

SCHOOL TEAM WINS DEBATE FROM PHILO

HAYS, TORBERT, AND NORCROSS SPEAK FOR AFFIRMATIVE

Last Friday night for the first time in three years the school team, composed of G. H. Hayes, Torbert, and Norcross, won the H. S. Robinson prize debate against Rear-don, Fenn, and Berns representing Philo, on the question Resolved: That The Proposed Child Labor Amendment Be Adopted, by the unanimous vote of the judges. H. S. Robinson founded this prize of thirty dollars in 1896 in order to stimulate debating in the school. Forum was Philo's opponent for twenty-three years; but since 1915, a school team has taken the place of the other debating society. This debate brought the scores of the two teams through the thirteen contests to seven to six in favor of Philo.

The first speaker of the evening was Guy Hayes, on the affirmative side, winner of the Draper speaking. After propounding the question, he introduced his speech by saying that child labor is a vital question to-day, and that when commercial leaders opposed its abolition, laws were instituted, the first in 1916. Two such laws were soon declared unconstitutional; but while they were in effect, child labor did decrease. In 1924 the present amendment was proposed, and five states ratified it. One strong point which he brought out was the fact that with the better machinery of the present, children are as effective workers as adults, and do not demand as much pay. Hayes had fine delivery, and with his facts right at hand and with a good acquaintance with conditions of the times of which he spoke, did much to prove that the present labor conditions demand a change.

Berns introduced the negative argument with the point that the ratification of this amendment is unnecessary: claiming that child labor is essentially a state matter, and that all the states now have laws in regard to it which equal or surpass the government requirements. Considering that the great majority of the million children who are working are doing so in the open air and at home under parents' supervision; that idleness in the formative age is worse than labor; and that any conditions which may formerly have been objectionable are improving, he held that the proposed measure is entirely unnecessary.

Torbert, the second speaker for the affirmative, disagreed with his opponents by quoting a few of the state laws and showing that these are weak and afford loopholes through which people can evade the law. His telling arguments helped the affirmative considerably to their victory: in the first place, child labor has increased since the former laws were declared unconstitutional; in the second place, the best state legislation may be al-ayed by bad laws in the neighboring states, to which children can travel from their native state and secure employment; and in the third place, it is not fair competition between the man who cannot legally employ children and him who can. Thus Torbert argued

TRACK TEAM DEFEATED IN LAST MEET OF YEAR

CLOSEST CONTEST OF SEASON

Yesterday afternoon Andover received her first defeat of the season in track when her team lost to Dartmouth 68 to 58. Before the meet started neither team had been defeated this year, and the two proved to be evenly matched. While the Blue took all places in the javelin and discus, the Green won all in the mile and 880-yard run. The record of the season was made in the mile, the excellent time of 4 minutes 33 3-5 seconds, in the half, 2 minutes 12-5 seconds, and in the quarter 51 2-5 seconds. All these were set by Dartmouth runners. This was undoubtedly the best meet of the season, and it was not won until the last event, the 220-yard dash, was completed. The poor condition of the track due to the recent rains handicapped the Blue athletes to some extent, but the entire team put on a fine exhibition against their strong rival.

In the 120-yard high hurdles Tate of the home team was again victorious beating both Minehan of Dartmouth and Pitkin of the Blue team to the tape. His time was 17 1-5 seconds.

The 100-yard dash doubtless was the closest race of the afternoon, and Stevens of the opposing team proved slightly stronger than either Avery or Osborne in this event. He won first place with 10 2-5 seconds.

Hoffman did not fail to secure first in the hammer throw, but he did not do as well as he has in the former meets. King and Brunner took second and third places respectively for Dartmouth and Andover.

The mile was won by Rick of the visitors, and his team-mates Hukins and Gould tied for second a few yards behind him.

Barres found stiff opposition in the quarter and was beaten by Pratt, but crossed the line before Austin, both of whom represent the New Hampshire team.

