

It was voted to hold meetings throughout the term as a literary society. If this plan was not successful, it was planned to change Forum again into a debating society. But if the interest in literary matters seemed to be strong enough it was the intention to continue Forum as a literary society.

Accordingly, meetings were held throughout the term. The number that showed up at these meetings was exceedingly gratifying and the interest seemed very warm. Nor did this number fall off during the entire term. At the meetings held towards the end of the term, there was just as strong and enthusiastic a group as at the beginning.

Therefore, since Forum as a literary society has succeeded even better than Forum as a Debating society it has been decided to continue Forum as a literary society.

The general opinion of the student body seems to be that Forum has fallen through and, as was erroneously stated in chapel, is no longer an active organization. Such is not the case. Forum is active in its line which is now literary and not debating.

Forum meets at Mr. Crawford's every Friday night at half past seven. At these meetings one can make himself thoroughly at home, state his opinions on any intellectual matter, and derive benefit from the ideas of others on the same question. All those interested in literary matters can find out all about Forum by applying to C. Norman Fitts, Pres. Forum, 8 Phillips hall.

The award of this prize has been made to Frederick Johnson Manning of Braintree, Mass., P. A. '12.

NEW GRILL BUILDING

More Room on Phillips Street

The Trustees have decided to erect a new building on Phillips street, directly back of the Archaeology building. It will be a two-story brick structure which will be used for the Phillips Union and as extra space for the Archaeology department. The basement will be devoted to the grill and kitchen, the first floor will be used for a student's reading and lounging room, and the second floor for more archaeological collections. This will tend to relieve the present crowded condition of the Archaeology, as well as give better and larger quarters to the Phillips Union.

Andover Men in the Field of Science

A recent volume, Leading American Men of Science, edited by David Starr Jordan and published by Henry Holt and Company, undertakes to present brief biographies of sixteen American scientists of international reputation. Of those who are included, two were at one time students in Phillips Academy: Othneil Charles Marsh (1831-1899) the famous Paleontologist and Professor of Yale; and Henry Augustus Rowland (1848-1901), a well-known Physicist, for many years a Professor at Johns Hopkins.

Marsh, who was a nephew of George Peabody, the philanthropist, entered the English Department of Phillips Academy in the autumn of 1851, but in the spring of 1853 changed to the Classical Department, graduating three years later as valedictorian of his class. Being a man grown, he was able to exert a strong influence on many of his younger classmates. For many years the President of the Philomathean Society had regularly been a Senior; in 1854, however, the Senior candidate was unpopular, and Marsh labored with might and main to elect a Middler, ceeded in his plan with the ultimate result that he himself in the following year was chosen when a Middler to be President of the society.

Entering Yale in 1856, Marsh graduated well up in his class, and then spent several years in study abroad. In 1866 he accepted the Chair of Paleontology at Yale College, serving without salary until 1896. During this period he headed many expeditions in search of fossils, making many important discoveries. He received honorary degrees from many universities at home and abroad. "The appreciation of his ability as a collector has steadily grown, until he holds a foremost place among makers of vast collections." Professor Marsh died on March 11, 1899, as a result of pneumonia contracted while he was at work in his museum. A colleague of his at Yale gives a fine estimate of his character:—

"His standard of scientific accuracy was high and he demanded the same of others; he was none too tolerant of those who opposed his views and who encroached upon a field which he felt he had pre-occupied. But whatever may have been his personal peculiarities, Professor Marsh was a great man;

BARNSTORMERS

On Tuesday evening the Barnstormers gave an excellent performance of Lady Gregory's "Spreading the News," preceeded by a speech by the author upon A Possible American Theatre, founded on the experiences with the Irishmen. In this Lady Gregory suggested that in each large American city there should be a small theatre—small because "it is better to have a small theatre filled than a large one empty"—with its own company of local players. She strongly advised that the author should write upon a theme which is local, for, in so doing, he has a much greater opportunity to study human nature in people with whom he is familiar, and he knows what phases can best be brought out. So an American should not attempt to write an Irish play, for, not knowing the people, he could not put into it the sort of humor, or even sadness, that forms one of the chief Irish characteristics. Thus it follows that a playwright, living here in New England, is best able to reproduce the sentiments and feelings of this section of the country and one living in the West is better adapted for writing a play dealing with life in the West. Lady Gregory says that, having a theatre in each large city representing a section of the country, the players should be chosen from the same section, that the play should be written about this section and that not only should the players perform in their own town, but that they should travel from city to city. Then a foreigner, coming to New York, for instance, would be able to go to the theatre and get a view of representative American life as portrayed, not by men and women living elsewhere, but by those living in the places where the scene of the production is laid. In this way very soon Americans would know how other of their countrymen live, feel, and think, and this land would be drawn together by much firmer bonds into a nation realizing what each part of itself needs and knowing how best to take care of those needs.

