SWIMMING TEAM OPENS SEASON TO-NIGHT

At 8 o'clock Varsity Will Oppose
Harvard Dental Mermen
in the Pool

BLUE NATATORS ARE SWIMMING IN GOOD FORM

The prospects for this year's swimming squad are better than ever. All the members of the squad have shown considerable spirit, and with the situation as it now is, although we cannot state that they are entirely immune from defeat, we can say, however, that they are very likely to win. Daily practice has served to harden the men to the highest degree, especially with Alex Sutherland again coaching. To assure the fact that coach Sutherland is one of the best, if not the best swimmer in the country, we have noted that the Government has adopted his own stroke for the Navy.

The five old men back on the squad could make a strong team in themselves, and, with the aid of the new material, bid for the championship which they came so near to winning last year. Anderson, who broke the school record by plunging seventy feet last year, is showing up well now. He has Stilwell and Learned to back him. Foote, although he has been ill, is in good form, and will participate in the coming meet. Foote, Dudley and Ferguson make a fine diving compact. Higgins swam the 220 last year, and is now making good time in the 100. Whipple with Pole and Stearns to back him, has returned to his oldtime form in the sprints. Pole swam the 50 last year, and will do so this year. Among the new men on the squad this year, Stilwell is doing very well in the plunge, McGregor in the 100, and Colgate, Frost, York and Winkler in the 50. In the 220, we have Captain Marshall, who is in better form than ever. Marshall was not here at the beginning of practice last term, but upon his arrival at the start of this term, he took charge with a will, and is proving an invaluable aid to Coach Southerland, not only as a swimmer but in managing the squad. He is backed in the 220, by Van Patten, Penfield and Thomas, who are all doing well.

The meet with the Harvard Dental School to-night, will be held at 8.00 o'clock. The squad needs the support of the student body. They will do their share of we'll do ours. Let us get out to-night and back them up. Although not much is known about the visitors, they are supposed to have also some strong swimmers, and the meet will be close, and well worth seeing.

The probable line-up for Andover, is as follows:

Relay—Winkler, Colgate, Pole and York.

Fifty Yards—Whipple and Pole.
One hundred yards—Stearns and McGregor.

Two hundred and twenty yards—Van Patten and Capt. Marshall.
Dive—Foote, O. D., Ferguson, and Dudley.

Plunge—Stilwell and Learned.

Bob Stevens, P. A. '17, was elected to compete for assistant manager of track at Yale.

HOCKEY TEAM PLAYS MELROSE HIGH SCHOOL

This afternoon there will be a hockey game with Melrose High at 2 o'clock on Rabbits Pond. This is the same team that beat Exeter 3 to 2 last Saturday, so the game ought to be a fast one. The men who will start the game for Andover are:

Vaughn, I. W.
Flanders, C.
Neidlinger, r. w.
Captain Adams, r.
Dann, p.
P. Wilson, c. p.
Davis, g.

GUESTS AT FRIENDSHIP HOUSE ENJOYING VISIT

At the "Friendship" House during the past week, there have been residing ten boys of six different nationalities, all of whom have been enjoying the benefits, such as they were, which were offered them by the fellows in school here. Mr. Crafts, the man who has taken charge of the house and the boys under him, has been aided in his duties during the stay of the visitors here, by no less than a fraction over one hundred boys from the school, who have responded with a will to the work which they have started at the House as a student body.

The daily schedule of the fellows has already been detailed in the previous issue of this paper. During their exercises at the "gym", all the boys have been strictly examined, and have thus learned of their individual deficiencies; in addition to this, they have received medical advice as to the best method which they should adopt in order to perfect these, and to develop their bodies more completely. Two of the fellows, even during their short stay here, have learned to swim and conduct themselves unaided in the water. They have had their regular daily lessons which were assigned them on arrival, and have made noticeable progress. Three evenings a week are to be, and have been, devoted to special forms of entertainment, which took place once at the house of a very kind friend, once when they were entertained last night at the Archaeology Building by the Jazz band, and tonight they will have their final windup at the movies, in the gym.

In return, the boys have held a daily meeting for discussion of the best way in which they may express their gratitude, and they have succeeded excellently. They have already turned to with a will, and moved unaided, an entire cord of wood, and day before yesterday, went out to the board track to clean that off, but found that Mother Nature had beaten them to it, as all the snow had melted off. Tonight they intend to move all the chairs from the basement of the gym, up to the main floor for the benefit of the movies spectators. They have been most willing at all times, to do all that lay in their power to help out in return for the little we can do for them. Saturday afternoon, they will attend the swimming meet in a body.