The low hurdles were covered in the time of 27 seconds by Wright of Andover who barely finished before Alcorn and Freeman, his rivals.

Five more points were added to the Blue's score when Hoffman put the shot 48 feet 4 1/2 inches, but Broomborg and Maynard donated four points to the Green's total by capturing second and third places.

The first event in which the home team took all places, the javelin, was won by Robertson with a heave of 169 feet. March and Gould were the other two throwers who placed.

The second event in which Dartmouth took all the honors, the 880-yard run, was won by Gould with two minutes, one and two-fifths seconds. Close behind him were Cram and Walsh, who took second and third respectively.

Two Dartmouth jumpers, Donner and Minehan defeated Avery in the broad jump, and thus added eight points to their score.

However, Avery was victorious in the high jump, out jumping Nickum, who took second, and Minehan and Tukesbury, who tied for third.

Nine points were won by Avery,

Chapel Speaker

Tomorrow the preacher at both services will be Rev. Gerald A. Cunningham, St. Paul's Parish, Stamford, Connecticut.

Last Wednesday night, when the semi-final competition for the Andrew Potter English Prizes was held in George Washington Auditorium, only five of the whole Senior class of one hundred eighty-two were present to read their essays. Since there are to be five contestants in the finals on the night before Commencement from whom will be chosen the two prize-winners, and since the material submitted on Wednesday was not particularly good, a second competition will be held next Monday, when it is hoped more will turn out. There are two Andrew Potter Prizes of thirty and twenty dollars respectively, awarded for the excellence of essays delivered Thursday night, June 14, to a member of the graduating class. All Seniors are strongly urged to see their English instructors before Monday and to enter the competition that afternoon at two o'clock in the auditorium.

EXETER NEWS COLUMN

Dr. Malim at Exeter

At the close of the Sesquicentennial of Phillips Academy, Andover, Dr. Malim, representative of the English Public Schools to America, journeyed to Exeter to speak before the student body here. He was very enthusiastically received by the students, and his visit was infinitely appreciated.

Crew

The Exeter crew was defeated last Saturday afternoon in the Noble and Greenough boat races on the Charles River. Although the weather was very poor, a steady drizzle continuing during the races, the river was very calm and suitable for rowing. Exeter lost the first race, which was decidedly the best of the afternoon by a mere half length; the second was won by the Boston School by a margin of nearly three lengths, when the Exeter boat, which had kept up for two-thirds of the distance fell rapidly behind. Exeter's last boat led at the start and continued to keep this lead till the half-way mark, when the Noble crew forged ahead to win by three-quarters of a length.

The letter race with Middlesex will take place this coming week. In this contest there will be but two races, as Exeter's third crew has been disbanded. Since the Noble and Greenough crews also defeated Middlesex, no comparison can be drawn.

Piano Given to School

During the last week a "giraffe" piano was presented to Phillips Academy by Mrs. Taylor of New York City. As it is nearly one hundred years old, it is a valuable addition to the musical department of the school. At present the piano is in the basement of George Washington Hall, but probably it will soon be transferred to a more suitable place.

SOCIETY OF INQUIRY GIVES ALFRED E. STEARNS MEMORIAL FUND AND STARTS FOUNDATION

SUM OF $150 TO BE PLACED AT INTEREST UNTIL 300TH ANNIVERSARY

The following self-explanatory letter, which was submitted to the Board of Trustees of Phillips Academy at their meeting on May 17, 1928, has been reprinted here below in identical form to the original. This bequest of $150, which was gratefully received by the Trustees, was made in the name of the student body of Phillips Academy through its Society of Inquiry. It was given in deep appreciation of the service and leadership of Dr. Stearns, the Headmaster, on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his successful administration. The letter is signed by all the members of the Executive Board of the Society of Inquiry for the year 1927-28.