"Spreading the News" is a typical Irish play. The plot is based upon a mistake and many ludicrous situations are the result. It consists entirely of one act in which events follow close upon one another. A new magistrate has been installed and inspects the town in which he has charge, accompanied by Jo Muldoon, alias Mr. Crawford. Mr. Hayes as Bartlett Fal-

Triangular Crew Race

The Yale crew management has completed arrangements for a triangular race with Princeton and Cornell. The race will take place May 5, over a one and a half mile course, on Carnegie Lake at Princeton. The race will be between the first university crews, and it is possible that a Freshman race may also be arranged to take place at this time.

This is the third crew race scheduled for Yale for the coming year, the other two being the Pennsylvania race, April 3, and the annual regatta with Harvard.

DARTMOUTH CLUB MEETS

Officers Elected

The Dartmouth club held its second meeting in Graves 3 on Wednesday evening last. Mr. French acted as chairman of the meeting and called for nominations for officers. John Franklin Goddard was elected President of the organization, while Wallace R. Crumb was elected vice-president, and E. C. Ingram, secretary-treasurer.

Suggestions were made concerning having some speakers from the Dartmouth Alumni club banquet, to be held in Boston during the latter part of the month, come to Andover to make addresses. A committee was appointed to revise the constitution. This committee included Goddard, Crumb, Ingram, and Alden. About twenty-five fellows were present at the meeting.

Dr. Peabody's Recital

On Wednesday of this week, Dr. Charles Peabody of Boston and Mr. Carl F. Pfatfeicher, gave a recital in the Academy chapel before a quite large and very appreciative audience. Dr. Peabody played the flute while Mr. Pfatfeicher played the organ.

Meeting of Philo

On Wednesday evening the regular meeting of Philo was held in the lecture room of the Archaeology building. Sixteen members were present. The topics of the week were rendered by Brayton and Hielner gave a select reading. His selection was Kipling's "Ballad of East and West." After this the debate was held. The question was: Resolved the the matralization laws of the United States should be made stricter.

Bennet, assisted by Knox, upheld the affirmative and Speer, assisted by Bielsonson, the negative. The question was one especially pertinent and was well taken up on both sides. The negative won the debate on the merits of their argument.

Prom. Notices

Among the notices of interest to the fellows who intend to go to the Junior Prom., were the two following: No flowers will be allowed on the floor of the hall and no rooms in Williams Hall will be assigned to any fellows who do not hold Prom. tickets.

THE ANDOVER PRESS

The following letter has been sent to the editor of the Phillips Bulletin by Mr. Robert W. Blackwell, P. A. '75, of the firm of R. W. Blackwell and Company, London, England.

Dear Sir:

It seems to me more than probable that some Andover men may feel the inclination to contribute a trifle towards comforts for the men now fighting for the right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness,"—for the freedom from Teutonic-Turkish interference and aggression.

I would highly esteem the privilege of being their Almoner.

Four officers and some thirty men, late of my staff, have been on active service since early in the war. Furthermore, my company recruited the 109th regiment of Royal Engineers, 250 officers, and men commanded by our Chief Engineer and Director, Captain F. Forbes-Higginson, R. E. Their special hazardous mission is to rebuild the bridges for the Allies' advance. Many of our steel-erectors and men from our railway construction gangs enlisted therein.

It is up to me to find such comforts as may help to make life endurable for these men, and their fellows, and I beg for help. I do not ask much, a few dollars will go a long way toward providing heavy underclothing and tobacco.

If the ladies will knit or crochet for me heavy mufflers (2½ yards long and 12 inches wide) and fingerless mitts coming well up over the wrist, I will be deeply grateful.