There arrival at the school has been a most happy one for the fellows here, and contact with them has been most friendly at all times. The fellows here have an

FRED DALY TO RETURN TO ANDOVER

Has Been in France Ever Since
America's Entry into the War.
Was Commissioned 1st Lieut.

Tuesday afternoon, all the older men of the school, and many of the newer, were elated by the news of the return of Lt. F. J. Daly, P. A. '07, for it was supposed by all that he was still seeing service abroad.

At the outbreak of our entry into the war, Lt. Daly volunteered for service in the Ambulance Corps and crossed to France with the Andover Ambulance Unit with whom he served for some time in France. When the unit was broken up, however, he entered the camion service in which he served until the time of his return here, having seen active duty ever since his arrival on the other side.

Previous to his departure for France, Lt. Daly had served the school here, in the capacity of assistant to the Principal, and as our football coach. These duties he will resume upon his discharge from Camp Meade, where he has now gone, after his arrival on the "Laplander". His return merely depends upon his orders, which he expects any moment.

Most important of all, however, is the fact that he will have charge of our baseball squad. During his school years here, he was on the baseball team, on the track squad, and captain of the football team, which he returned to coach in 1916. He has coached the Williams Varsity nine, and therefore is especially qualified to take over our squad here, and it is hoped he will have Coach Quinby's former success in baseball. He is, however, merely going to take over the squad until the return of Mr. Quinby, who will then assume its responsibility. It is indeed a pleasant surprise, and with greater expectations of an Exeter victory, that we see his return.

INTERESTING SPEAKER AT INQUIRY TO-MORROW

Mr. A. Sidney Lovett, Jr., will speak at the meeting of the Society of Inquiry tomorrow night. At Yale, Mr. Lovett was a leading member of his class. He is an able speaker to young men, and at the Westminster School, he is considered the favorite preacher of the year. In his work in the Marine Church, Boston, he has done much to provide recreation for the hundreds of sailors of the United States Shipping Board on the nearby docks.

Movies

The moving pictures tonight will begin at 6.30, in order to allow plenty of time for the swimming meet. "Huck and Tom" will be the feature film. Many of those who saw "Tom Sawyer" in December, asked for the sequel. Consequently, it is being shown tonight. Jack Pickford takes the part of Tom Sawyer, and Robert Gordon, of Huck Finn. The story tells of the visit of Tom and his companions, to the village graveyard, to charm away their warts, and after many adventures, the film ends with the discovery of the buried treasure.

Yale Club Meeting

At a meeting in Peabody House, Friday night, the Yale Club was re-organized for the year; and the following officers elected: Oliver M. Whipple, president; H. T. Day, vice-president; and George Bailey, treasurer. It was decided to charge the regular membership fee of one dollar. It is hoped that Dean Farr can be secured to speak at a meeting, soon.

Student Council Election

HOCKEY TEAM WINS ONE-SIDED CONTEST

Defeats Sailors from U.S.S. Mt.
Vernon by 7 to 0 Score. Several Humorous Incidents

ING IMPROVES

Wednesday saw a most successful hockey game for Andover, on the ice at Rabbits Pond, the opposing team from the U. S. transport Mount Vernon, now in drydock at the Charlestown Navy Yard, where she has lain since she was torpedoed on the other side, some months ago, having had practically no opportunity of any sort to get together and practice team work.

Several of the men, luckily for the team, however, had played a good deal of hockey in civil life; one of them, Stedman by name, having played against Yale; Fitzgerald, their right wing, had seen service while staying in Canada, and Ensign Cox, their goal guard, who was their best man, showed very good skill, despite the fact that he had played no hockey in the past six years. With these three men, and "Pete" Dugan, rover, rushing around the rink for them, they put up a fairly good, though one-sided fight.

It was easily seen from the beginning of the game, that the teams were very unevenly matched, the eye of Andover getting the jump on her opponents at every turn. The team work was better, but because of the very soft ice, and bad surface, there was not much opportunity for either side to show much skill; it was mainly a general scrimmage, the sailors putting up good defense about their goal, which alone saved them from overwhelming disaster. To work this defense, they had to retain their two best linesmen at cover and cover-point, with the result that these men, by whom our opponents alone could have won a victory, were obliged to give up their best positions in the offense.

In the first half, the only event of importance which took place besides the goals made, was the wounding of one of the "overseas" veterans" by means of his participation in a collision with the puck. The man was standing behind the Andover goal as scorer, and never expected to be torpedoed by one of his own team. Nevertheless, Dugan, in taking a try at the goal, overshot his mark and the puck found its target in the eye of Wier, who is, by the way, an old Exeter man. He was escorted from the field for repairs, by Assistant Manager Bartlett.