Below is reprinted an identical copy of the letter, submitted for acceptance to the Board of Trustees on May 17, 1928, presenting a check of $100 on behalf of the student body from the Society of Inquiry of Phillips Academy. This is a direct gift of $100 to the Board of Trustees, the principle and interest to be at their disposal, to form the nucleus of a foundation whenever in the wisdom of the Trustees they may see fit to establish it.

This $100 is to form the nucleus for an Alfred E. Stearns Foundation. The Society of Inquiry, in behalf of the students, sincerely hopes that the Board of Trustees will accept this initial start on such a Foundation.

Golf Team at New Haven

This afternoon the Andover golf team will visit New Haven to play its most important opponent, the Yale Freshman team. Up till now the Blue players have won their three meets with comparative ease, but to-day's contest promises to be a hard one. Two of Andover's last year's players will probably be in the Yale line-up, Swoope and Merwin, the latter of whom was the school champion here in 1927.

The four who will probably go down to New Haven to-day are:

C. Eaton (Capt.)

Couch

Adler

Mulliken

Mr. Hinman and Manager Ames will also make the trip.

SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1928

After the elections were held yesterday morning for the fourth member of the Junior Prom Committee, there seemed to be some discussion as to whether the method of selecting the candidates was clearly on the level or not. No small amount of dissension was evident, so it now seems appropriate to explain the manner in which it was done in order that everyone may see that it was all fairly carried out. Of the first six men chosen for the committee, only three were approved by the faculty. The next two men on the list were both down two subjects, which automatically eliminated them since the Approvals Committee of the faculty had given notice that they would pass on no man who had any conditions whatsoever. As a result of this drastic statement from the faculty, the men who were then eligible and had received any number of votes at all were consequently very few. It did not seem fitting, of course, that the three members who had already been passed on should pick the remaining committeeman, an act which would undoubtedly bring protest from many sides. They therefore took the liberty of picking the next five men on the list who were scholastically eligible to serve on the committee and submitted them to the class for the final choice.

that the states cannot cope properly with this problem.

Fenn attempted throughout his speech to prove that this amendment is highly undesirable. He enlarged on his colleague's point that a child is better off at work than idle. And perhaps more important than anything else, the amendment is unworkable and unenforceable. Fenn said that it was clearly shown by the example of the eighteenth amendment that a law which the people do not like is well-nigh impossible to enforce. His second point was that the measure is one giving Congress absolute power, not one concerning child labor. Thirdly, he claimed that, since at eighteen men may be drafted and women may marry, it is just that they should be able to work. (This point was successfully refuted later by Norcross, who pointed out that the law forbade work before the age of eighteen, not afterward.) Fenn therefore held that the amendment was impractical in its effect on children in its impossibility of enforcement, and in its grant of power to Congress.

Norcross contradicted some of the negative's statements, and said that during the period of validity of former child labor laws, federal enforcement induced state enforcement, but lack of federal enforcement discourage state enforcement. He then concluded the affirmative's argument with an imposing list of the persons and organizations which whole-heartedly approve of this amendment, a list including Roosevelt, Wilson, Harding, and Coolidge.

Reardon, the last speaker of the evening, claimed that the measure if adopted would make the United States a bureaucracy, and that it would violate the personal rights of the people of a nation which has always held forth for liberty. The corruption caused during its enforcement would be just as devastating as that of the eighteenth amendment administration. Moreover, this law would only add to the present burden of the federal government. Summing up the argument of the negative, he held for his side that proposed the twentieth amendment is unnecessary, impractical, and bureaucratic.

Fenn made some very strong rebuttals for the negative, but even these, added to the previous arguments of his side, were not considered strong enough to withstand those of the affirmative, and the final decision was given to the affirmative.

Brunner, and Houston for the Blue team in the discus throw.

Avery was not as successful as Clarkson in the pole vault, so he was only able to secure three of his eighteen points in this event.

The final event was the most exciting of all as Dartmouth was only three points ahead of Andover in the scoring, and this was the last contest. Wearied by five others, Avery was only able to secure a third place, losing to Stevens and Greenough, his opponents. This left the score 68 to 58.