Every cent and every comfort will reach the men, I know, and be distributed by them where the need is greatest.

Faithfully yours,
 ROBERT W. BLACKWELL

Six Exeter Athletes Over 20-Year Age Limit

Six of Exeter's athletes have been placed over the 20-year age limit, and cannot compete at the B. A. A. Interscholastic Meet next month. These are Captain Radford, who will also be ineligible for the Harvard Interscholastic Meet in May; James Phelan and C. E. Phillips of Lynn; Wilbur Kirkpatrick of Seattle, Wash.; William T. Swart of Nashua, N. H., and David T. Sanders of Greenville, Maine.

The discovery was somewhat of a surprise, as it was thought that the lowering of the age limit would not affect the Exonians.

sent to Phillips Academy in 1863, largely with the hope that the

the stern discipline of Dr. Taylor could not, however, arouse the boy to effort in the classics, and he re-

Andover to Rennselaer Polytechnic

In this position he remained until his death in 1901. One of his pudents only those who were able to brook severe and searching crit-ion, comes upon the scene and is full of misfortunes, one of them being that he is accused of the murder of one Jack Smith, whom he is supposed to have stabbed with a hay-fork. In trying to rid himself of this fork he encounters the Sheriff and is handcuffed. At this juncture Jack Smith arrives whole and is arrested "just for luck" by the magistrate. The whole play was exceedingly well done.

Andover Meets Yale Freshmen Today

The Andover Swimming team will leave at 1.29 for New Haven where they will meet the Yale Freshmen tonight. Several members of last year's team at Andover will swim for the Freshmen, among them Allen and Wooley, Coach Sutherland, Dr. Page, and Manager John Emerson. will accompany the team which will be composed of the following fellows: Bradley, 50 yards; F. Kingsbury, dive; Crane, relay; Searle, 200 yards; Peters, relay; Mayer, 50 yards.

Candidates for Battery

Baseball practice started Wednesday when about 20 candidates answered the call of Principal Stearns who will coach the team. The workout lasted only one hour, and little was attempted except to throw the ball about. Butterfield, who looks as if he would be the mainstay in the box this year, assisted Mr. Stearns and will have charge of the squad when he is unable to be present at the practice sessions, which will be held each Wednesday and Saturday until the team can get outside.

The Yale football schedule for 1915 has been announced by Manager G. W. Carrington. The Notre Dame game has been dropped and it will be replaced by a game with Springfield Y. M. C. A. College. All games will be played in New Haven except the Harvard game, which will be at Cambridge.

More Fellows Wanted for Gym Team

More fellows are urged to come out for the Gym team. The class meets at 2.15 on Tuesday and at 4 on Wednesday and Saturday. Anyone may join this class and practice with the team if he has not signed.

New York Alumni Smoker

Mr. Henry S. Van Duzer, '71, president of the New York Alumni association, gave a smoker in his apartments last week to the Andover Alumni in New York. The meeting was called to arouse the interest of the graduates in the school. Also stereopticon slides were shown.

1914 A Record Year

Newspaper writers and sport experts estimate that the attendance at professional and amateur sports in 1914 totalled approximately 25,000,000 spectators. With an average of 50 cents per capita, the gate receipts amounted to $12,500,000.

Baseball, representing 43 leagues and 300 clubs, leads with a general estimate of 9,000,000. Parke Davis estimates that 6,262,000 spectators saw 152,000 players take part in 34,000 football games. Almost 1,000,000 witnessed racing: trotting, and pacing. Spectators numbering 300,000 was fixed upon as the attendance at the Davis Cup Matches and at the various other tournaments. Automobile, motor cycle, and bicycle races were allotted 500,000. Track and field sports drew a similar attendance. The International Polo Matches and other tournaments attracted 125,000. College regattas, triangular varsity meets, etc., were seen by 425,000. Boxing offered pleasure to 1,500,000 fans.

No attempt was made to estimate the attendance at golf, trap-shooting, cricket, hockey, lacrosse, and yachting, where admission fees were either nominal or dispensed with altogether. These sports, together with college, school-boy, or semi-professional baseball brought the grand total up to 25,000,000.