In the first half, five goals were credited to us only in a long battle. The sailors were good at the defense, and the team made many repeated attempts before we were able to get the puck into the goal. At no time in the first half, and only once in the second, was the Andover goal seriously menaced, and even then, the latter attack was successfully warded off.

In the second half, there was a complete new line up, the first leaving in a body until about the middle of it, when time was taken

SATURDAY, JAN. 25, 1919.

When the student body unanimously adopted the "Friendship House" proposition it was understood that after it was once on its own feet the school was to support and run it. The financial end of this matter has already seen some heavy deliberation as to whether the school alone or the school and some outside contributions should uphold this end of the game, with the general conclusion among the thinking portion that the school should alone see to it.

If every fellow for the next six weeks gave ten cents apiece, it would make it possible to pay for the entire cost of the House, which is not, as can easily be seen, a very large amount. Sixty cents as a whole is not a large sum of money and when it is given on the installment plan of ten cents a week it surely should not seem like a very hard job. Most of the fellows in school give a relatively small sum and think they are getting something for a very cheap price; but this could easily be swelled, and, when one thinks of the pleasure it really costs each fellow to give so much to the boys who come to stay at the House, it is not very difficult. If one only stops to think of the fact that the money goes to a concrete and not an apparently abstract service, and adds to that the fact that the amount which he gives weekly is going towards an end for which he may himself have been working during one of the weeks in which a group is there, he knows for a certainty both where his money goes and also has the satisfaction of knowing that he himself has aided in giving it to a common good. Let's have the school alone put through the project which the school itself has taken up.

This term THE PHILLIPIAN is being run under a new system. Instead of each editor taking an issue now and then, each member of the board has a certain department for which he is responsible. Thus each editor takes a more active part in getting out the paper. The departments are as follows:—

Every year, the school expends an appreciable sum of money on the upkeep of the school grounds. Much damage is done in the spring of the year, by fellows who carelessly cut across the grass. Although it is far from spring, the ground is in a very vulnerable state just now. Much damage will be done if we do not keep to the paths. This is an old, old story, but every year there are those who disregard this custom. Keep off the grass!

Chapel Speaker

The Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church, Winchester, will preach at the morning service tomorrow. Mr. Chidley is a graduate of Dartmouth, and of Union Theological Seminary. In November last, he gave a most interesting address at a meeting of the Society of Inquiry.

At the Vesper service, Mr. A. Sidney Lovett, Jr., of the Maverick Church, Boston, will preach. Mr. Lovett is a graduate of Yale, and of Union Theological Seminary. Mr. Lovett has been in close connection with the school through his nephew, Robert Lovett '14, who was killed in France.

Faculty Notes

Last Tuesday, January 21st, the trustees of the Academy were in Andover, to hold a meeting. The trustees and faculty were entertained by Dr. Stearns at a buffet dinner from 6.00 to 8.00 o'clock.

Mr. Moorehead, instructor in archaeology, is now in Tennessee, within fifty miles of Nashville. He and Mr. Meyers, head of the Tennessee State Historic Society, are excavating and making a research of the mounds of the ancient mound builders. Mr. Moorehead will be in Washington, D. C., to attend the meeting of the United States Board of Indian Commissioners, of the Department of the Interior, next week.

Mr. W. M. Sides to Teach Physics and Chemistry

Mr. Winfield M. Sides, who has been engaged to take charge of the courses in Physics and Chemistry, which are to be started for the benefit of the students who entered at the beginning of the winter term, reported for duty this week. Mr. Sides is a graduate of Pennsylvania State College, and has had several years' teaching experience, two of which were spent at the University of Porto Rico as assistant professor of mechanical engineering. After war was declared, he enlisted, and became 1st Lieutenant of the 573rd Infantry, with which organization he served during the war. He was on board the U.S.S. Carolina, which was torpedoed off the Jersey coast in June, 1918.

Mirror Elections

Floyd Charles Furlow, '20, of New York City, and George Washington Houk, '20, of Dayton, Ohio, were elected to the Mirror Board at a recent meeting.

opportunity to help others, which is by all means a blessing to them, even if in disguise, and the way in which they have shown up and offered to aid them, ought fully to justify this statement. Many perhaps, have been a little skeptical at first as to the merits of the House and its purpose, but none of those who have been over to see it, now doubt that it is anything but the best. The best is not as yet, very good, as the school as a whole, has not fallen into the swing of affairs, but the way one-fifth of the school, who have already been called on for their bit, has co-operated, points conclusively to the fact that the school is behind it.