Summary:

120-yd. high hurdles—Won by Tate (A), second Minehan (D), third, Pitkin (A); time: 17 1-5 sec.

Carillon and Organ Recital

Tomorrow afternoon the series of spring musicales will come to a close. Their departure will be regretted, as large crowds have attended the three previous ones. The last recital will be a fitting climax. Not only will Dr. Carl Pfatteicher play the chimes, but also he will render a recital on the Martha Cochran Memorial Organ. The choir of Phillips Academy will turn out en masse to assist in most of the chorals. At 2.30 o'clock the carillon recital will begin; after the chimes have finished at 3:45 o'clock, the organ recital will start in George Washington Hall.

S. S. Quarrier, P. A. '24, has returned to his place in the Yale varsity crew and will row against Harvard on June 22nd.

ANDOVER NINE WILL PLAY DEAN TODAY

VERY STRONG OPPONENT

The Andover baseball team, which has played no game since May 16, when the Blue was defeated by the Harvard Freshmen, will meet the Dean Academy nine this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. Although the visiting team has had a successful season so far, Coach Woodruff has kept his team hard at practice, and Andover will undoubtedly bring up its batting average in this game. Also, though Andover has made no outstanding victories in recent games, there has been steady improvement, especially in fielding. This good work was shown when the Academy nine held the strong Harvard Freshman team to a 4-0 score.

Jones and Slader will form the battery, with Babcock or Brown as possible substitutes for Slader. The first second, and third bases will be filled, as usual, by Chapin, Frank, and Kimball respectively; Mettler will complete the infield, playing at short stop. Batchelder, Bassett, and Allen will form the regular outfield, with Jackson and Page as substitutes.

The lineups of both teams follow:

TENNIS TEAM TO MEET DARTMOUTH FRESHMEN

CLOSE MATCHES EXPECTED

At 2.30 o'clock this afternoon the Andover tennis team will meet the Dartmouth Freshmen. The Blue players had a poor start this season because of the players' inexperience, but lately they have shown remarkable improvement. Since they have been the opponents of the freshmen of colleges like Harvard and Yale, the scores are rather low.

Captain Field, always a skillful player, will probably need all his skill, as H. S. Johnson Jr., number one on the Green squad, has beaten Captain Luce of the Yale Freshmen whose ability was shown on April 28. In a practice match Johnson defeated Malcolm Hill, Harvard varsity man and doubles champion, with a score of 11-9, 6-2.

The other men on the Blue team will be Smyth, Paine, Durell, Heath, and Smith. Since they have not entered any formal matches for more than a week, no predictions can be made concerning the playing of each. However, all of them except Smith and Paine, who were absent, have performed steadily all season and should play well.

The Dartmouth Freshman team is weaker than usual this year. Comparative scores show that it is somewhat more powerful than the Andover aggregation however, for the Yale Freshmen were able to beat the former 8-1, the latter 9-0. The only other match the Green has played is one against Exeter.

The Red and Grey won easily, 6-3, so prospects will look bad for the Blue unless it wins this afternoon.

Besides Johnson, the Dartmouth players will be R. F. Fall, John Camph, Wallace Thorsen, William Palmer, and a sixth man still un-chosen. These men are about as capable players as the Andover fellows, so undoubtedly the matches will be close and interesting.

The lineup will probably be as follows:

ANDOVER	DARTMOUTH FRESH.
Field (Capt.)	Johnson
Smyth	Fall
Durell	Camph
Paine	Thorsen
Heath	Palmer
Smith	undecided

Dramatic Club Gives Up Spring Play

The Phillips Academy Dramatic Club announces that, because of the curtailment of the rehearsal period made necessary by the Sesquicentennial celebration and because of withdrawals from the cast, the usual spring play, which was to have been presented Thursday evening, June 14, must be given up.