Next week Wednesday, the group from Kurn-Hattin will arrive to take the place of the group now present. There arrival has been long heralded, and has been waited expectantly, so there is really no reason why their welcome should not be a warm one. Now we've started this "Friendship" House, let's put it through with a rush.

Roosevelt's Influence

Henry L. Stimson, a member of the present board of trustees of the school, graduated from here with the class of 1883. Since that time, he has served as Secretary of War, under Taft's administration; and has had a great deal of intercourse with Colonel Roosevelt. He writes the following to the Editor of the New York Times:

"In connection with the many forms of public service, which Colonel Roosevelt rendered the country, I see no mention of one which many would regard the greatest of all—that is, the change due primarily to him in the moral sense of the nation. It is not always easy to trace causes and assign deserts; in this case, it is not difficult, the facts are patent and the tribute is due.

It is not many years since, when occasion arose, it was widely asserted that the private morals of a public man were nobody's affair but his own. Today, it may be safely claimed, that there are few, if any, constituencies in the length and breadth of the land, with which a charge of flagrant immorality would not at once destroy a candidate's chance of election to office. More than to any other man, I believe, this is due to Theodore Roosevelt. From the beginning of his public career, in season and out of season, he insisted on common morality as the prime duty of all, both in public and in private. His own sturdy integrity enforced it, and despite the sneers of his opponents about his "Sunday school politics," he never desisted or modified his demands. He died holding a place in the hearts of the American people, and commanding the respect and admiration of the people of Europe, as no man has since President Lincoln, though in the latter relation, President Wilson is now winning similar recognition.

Living always in the limelight of vigorous publicity, constantly holding high office, invariably surrounded with enemies who feared or hated him, and opponents whose ways or interests he attacked, he has this to his undying credit, that he stood, first and last, for a morality in personal life, so plain and compelling as to be understood of every man, and he lived to see it adopted by his fellow-citizens as the standard of their representatives and at last, of themselves.

Major Fuess to Speak

On Monday evening, January 27th, at eight o'clock in the Peabody House, Major Claude M. Fuess will speak on the Quartermaster's Department, and his work as a Personnel Officer. Members of the club and friends are cordially invited to be present.

Boxing Club

At a meeting of the boxing club, last Wednesday, possible meets were considered with Harvard and the Boston Y. M. C. A. The following officers were elected: President, F. Adams, '21; vice-president T. Houk, '19; secretary and treasurer, E. Peters, '19; manager, W. May, '19.

Letter from Gellatly '16

Mrs. Edward S. Gellatly, mother of William B. Gellatly, P. A. '16, has sent to Dr. Stearns an interesting letter received from her son, and written before the armistice was declared. Mrs. Gellatly says:

"Billy was not content in the Divisional Headquarters Troop. There was not enough action. So he joined his old organization, 104th M. P's, which has since been changed to 29th Military Police Co., attached to Infantry, taking the men to the trenches, and being the last to leave. He was without a bath for forty-six days, and they had their clothes on for weeks. A share from a cup of coffee was a luxury. He lost twenty-two pounds that last month but with it all 'would not change what he went through for millions.'"

"At one time he feared his nerves would not hold out, but aside from the splendid cause and the duty, the 'Spirit of Andover' braced him up and on he marched. So you see the help and teachings of the dear old school have not been in vain. These men and this division have been cited by both French and American commands, divisional citations. The Divisional Police are combatants, different from the Corps Police."

"His present billet is in a little French village called Ainville, near Chaumont, three boys being detailed to run the place, and direct traffic. Their 'billet' is a hut of two rooms, with stone floors, straw to sleep on, but an open fire-place, which is a joy to their lives and a comfort to many who are passing through."

"The 29th Division is called the Blue and Gray Division, made up of Southern and Northern troops. One of the soldiers wrote this, their Battle Song:

"Here's to the Blue of the wind-swept North,
As they advance on the Fields of France.
May the spirit of Grant be with them all
As the sons of the North advance."

"Here's to the Gray of the sun-kissed South,
As they advance on the Fields of France.
May the spirit of Lee be with them all—
As the Sons of the South advance."

"And here's to the Blue and Gray as one,
When they meet on the Fields of France.
May the spirit of God be with them all—
As the sons of our Flag advance."

France, Oct. 31, 1918

This is the first time in a month, that I have felt like a human being. Needless to say that you have probably already guessed a few of the experiences I have gone through during the past month. It has been harrowing and frightful, to say the least, yet now that we are in "rest billets", far from shot and shell, one takes a different view of the matter.

Well, on your wedding anniversary, we went to the hardest and bloodiest front there is today. Our Division was given a gigantic task, which I am proud to say, is accomplished. If you have read the papers during these days, you may have understood what the Americans are doing. Our front is now an entirely American front. In this same place, the French had thousands of men killed, defending it from the Crown Prince, a couple of years ago, and although they (the French) held it, they were never able to push the Hun back. But it was our good old Division who routed them out, and drove back the bloody boche.

We wear the insignia (Divisional) for citation. All our infantry have been cited twice. If anyone ever tells you that the Divisional Military Police are non-combatants, strangle them! We had one man killed, and two wounded in this action. Our Company was on the front, and in the trenches, every day of it, and we were the last to leave.

I hope you will never see the suffering that I have seen. Men—little boys—wounded, killed, and horses, too. No one ever thinks much about these silent partners of ours, but they suffer, and are killed just like the rest of us. I remember I was on duty in a ravine they call Death Valley, and well named, too. It was all Hun land before we started our drive, but we recaptured it, and I had a post there at the junction of three roads. I was there for a week. One day, six men were killed at one time within a few feet of me, not to say what went on during the week. My roads were always lined with busted carts and dead animals.

We were gassed several times, but only one of us really got it. He is coming along in great shape. It is different now, however. We are in a "rest billet". Our detail of eight men are in a lovely little house, in a quiet little village, away back from the front. I have made friends with a French family here, and get milk from them twice a day. This afternoon, we had the band out, and everyone gathered round.

The war news is wonderful today, and with the sunshine and everything fine, it is great. I think we have seen our last heavy fighting, because today, Austria has asked for peace at any price, and Turkey has already quit. Well, I hope so, anyway, for they certainly tore a hole in us. Why, they say that the front we have just come from, makes Chateau-Thierry look like a bridge party.

When I get home, I want to sleep beaucoup and drink all kinds of milk, and eat all sorts of eggs. Never serve me cornbeef or beans. Give me lots of rolls and steak and ice cream. I haven't seen any ice cream even in pictures or movies since we hit this place, France. I am off cornbeef and beans, for life!

Believe me, if I could not dream, it would be awful! Now that we are here for a rest, and don't hear that moan and that awful bang, and get a shower of dirt if you are too close, or hear the scream of shrapnel as it falls near you—it did hit my shoes a couple of times, but I always went flat when I heard one coming—as I was saying, now that that's all past for a while, I am glad that I had the experience; but we have all come to the same conclusion, that we have had enough war, so let us go home. Maybe it will come soon.

out for their return, with the exception of Davis at goal, to their original positions. Wells remained at goal during the whole of the second half. The "Mt. Vernon" team made but one substitution which was that of Tracy in place of Cox, at goal, who took Berry's place at point. Before the return of the first, Farnsworth relieved Fletcher, and Selden went in for Eddy, and the team shot another goal, then the first went back to their job and cleaned up the game with two more goals, bringing the final score to Andover, 8, "Mt. Vernon" 0.

Music Notes

As a prelude on Sunday morning, Mr. Pfatteicher will play, "By the Waters of Babylon." This is a choral prelude of the highest and best type, which Bach produced. The old choral is in itself, a somewhat sad theme, though stately, and well depicts the fallen glory of Babylon; and the beautiful, yet sad, theme that Bach brings in as an accompaniment to it, blends in and makes it one of his finest compositions of the sort. The choir will sing, "Evening and Morning", an old choral, or hymn, dating back to the sixteenth century. As a postlude, Mr. Pfatteicher will play the great fugue in F minor, by Bach. This is published, in the Schweitz edition of Bach's organ works, in the volume entitled, "Works of the Mature Master Period", and is one of the finest fugues in all organ music. Bach developed the art of fugue writing, higher than any other composer; and it should interest many to see, if nothing more, how a fugue is developed, if they are unable to see the beauty of the music itself.

As a prelude at the Vespers service, Mr. Pfatteicher will play part of, if not all, of the "Sonata Pontificale" by Lemmens, the great Belgian composer, who was the teacher of Alexander Guilmant, who in turn gave Bonnet his great ability at the organ. As an offertory, the quartette will sing "Sunset and Evening Star"; and as a postlude, Mr. Pfatteicher will finish the "Sonata Pontificale" by playing the great "Marche Pontificale" from it.
